INTENSIVE MANHUNT ON IN WYOMING

United States Deputy Marshals, Railroad Detectives, Postal Inspectors and Sheriff's Posses Scour Hills Over Wide Territory In Effort To Run Down Union Pacific Mail Train Holdups.

RAWLINS, Wyo., Aug. 14.—(I. N. S.)—An intensive manhunt is in progress tonight in southern Wyoming for the bandits who today held up Union Pacific fast mail train No. 5, westbound from Chicago to Portland, Ore., tied hand and foot two mail clerks, slashed open registered mail sacks, and escaped with loot estimated to be valued at from $8,000 to $60,000.

United States Marshal Patton of Cheyenne, with a force of deputies; a squad of railroad detectives; several postal inspectors, and sheriffs' posses from Carbon and Sweetwater counties are scouring the hills and plains over a wide territory in the belief that the two robbers are in hiding waiting a favorable opportunity to make their getaway with their haul.

May Be $60,000.

A checkup here of the missing registered packages indicated, officials said, that the stolen property would not exceed $10,000. Reports from Cheyenne, however, intimated that the loot would run as high as $60,000.

Secret service operatives are said to be working on the theory that the holdup was an "inside job," the robbery having been staged in a manner that indicated entire familiarity with train service and postal activities on the line between Cheyenne and Green River, and an acquaintance with the operation of the railroad semaphore signal system.

The holdup, the first in Wyoming since 1920, when "Bill" Carlisle terrorized this section with several train holdups, was staged between Rawlings and Wamsutter, 40 miles west of here.

Mother Sees Son Killed By Motor Truck

DENVER, Aug. 14.—(INS)—With his mother standing horror-stricken within a few yards, Emmet Arnold Redding, jr., aged 4, was instantly killed this afternoon when a heavy motor truck ran over him while the child was at play in the Park Hill district here. Mrs. Arnold, with Emmet and another son, Billy, aged 2 years, came to Denver from Dallas, Tex., to spend the summer. The driver of the truck, Vance Thompson, made heroic efforts to avoid hitting the child, who had run into the street. Thompson was summoned to appear at an inquest to be held Monday.

EXPECT CROWD AT RINGER HEARING

Condemned Youth Will Plead For His Life Monday.

Donald Ringer's appearance before the state pardon board in public session at 9:30 Monday morning is expected to draw an overflow gathering to the audience room of Governor McMullen's suite, where the hearing will take place. The man condemned to die for Carl Moore's murder will be permitted to make any statement he desires in support of his plea for clemency.

Ringer's appearance may be the last chapter in the proceedings inaugurated by his relatives and his attorney to have the death penalty set aside and life imprisonment substituted. No evidence has been presented thus far to establish his innocence of the crime for which he was convicted. The pardon board has been asked, however, to commute his sentence on the ground that he was not yet 18 years old when the Moore murder occurred.

Concert At Van Dorn Park Today

The Nebraska State band under the direction of Arthur J. Babich will give its regular Sunday program this afternoon between 4 and 6 o'clock at the Van Dorn park near Tenth and Van Dorn streets. This is the fifth of a series of concerts given by the Nebraska State band during the latter part of the summer.

Million In Jewels Back To Nobleman

By International News Service.

BUDAPEST, Aug. 14.—The ennobled family of Nadasdy has recovered treasures worth more than a million dollars which were stolen during the 1919 Communist invasion of Hungary. Then Count Nadasdy succeeded in collecting all of the family wealth which was at his castle at Nasdasdladany, where he packed it into ten iron boxes and dropped them into the moat.

When a year later the Bolshevikshad been driving out, only two of the boxes were found, the others having been stolen. A short time ago some of the family jewels were offered for sale to a Budapest merchant which lead to the discovery that eight boxes had been stolen by a group of peasants. They were restored to the family almost intact.

WEALTHY MAN IS ALLEGED SLAYER

Son of Prominent Vancouver Residents Charged With Derham Murder.

CANTERBURY, England, Aug. 14. — (I. N. S.) — Alphonse Austin Smith, aged 37, said to be the son of prominent Vancouver residents and grandson of Sir Frank Smith, was arrested here today on charges of having shot and killed John Derham, a well known English hockey player.

Smith is understood to have married Ruth Bonaparte, daughter of Charles Bonaparte, former United States Attorney General, in 1912, separating in 1918.

Smith was once extremely wealthy, having inherited a fortune from his grand father.

Derham had long been an intimate of Smith. The shooting followed a quarrel between the two.

Dan Moody Opens Run-off Campaign Talks At Dallas

DALLAS, Tex., Aug. 14.—(INS)—Despite Governor Miriam A. Ferguson's failure to carry out her preelection challenge to resign if he beat her by one vote in the recent primary for the democratic nomination for governor, Dan Moody, young attorney general, is going into the run-off primary, which was necessary under Texas laws when he failed to poll a majority of the votes cast, determined to "wipe the tarnish from the good name of Texas," he old a mass meeting here today.

In opening his campaign for the run-off Moody stated that there had never been any doubt as to the definiteness of his acceptance of Governor Ferguson's challenge, despite the fact that she claims his acceptance of "Jim's challenge in his wife's name" was not an acceptance of her challenge at all.

The gasoline tax and the public school fund, which have been the chief points of attack by the Fergusons on Moody, were discussed in his speech, which warned that Fergusonism is still the issue."

Car Rolls Down Hill Over Curb

Dr. H. W. Orr's touring car slipped down a hill near Twentieth and Sumner streets Saturday evening while he was visiting relatives at 1721 South Twentieth street.

The brake on the car slipped off and the automobile ran about half a block, coming to a halt when it ran over a curbing near Sumner streets. The car was not damaged, Dr. Orr said.

REVOLVER IS MISSING BIT OF EVIDENCE

Pistol of Known Caliber Link Prosecutor Simpson Needs To Make Hall-Mills Murder Case Showing Complete.

CHEERED BY APPARENT SUCCESS FIRST BATTLE

Confinement Of Stevens, Carpender, and Mrs. Hall Without Bail Pending Grand Jury Hearing, Aim Special Attorney.

SOMMERVILLE, N. J., Aug. 14. —(I.N.S.)—The missing link of the chain of evidence wound about the slayers of Rev. Edward W. Hall and Mrs. Eleanor R. Mills is being sought by Alexander Simpson, special prosecutor, tonight. A revolver of known caliber is the missing bit of evidence. Four years ago it was in the possession of Azarias Beekman, former prosecutor for Somerset county.

The first investigation ended, Beekman died and the revolver disappeared.

The home of Marcus Beekman, brother of the dead prosecutor, will be thoroughly search by Simpson's investigators.

Senator Simpson, cheered by his apparent victory in the opening court battle over the liberty of Willie Stevens, brother of rs. Frances Hall, and Henry Carpenter, cousis of Mrs. Hall, is prepared for a more decisive victory on Monda .

Stevens and Carpender, charged with the murder of Mr. Hall and Mrs. Mills, are in jail in Sommerville. Their preliminary hearing opened Friday afternoon before

Graves, Labor and Klan Candidate, Is Alabama High Man

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Aug. 14.—(INS)—With practically complete returns from Tuesday's democratic primary, Colonel Bibb Graves, majority in the gubernatorial race stood at more than 3,000 today. Counting first and second choice votes, Graves' majority mounted above the 10,000 mark.

Colonel Graves is a lawyer of Montgomery and a world war veteran. He ran on a platform of a nominal bond issue for good roads buildings and received the bulk of the support of oranized labor and the Ku Klux Klan. A charge that his opponents were favorable toward Al Smith's candidacy for the democratic presidential nomination and that they planned to deliver Alabama's support to Smith at the next convention, served to rally anti-catholic elements to his standard.

Hugo L. Black, Birmingham lawyer, the senatorial nominee, is generally conceded with receiving the support of the Alabama Klan in spite of an endorsement by the national klan officers of L. B. Musgrove who finished last in the contest.

BOY'S DEATH NOT DUE TO BEATING

Sioux City Men Arrested At Bloomfield Are No Longer Held.

CENTER, Neb., Aug. 14.—(UP)—Robert Strong and Pat Gorman of Sioux City, arrested in connection with the death Friday night of Delmer Poppe of Bloomfield, were discharged after a hearing here this afternoon. It was shown young Poppe, who was eight years old, was killed when he fell from an automobile.

In a statement by the county attorney, W. B. Funk, it was asserted that when the car in which the boy was riding struck a bump he was thrown out, falling on his head and fracturing his skull. It was further stated by the county attorney that the older brother of the dead boy had said that the two men who had been placed under arrest had pulled Delmer from the car following a quarrel, and had beaten and kicked him into insensibility, causing his death by this brutal treatment. This was not substantiated.

Abandons Plans to Swim Channel

DOVER, Eng., Aug. 14.—(UP)—Clara Nelle Barrett, New Rochelle N. Y., swimming instructor, temporarily abandoned her plans to attempt the English channel swim short y after 5 o'clock when a severe wind caused a choppy sea.

She had prepared to make a second attempt when favaroble weather was indicated earlier today.

Place Blame For Crash On A Small Nut

RIVERHEAD, N. Y., Aug. 14.—(I.N.S.)—A small nut which worked itself loose on a switch coupling caused the wreck of the Shelter Island express on the Long Island railroad at Calverton in which six persons were killed and more than two score injured, it was officially decided by Suffolk county authorities today.

The finding was returned by Assistant District Attorney A. G. Blue and Special Investigator Everett C. Petty.

The missing nut and a washer were found beside the track.

The investigation will be continued on Monday, it was announced.

Search was being made for the section men responsible for the condition of the tracks in the vicinity where the wreck occurred.

VOTE UNCHANGED BY MAIL BALLOT

Close Races In Lancaster Not Affected By Count Saturday.

Kier Nominated For Legislature Over Miss Muir By 53 Votes.

No changes were made in the county results of the primary election by the mail votes which were counted Saturday by the canvassing board.

Sarah T. Muir gained three votes on Max Kler for state representative in the Thirty-sixth district, the totals being Kler, 637, Muir, 584. J. R. Bennett added 79 votes, making his total in the Second district county commissioner race 1418 against 1226 for Ira Miller, who got 31 mail votes. In the Third district J. M. Cameron gained 16 votes for commissioner, making his total 791, as against 758 for L. R. Meyer, who got 6 votes by mail.

Two hundred twenty-eight ballots were sent out by County Clerk Morgan, but only 216 returned. There were 216 non-political bal-

CHICAGO POLICE USING CAUTION

Extra Rifle Squad Patrols District Where Attorney Lives.

Feared Sharbaro, Assistant Prosecutor, Marked By Gangland.

CHICAGO, Aug. 14.—(UP)—With the machine gun slaying of assistant State's Attorney Wm. McSwiggin still fresh in their minds, Chicago's police officials were particularly cautious tonight as three extra rifle squads patrolled the district where John Sharbaro another assistant state's attorney, lives.

Recent shootings and other acts of terrorism within the last few days have convinced the autorities that the underworld has marked Sharbaro for a fate similar to McSwiggin's.

A running gun battle took place on Michigan boulevard and Sharbaro was within a few feet of the battle.

Retail Credit Men Adjourn Session

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 14.(INS)—After endorsing the instalment plan of buying a and electing a full complement of officers, the Retail Credit Men's national association adjourned today until the 1927 meeting in Providence, R. I.

Officers elected were E. B. Heller of St. Louis, president; Leopold Meyer of Houston, first vice president, and J. R. Hewitt of Baltimore, second vice president. David J. Woodstock of St. Louis was re-appointed secretary-treasurer.

Dry Agents Will Comb Country for Bootleg Highups

ST. PAUL, Minn., Aug. 14. — Every available prohibition agent in the northwest territory has been ordered out to round up four men thought to be the higher-ups in the $500,000 moonshine distillery uncovered here late Friday, Major H. B. Wilcox, assistant prohibition administrator, said tonight.

Maps found in the office showed that the whiskey outfit sold its products in Minnesota, Wisconsin, Iowa, North and South Dakota.

"I am satisfied now, that this is the biggest still ever raided anywhere in the United States" said Major Wilcox tonight. "We have no official information indicating that anything anywhere approaches it in size has ever been located."

BOY SERIOUSLY INJURED BY CAR

Harold Shea, 10, Suffers Fractured Skull But Expected to Recover.

Say Rode Bicycle Into Path of Stahl's Auto at Fourteenth and South.

Harold Shea, 10-year newspap? carrier boy was critically injured when he was struck by a car near Fourteenth and South streets a. 5:30 Saturday afternoon.

The boy is at the Lincoln General hospital suffering from a fractured skull and numerous bruises and cuts. Dr C. E. Emerson says he has a fair chance for recovery. He was resting well late in the evening.

The boy, according to witnesses, rode on his bicycle directly into the path of an automobile. He was knocked to the pavement and the car passed over him, but the wheels did not touch his body.

The car which struck the boy was driven by C. C. Stahl, 2224 Bradfield drive. He was driving a Packard sedan east on South street.

Drives Car Over Curb.

"I hardly know what happened," he said. "I don't know where the boy came from. I saw him in front of my car and knew I was going to hit him. The only thing I could do was to drive up on the curb to avoid running over him.55

Mr. Stahl drove his car between a pole and a guy-wire onto the south curb, damaging one fender and a running board.

Oliver Splichal, 1228 Plum street, was a witness to the accident. Splichal works at the Continental Oil company's filling station No. 7, on the corner of Fourteenth and South. His father is manager of the station.

"Harold rode his bicycle out of our driveway on South street and appeared to be about to turn to the west," Oliver said. It was impossible for Mr. Stahl to stop. The boy was thrown or dra ed about 25 feet, and Mr. Stahl's car ran over the boy. Harold did not move, and the body of the car passed over him without the wheels touching him."

Splichal said Harold rode his bicycle out from behind a Ford truck at the curb directly into the path of Mr. Stahl's car.

After driving his car to the curb Mr. Stahl ran to the prostrate form of the boy, hailed the first passing car, and rushed him to the Lincoln General hospital. There he was attended by Dr. Emerson.

Harold is the son of Mrs. John Shea, 1455 Sumner streets.

Chief Says Public Will Be Surprised In Gem Theft Case

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 14.—(I. N.S.)—With the prediction that "people will be surprised when they learn who is suspected," Chief of Police Sweeney today promised an early arrest in the Vanderbilt Gem theft which is now believed to involve $750,000 worth of jewels.

"We have a few straws which show which way the wind blows and hope to get somebody soon," said Chief Sweeney.

Discovery of a stout rope found dangling over the cliff in the rear of the estate of Mrs. Ogden Goelet not more than 100 feet from "the breakers," villa of Brigadier General and Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, today led investigators to the theory that the gem robbers escaped by means of the rope to a waiting motorboat.

COX WRITES ON DEBT PAYMENTS

LONDON, Aug. 15.—(Sunday)—America cannot afford, morally or personally to have the rest of the world burdened by debts for sixty years, James M. Cox, former governor of Ohio and democratic presidential nominee in 1920, told the English public today in a signed article in the Sunday Express.

Cox wrote the article in response to the request of the editor of the paper that he explain the American viewpoint regarding war debts. The article was captioned "Live and let live."

"It is possible," wrote Cox, "that the future economic situation of all nations would be so satisfactory as to make debt payment a relatively easy matter. This in the present state of the world, however, savors too much of a Utopian dream."

"It harty would be fair to assume that President Coolidge and Frank B. Kellogg, secretary of state, as individuals, would have preferred, the present terms of the debt settlements.

"Nothing is so subservient to the relationships which ought to exist between the nations of the world than false patriotism—the inevitable product of jingoism. We must forget the irritating incidents of the present and concentrate for the best ure of the future. I am sure that much of the clamor now surrounding the debt question would be modified if the European nations took the trouble to understand our difficulties."

TWO MINOR PARTIES DUE TO DISAPPEAR

Progressive and La Follette Independent Organizations Not Likely to Poll Enough Votes to Keep Alive.

MUST GET 5 PERCENT TO BE RECOGNIZED

Candidacy of Bryan For Governor, If Successful Thought Likely to Start Presidential Boom Two Years Hence.

Disappearance of the two minor political parties in Nebraska after this year's general election is forecasted by the small number of persons who voted their tickets at the state primaries last Tuesday. To all appearances no vitality remains in either the progressive or the La Follette independent organization, and it seems practically certain they will follow the prohibition party into oblivion next November.

Under an act passed by the legislature of 1925, a political party must poll at a general election not less than 5 per cent of the total vote in order to maintain its legal standing. There is not the slightest prospect that either of the groups mentioned will be able to do this; and unless they do they will not be entitled to primary ballots in 1928.

If the total vote of the state in November should be no more than 400,000—it was 471,600 in the presidential year of 1924—either the progressive or the LaFollette independent party will need 20,000 in order to stay alive. There is nothing to warrant the belief that they can come within a long distance of that mark. In the primary, their followings were inconsequential and scattering.

Each of them, however, has a candidate for governor in the field.

SEVERAL HURT IN A TORNADO

Ohio Storm Unroofs Houses, Tears Down Wires and Uproots Trees.

BELLAIR, O., Aug. 14.—(U. P.)—A severe wind storm swept Bellmont county near here late this afternono injuring several persons aund doing considerable property damage.

The storm was worse at Sunnyside, four miles distant according to meager reports. Telephone and telegraphic lines were ripped down isolating the affected area.

Does Much Damage.

SHADYSIDE, O., Aug. 14.—(INS)—A tornado hit this place about 2:30 o'clock this afternoon, doing considerable damage. The high wind almost completely wrecked the home of J. F. Campbell. The windows in the Shadyside bank were blown out. Four residence south of here are reported blown over.

Several homes were unroofed and many trees unrooted. All telelines are down. It could not be learned whether there was any loss of life.

Skirts to Go in Next Fifty Years Says Tarkington

LONDON, Aug. 14.—(I. N. S.—Fifty years hence the skirt, as an article of womens apparel, will have disappeared, according to Booth Tarkington, the famous novelist.

"The skirt, said Tarkington in an interview, "is a mere relic, a vestige, and I see no reason why it should remain. I expect to see the time when all women will habitually wear garments approximately the same as those worn by men.

"The element of modesty will not enter into it at all. Women are now determined to be on an equality with men."

Checks Small Fire With Garden Hose: Damage Is Slight

What might have been a serious fire was averted Saturday evening when C. E. Soderholm, 1407 Q street, played a stream of water from a garden hose on a blaze in the basement of his home, preventing the flames from spreading. Firemen arrived and extinguished the fire.

A small child left the basement of the house shortly before the fire was discovered, and it is believed he was playing with matches and caused a box of papers to catch fire. The heat melted connections on a gas meter and the flames ignited the escaping gas.

The damage was slight.

RESIGNATIONS OF OFFICIALS TO BE ASKED

Failure To Enforce Religious Laws In Mexico Prompts Attorney General To Take Drastic Action---Admits Has Ordered All Department Agents To Resign Not Later Than August 20---Were Warned.

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 14.—(I. N. S.)—Attorney General Ortega tonight admitted he had not been able to enforce the government religious regulations because officials and attaches of the department of justice refused to prosecute effectively and agents neglected their duties in seeking evidence.

The admission was contained in an order requiring all officials of the department as well as all agents throughout the entire country to submit their resignations not later than August 20.

Gave Many Warnings.

This sweeping movement followed repeated warnings by the attorney general, despite which government employes continued to move slowly and ineffectually against those responsible for the Catholic boycott called in protest against the Mexican religious regulations.

As a result Ortega decided that the only remedy was to demand collective resignations with a week's grace. He then will retain those officials who have been active, or may become sufficiently active during the trial period to warrant at least temporary retention, and accept the resignations of all the others.

Explaining his action, Attorney General Ortega said:

Dislikes Summary Action.

"Respect for the profession of my brother lawyers makes me reluctant to summarily dismiss officials who have been lax in enforcing laws on account of religious scruples. I do not even want to request individual resignations, which would be tantamount to announcing that the services of the men who were asked to resign were unsatisfactory.

"But under the collective resignation plan those who feel unable conscientiously to prosecute Catholic offenders against the religious regulation may take the path of honorable retirement from office.

"Inactivity of any officials during the coming week will be sufficient notice that they desire me to

Divorced Husband Ruth Wynne Jailed On Murder Charge

LONDON, Aug. 14.—(UP).—Alfonzo Francis Austin Smith, who in 1913 married Ruth Wynee, daughter of Robert J. Wynne, former postmaster-general of the United States, was arrested here today charged with the murder of John Adam Derham, his wealthy chum and school mate at Eton.

Derham was found in a critical condition from bullet wounds. He was rushed to a hospital but died shortly later.

Smith was divorced by Ruth Wynne in 1922 and he later married Catherine White. Police alleged that Smith was jealous of the attentions paid the present Mrs. Smith by Derham.

Finds Wife In Company Another Man; Kills Him

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Aug. 14.—(I.N.S.)—Returning home to find his wife in the company of another man, Fred Janke, 37, shot and killed S. McKibben, 32, shortly before midnight tonight, he told police.

Janke, his wife, Elizabeth, 27, and his 14-year-old son, Fred, were arrested. Janke will be arraigned on a murder charge tomorrow, while the wife and son will be held as material witnesses.

Janke said his wife and McKibben had been carrying on a clandestine love affair for some time and that he had warned them the affair must cease.

GOVERNOR'S DAY AT GUARD CAMP

McMullen Will Review State Troops at Ashland Sunday.

This is "governor's day" at the Nebraska national guard camp at Ashland, and hundreds of visitors are expected to be there for the big event of the encampment—the reviewing of the troops on dress parade by Governor McMullen. After two weeks of continuous drill and training, the organizations are in shape to put up their best front as they pass before their commander in chief.

The Sunday program will be full of features for Governor McMullen to inspect. He will address the guardsmen and speak in appreciation of their service to state and country by subjecting themselves to the rigors of military life.

A year ago, Company C of Beatrice, the governor's home town, won the competitive drill cup, the victory being celebrated later by a banquet given the men when they returned home. This trophy is usually presented by the governor in camp.

On Monday, the troops will break camp and return to their respective stations. Adjutant General Paul, who has been in command of the camp, and his staff assistants, together with the regular army instructors assigned to the Nebraska national guard, will be back in their offices at the capitol Monday afternoon or Tuesday morning.

SHEFFIELD MAY QUIT HIS POST

Believed Ambassador Will Resign Because Of Kellogg's Attitude.

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 14.—(UP)—United States Ambassador James R. Sheffield w as enroute for Washington today to confer with secretary of State Frank B. Kellogg and President Coolidge.

It was believed here that Sheffield would not return to Mexico since it was known that during his ambassadorship he found himself in considerable disagreement with the attitude of the state department with relation to the multitude of vexatious problems at issue between the two republics.

Sheffield was understood to desire a more definite policy than the state department was prepared to adopt regarding American rights and their alleged infringement by recent Mexican laws affecting ownership of land and the mining of minerals and pumping of oil.

Bob Dalton, In Detroit to Wed, Held By Police

DETROIT, Mich., Aug. 14.—(I. N. S.)—Bob Dalton, who, as a member of the notorious Dalton brothers, brought terror into all parts of the west, was arrested here tonight.

When arrested Dalton was "toting" a long-barrelled caliber revolver which had 16 notches along the butt.

"You needn't point your guns at me," Dalton declared to the officers. "I haven't killed a man in ten years. I'm not in any racket. I've done nothing that I know of to be arrested."

Dalton was then informed that police in Amarillo, Tex., had sent the following telegram to Detroit officers:

"Please hold Bob Dalton. Also car."

"My automobile was bought on credit just before I left Texas. Maybe there's some mix-up about it," Dalton said.

Then, shyly he explained that he stopped in Detroit to propose marriage to a Detroit woman.

EGYPT FORCES EXCAVATONS TO QUIT SEARCHES

High Handed Methods Of Antiquities Department Are Cause.

Prof. Petrie to Move Staff to Palestine After Squabble.

LONDON, Aug. 14.—(I. N. S.)—As a direct consequence of recent squabbles with the Egyptian Antiquities department, Professor Sir W. M. Flinders Petrie, the world famous English Egyptologist, has decided to abandon all excavation work in Egypt and transfer his staff to Palestine.

Archaeologists working in Egypt are said to be constantly irritated by the "high handed" action of the newly-formed Antiquities department, which has at its head, Pierre Lacua, a Frenchman.

It is stated that they are being asked to sign agreements with Lacua which give his department practically despotic powers over almost every detail of their work.

Professor Petrie has intimated that he considers some of the regulations to be so ludicrous that it is impossible for him to make any further plans for work in Egypt, for the same reason a party of skilled American excavators at Thebes have abandoned all excavation work, and there is a likelihood of their excavations withdrawing.

"I am bringing my fifty years work in Egypt to a close this year," said Professor Petrie in an interview here, "and am going to South Palestine, where every assistance is given to archaeologists. The dog-in-the-manger attitude taken up by the authorities in Egypt has made it impossible for me to continue my work. The situation there from the point of view of archaeologists is nothing short of farcial.

"The old law concerning finds made by excavators was that the finder should have half of what he found. The other half was taken by the government. That was fair enough, although the government generally took the better half. New laws introduced empower th government to take everything the excavator found so long as his expenses were paid. That meant that the government could take anything of great interest and simply give the archaeologist back his expenses. These regulations, however, were only once put into force.

"Now, however, Lucua requires that no workmen shall be employed without official sanction for each individual man. No visitors may be admitted to one's excavations without the same official sanction, and one may not employ a European on the work unless he too has been individually sanctioned by the Antiquities Department.

Strict Rules.

"An excavator may not put up any shed or building on the site of his work without first consulting and submitting the plan of such a building to headquarters. Every find made by an excavator, under the new agreement which he is required to sign, has to be placed at the disposal of the director of the Department of Antiquities. The agreement also gives the director the right to appoint a native inspector to oversee the work, while the excavator has to pay the man's salary.

"A further rule instituted by the authorities says that no workman may be paid for any small finds he makes. The results has been that hundreds of small specimens which would normally have been preserved are being overlooked by the native workers.

"I have always paid my men the best value for the finds they make. This made them careful not to overlook anything, and also resulted in the careful handling of finds. Now, site after site is being ruined."

Refugees Tell Stories of Persecution of Mexicans

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Aug. 14.—(UP)—The ingenuity of fifteen nuns who donned trim wigs and colorful dresses enabled them to escape from persecution in Mexico.

They told here today a story of persecution of the sisters of their order at Guadalajara by Mexican officials, claiming that children between 14 and 16 years old, under the jurisdiction of these sisters, were placed in "immoral resorts."

The nuns all said that they hoped to return to Mexico at the first indication of abatement in the war now on between church and state.

Ordered to leave their convent orphanage at Santillo in eight hours time by Mexican officials, and spurred on by reports of what had happened at Guadalajara, the nuns disguised themselves in wigs loaned by friendly townspeople and in costumes furnished by faithful peasants, were ready to leave in four hours time, according to the story told by the mother superior.

"We had only a little money," the mother superior said, "but we managed to pay our way to Laredo, Texas, and there resumed the garb of our order. Railroads furnished us free transportation here."

Their first act upon arriving in St. Louis, was to seek out a confessor, the Rev. Father W. C. Lilly, of St. Louis university. Leaving here this morning, they were due to reach Cincinnati, Ohio, at 6:25 p. m.. From there they plan to go to Wheeling, West Virginia, and thence to Toronto, Oot.

wearing caps and overalls, boarded the train at Rawlins. Donning masks, they concealed themselves in the storage mail car adjoining the car where the clerks, A. J. Miller and Jack Madigan, were working on the mail.

Shortly after the train pulled out of Rawlins at 1:05 a. m., Clerk Madigan was held up as he entered the storage car. The bandits flourishing large caliber revolvers, escorted Madigan back to the work car where both Miller and Madigan were bound hand and foot.

Slashing the registered mail pouches, more than twenty in all, the two robbers scattered the contents of the bags around the floor of the car leisurely picking out valuable packages. Their task accomplished, the two men left the train a mile east of Wamsutter, where the semaphore signal had been turned to the "danger" side, causing the train to stop.

Accomplice at Signal.

It is believed the robbers had an accomplice stationed at the semaphore and that the bandits fled from this point in a waiting automobile.

Miller and Madigan, tied to their working tables, were unable to give the alarm and the train crew knew nothing of the holdup until they reached Rock Springs. At that station their plight was discovered when the mail car was not opened for delivery and receipt of mail.

The alarm was quickly spread and within a few hours the countryside was alive with officers and volunteer citizens, all heavily armed, searching for the desperadoes. No trace of them had been found at a late hour tonight.

Was Carefully Planned.

ROCK SPRINGS, Wyo., Aug. 14.—(U. P.)—The two bandits who conducted a daring robbery of a fast mail train of the Union Pacific railroad and escaped with an undeterminable amount of valuables and money, were still at large tonight.

Posses from three counties, consisting of sheriff's officers, postal inspectors and private citizens, all heavily armed, searched the surrounding country side but discovered no trace of the robbers.

Railroad officials described the robbery as one of the most carefully planned holdups in the annals of railroading in this state. They believe confederates assisted the two men by throwing a block signal at Wamsutter to force the train to slow down to permit their escape.

It has not been definitely determined, however, whether the two robbers jumped from the train at Wamsutter or got off at Rock Springs.

REVOLVER IS MISSING BIT OF EVIDENCE

County Judge Frank L. Cleary. The hearing adjourned after a half-dozen witnesses were heard and will be resumed at 10 o'clock Monday morning.

Senator Simpson, heretofore the much "razzed" prosecutor, became the highly praised prosecutor after Friday's hearing. He was relentless in his examination of the witnesses and he spiced his comments with witty side remarks in an accent reminiscent of the Bowery and known hereabouts as "pure Joisey."

Confinement without bail until there is a grand jury hearing on the cases against Stevens and Carpender was the aim of the prosecutor. He plans to have Mrs. Hall placed behind the bars pending a grand jury hearing if he is successful in keeping her brother and cousin in custody. All three face murder charges.

The telephone exchange in Somerville has armed guard posted over it day and night. The guard was ordered today by the presecutor in an attempt to stop the leaks of information.

A Suprise Witness.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Aug. 14.—(U. P.)—The prosecution in the reopened Hall-Mills investigation based its hopes tonight on Willard Straub, of New Brunswick, a surprise witness, who investogators said, admitted he was within seventy-five feet of the scene at the time the crime was supposed to have been committed.

Straub is said to have remained reticent about the incident for four years to shield the name of a woman who accompanied him to the Phillips farm that night.

Tonight Straub was in the Somerset county jail under $3,000 bail to insure his appearance as one of the state's star witnesses. State Senator Simpson, special prosecutor said he believed Straub will confirm the identification of at least one of the principals charged with the slaying, all of whom have been identified by Mrs. Jane Gibson, (pig woman) and main link in the state's case against Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall, the slain rector's wife, her brother "Willie" Stevens and her cousin, Henry Carpender.

Since Mrs. Gibson made her dramatic identification at a preliminary hearing yesterday of Stevens and Carpender, Senator Simpson has been optimistic over the strength of the case. He announced there would be other important witnesses to question for whose warrants have been issued should they refuse to be questioned.

A cousin of Mrs. Hall, Stevens and Henry Carpender, termed the arrest of Stevens and Carpender as "a shocking outrage."

EIGHT DEAD IN BLAST.

BARI, Italy, Aug. 14.—(I.N.S.)—Eight are dead as the result of an explosion which wrecked a fireworks factory here today.

PARTIES DUE TO DISAPPEAR

who will doubtless make some kind of a bid for votes during the campaign. On the LaFollette slate there is also a candidate for congress in the third district. The progressive ticket has a nominee for state railway commissioner and two for congress ,one in the first and one in the second district.

Under the law, the tickets could be filled out by the party state committees if there be such bodies in exixtence. Up to date, the committees have been as moribun as the parties themselves.

The political fight in Nebraska, therefore, bids fair this year to be a square one between the republicans and the democrats, with no side issues to complicate it, such as the LaFollette presidential candidacy of 2 years ago which pulled 106,000 voters away from the old party candidates.

The old practice of one candidate running on the tickets of two or more parties has been done away with by the Vance act of 1925. This makes every tub in state politics stand on its own bottom. Fusion is a thing of the past, and no party which does not have an independent membership and a permanent organization can survive.

In one particular, the Nebraska campaign this year takes on a national aspect. Should C. W. Bryan be able to come back as governor, after being out of political life for two years, it is commonly believed he will seek the presidential nomination of the democratic party two years hence, on the strength of having been elected governor twice in a normally republican state.

Reorganization of Forces Under Way By Chief Andrews

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14.—(I.N.S.)—L. C. Andrews, dry chief, today began a new reorganization of the federal prohibition service.

In the first day at his office since returning from England where he completed an anti-smuggling agreement with Great Britain, Andrews set the machinery in motion for establishment of a division of foreign control in the department.

If Secretary of State Kellogg approves, Harry J. Anslinger, American consul in the Bahama islands, will take over the new position, in addition to his regular dispomatic duties, Andrews said.

British Gobs Want Modernized Uniform

LONDON, Aug. 14.—(INS)—British "gobs" are petitioning the Admiralty to modernize their uniforms.

They want a raincoat, which can be worn in place of the present heavy oilskin, better fitting welted boots, a lighter pattern cap, an improved make of collar without points, and the abolition of the lanyard during working hours.

The last request is the outcome of changed conditions of service. The lanyard was a necessity in the days of sailing ships, but the men state that today it gets in their way.

Two Fight It Out With Pistols; One Dead Other Dying

NEW YORK, Aug. 14.—(I.N.S.) Facing each other twenty paces apart, two men, of Brooklyn, tonight fought a duel to the death in a public street. Each fired eight shots and each slumped to the pavement with eight bullet wounds in his body.

Joseph Circintiona died almost instantly and Carlo Piscatiello is in the hospital not expected to live. The two had ben the best of friends and had been together most of the afternoon and evening. They are said to have quarreled over a woman.

RESIGNATIONS OF OFFICIALS TO BE ASKED

accept their resignations. All who wish to remain in office must get busy and stay busy."

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 14.—(I.N.S.)—James R. Sheffield, American ambassador to Mexico, who is enroute to the United States today, via Vera Cruz and Havana, for the purpose of consulting with President Coolidge on the Mexican situation, carries with him the memory of one of the most enthusiastic demonstrations of respectful affection that has been accorded to any American ambassador to Mexico in recent years.

When the ambassador and Mrs Sheffield left Buena Vista station last night a huge crowd of Mexicans, Americans, British, German and other nationals stood in the rain to pay their respect to the departing diplomat.

Mexican officials was liberally represented by the presence of Admiral Jose Alvarez, chief of staff to President Calles, and three foreign office officials. The attitude of these officials was very cordial as they expressed their wishes that the departing ambassador have a safe journey.

To Test Status Sunday Baseball In Quaker City

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 14.—(INS)—A test of the legality of Sunday baseball here probably will be made August 22, E. J. Gatling, attorney for the Philadelphia Athletics, announced today. Following the ruling allowing the sesqui-centennial exposition to remain open on Sunday, Gatling applied to Mayor W. Freland Kendrick for permission to play Sunday baseball. The application was denied on the grounds that Sunday baseball was prohibited by statutes.

Gatling said he would confer once more with the mayor in an effort to get his permission. If it is not forthcoming he will seek an injunction restraining the mayor from interfering and schedule a game betwen the Athletics and another team yet to be chosen.

The law which prohibits Sunday baseball never has been put to a test, Mr. Gatling said.

RUSS POLITICAL BREACH LIKELY

Communists Determined to Strengthen Hold By Legalizing Party.

MOSCOW, Aug. 14.—The political breach in Russia may develop a real sensation at any moment now, it is believed here tonight after an open threat had been made in semi-official circles to legalize the communist party. It would seem the communists are determined not to weaken their hold upon Russia and that they will permit no opposition parties.

Jacob Ossofsky, who is one of the strongest adherents of the Trotsky school of political thought and who has been regarded as the mouthpiece of Trotsky, was given walking papers by the communist party today because he advocated policies far from those which form the ideals of the leaders of the communist party.

CONDITIONS IN INDUSTRY AND BUSINESS GOOD

Strong Upward Trend Is Noticeable On Stock Market.

Corn and Livestock Prices Rising In Western States.

By W. S. COUSINS.
(International News Service Financial Editor.)

NEW YORK, Aug. 14.—Further improvement in industry and business and an aggressive advance in both the railroad and industrial stocks on the New York stock exchange were the outstanding features of the week.

The cotton market was unable to withstand the effects of a large increase in the estimated production of the southern fields without a further contraction in prices, but textile markets showed considerable improvement as buying for the distant dates increased.

From Summer To Fall.

The weekend economic reviews pointed out that American business had passed from summer to the fall season in an unusually strong position.

Apprehension was felt Friday lest the unexpected advance in the Federal Reserve rediscount rate to 4 per cent would precipitate a sharp decline in stock prices. The market broke moderately Friday morning, but the embarrassment of the bearish traders was quite pronounced before the end of the session when stocks went booming for net gains of from 4 to 10 points.

General Motors To Fore.

General Motors held the spotlight during the bulk of the week's hectic trading. Forecasts of the dividend action of the directors of this corporation were fulfilled to the minute when the 50 per cent stock dividend was announced half an hour after the close of the market on Thursday. In the following session the bears attempted to stampede by selling the stock down to 196½, but it promptly rallied to 208.

Rails Show Strength.

The railroad stocks gave an excellent exhibition of their underlying strength and popularity this week under the lead of Atchison, New York Central and other high grade issues, the average of twenty representative stocks advanced to the highest level of the year. U. S. Steel and the independent steel shares, coppers, equipments and specialty stocks moved upward in response to good buying while oils continued reactionary.

Both in the listed market and the outstanding trading areas, as well as the floating of issues, bonds were listless and inclined to sag.

Time money loaned at 5 per cent this week for the first time this year.

Puts Damper On Bulls.

The bearish government report on winter wheat put a damper on bull sentiment in the local pit for the time being at least, and the bullish Canadian estimates, which some traders would offset figures, failed to have much effect.

With the buying demand checked, the market began to slip rapidly, the declines being accelerated by local pressure. Stop-loss selling was in evidence at times during the week and the market declined about 11c from the recent high figures.

Corn advanced sharply immediately after the government report, which forecast a crop of 2,577,000,000 bushels. This report sent December and May to new highs on the crop.

Oats sold off during the week because of increased hedging pressure and lack of buying of the cash grain.

Provisions are sharply lower this week.

Demand Is Good.

Demand was good for hogs practically all week and prices are unevenly 25c to 75c higher than a week ago. Light offerings showed the minimum gain, while strong weight butchers and packing sows exhibited full strength of the upturn. Light hogs sold as high as $13.75 with weighty butchers up to $13.60 and smooth light packing sows as high as $11.25. Receipts for the week were 107,000, lightest in three months, and 25,000 lighter than a week ago.

Cattle receipts for the week were estimated at 56,000, compared with 47,000 last week. In spite of the increased supply the market for fat steers was better. Shipping demand was broader and the local killers had strong orders for lightweights showing desirable beef quality.

Sheep receipts totaled 85,000 during the week against 68,000 last week. Early in the week the market sagged under the pressure of a liberal supply, but an upturn later brought values back 25c.

Autos Effect Market.

NEW YORK, Aug. 14.—(UP)—The automobile, as reflected in the sales, earnings and prospects of General Motors corporation, has brought the modern treasure hunters flocking to Wall street, always, in the vision of speculators, an Eldorado, where gold pours in streams.

A hectic week of trading, in which the largest melon in the stock market's history was cut, ended today in a burst of enthusiasm, with millions of dollars in paper profits the results.

United States Steel reached the highest price it has ever attained, selling at more than $156 a share, the average quotation for 20 trading stocks went to a new high record, but overshadowing all of the market turns was the advance of General Motors, new favorite of the street.

On Thursday, General Motors declared a 50 per cent stock dividend. For every two shares of the present stock held the stockholders will receive another share. And in addition, the directors saw fit to pay the regular $1.75 quarterly dividend on the new stock thus distributed, practically releasing the present issue on a $10.50 yearly dividend basis.

Traders also were inclined to believe further extra cash dividends will be made in the future.

An indication of the extent to which traders took the melon cutting by General Motors is indicated by the rise in the stock from the low point reached March 29 of $113.25 to the high of the past week of $225.75. Those who bought 100 shares at the low rate and sold at the higher one realized $11,250.

Delco Light Co. Salesmen Picnic At Antelope Park

Eighty-five salesmen of the Lincoln branch of the Delco-Light company attended a picnic given by the sales department at Antelope park Saturday afternoon.

A sales contest, prizes for which were to be announced at the picnic, was so close that the winners could not be named until deliveries on sales are made. A Chevrolet car, a Delco-Light plant, and a Frigidaire plant, were the first, second and third prizes to be given.

Tabulations up to Saturday afternoon showed Del J. Tripp, salesman for the concern at Hebron, in the lead, with L. J. Price of Lincoln and A. O. Kindschi of Clatonia following him. The prizes will be awarded as soon as final check-ups are made, according to Hale Koplin, sales manager at the Lincoln office.

The picnic Saturday included games and contests and a big picnic dinner, with dancing in the evening.

Some Corn Saved By Recent Rains

BEATRICE, Neb., Aug. 14.—According to reports reaching Beatrice Saturday rains which have fallen in Gage county during the past week have improved crop conditions. E. D. Cramer, living fifteen miles northeast of Beatrice, reports that two inches of rain fell at his place, and J. B. Claassen, residing ten miles south, says more than an inch visited that locality. Both say there will be some corn, probably enough with which to feed. Other reports from the county show that the corn crop was not entirely wiped out by te prolonged dry spell.

RAILROAD RENTS OLD BUILDING

For Use As Depot While the New Structure Being Built.

The two-story building at Seventh and P streets which was recently vacated by the Ridnour company when it moved into its new building, has been rented by the Burlington.

It will be put in use when the railroad begins wrecking its present depot preparatory to the building of its new million dollar station in Lincoln next spring. The old depot will be vacated about the first of the year according to the announced plans of the company.

The Ridnour building will probably be used as a ticket office and a waiting room, with the second floor as office quarters for a few of the departments. Details of the arrangement that will be made when the old depot is destroyed have not yet been completed.

The Ridnour building is located about a quarter of a block from the tracks.

Nebraska Grad Has Charge Of Oil Investigation

Graduate of the University of Nebraska, Donald Kelly, son of Mrs. Daniel Kelly, 340 South Twenty-seventh street, has become the head of a force of geologists carrying on investigations near Abilene, Texas, for the Marland Oil company of Denver.

Mr. Kelly and thre assistants are working in the Abilene territory this summer. After leaving the university here he worked in Bartlesville, Texas, and then went to the Marland company.

More Bad Hearts In New York State

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 14.—(I. N. S.)—Heart disease was responsible for one out of every five deaths in New York state in 1924, according to a statement just issued by the state health department.

Ten years ago diseases of the heart were responsible for one in seven deaths, in 1905 one death in ten, and in 1900, one in 13 deaths.

The health department said:

"Improvements in diagnosis explain, without doubt, a certain share of this increase. Of the thousands of 'sudden' deaths, and the deaths for which the cause was either not given or stated ambiguously, a goodly proportion is now credited to one or another type of heart trouble."

RAILROADS HAVE GREATER INCOME

First Half of Year Shows 16.9 Percent Gain.

Combined Net Income Of Five Carriers Is $49,219,711.

Remarkable prosperity for railroad companies operating in Nebraska and the middle west is indicated by published reports of their gross and net earnings for the first six months of 1926. The five principal carriers serving this state are shown to have realized a combined net income of $49,218,711 on their entire systems. This was a gain of $8,079,222 over the first half of 1925, or 16.3 per cent.

The Northwestern enjoyed the biggest increase—29.1 per cent. Next in order are the Burlington, 20.5 per cent; Missouri Pacific, 16.0; Rock Island, 10.8; and Union Pacific 4.7. The Union Pacific's ratio of gain is not so marked because it has been on a high level of prosperity for a number of years past, while some of the others have but recently recovered from financial troubles.

These five carriers which have a considerable portion of their mileage in Nebraska are credited for the six months ending June 30, 1926, with 10 per cent of the net earnings for all class 1 railroads in the United States.

The accompanying table shows how much each of them earned in the half-year period, and the gain over the same six months in 1925:

Burlington	$31,979,506	$2,866,425
Union Pacific	12,754,620	581,728
Northwestern	3,861,361	2,848,750
Rock Island	5,988,925	643,250
Mo. Pacific	8,732,749	1,474,101
	$49,219,711	$8,019,222

Gentlemen:

I have just received your check for $326.88 from your Agent Mr. Guy W. Secord, being the surplus earnings credited to my policy No. 23289 for $1,000.00 which I took out 20 years ago today.

This settlement I took in preference to the cash settlement which would have been $779.49, as it leaves me a paid up policy of $1,000.00 which will pay me an annual dividend as long as I live. I think this is a wonderful settlement in view of the fact that I have only paid in on the above policy the sum of $595.00, have had protection for 20 years, and now your check for $326.88 reduces the cost to $268.12.

I am more than pleased with the earnings and settlement of this policy and wish to thank you very sincerely for the check.

Very truly yours,

STEPHEN E. BECK.

"ACID BRIDE" IS IN SAN QUENTIN

Mrs. Day, Former Society Girl Is Now Prisoner 42,555.

Two-year Evasion Of Sentence Ends With Voluntary Surrender.

SAN QUENTIN PRISON, Calif., Aug. 14.—(INS)—The iron gates of San Quentin prison clanged today behind Mrs. Bernice Day, the "acid bride."

Surrendering late yesterday after a two-year fight to escape prison, the former Chicago society girl, who was convicted of hurling acid into the face of her husband, Darby Day, jr., arrived at San Quentin from Los Angeles to begin her sentence, one to 14 years.

Mrs. Day was dressed in a heavy cloak and wore a veil over her pale face. She did not hesitate as she passed through the portals of the prison.

Sensational Trial.

Mrs. Day was convicted after a sensational trial at Los Angeles. She appealed and the verdict was overturned, but this decision was reversed when carried to the higher courts.

It had been announced by her attorneys this week that the decision of the state supreme court would be appealed to the United States supreme court, but while preparations were being made for this, Mrs. Day surrendered and declared she was ready to begin serving her sentence.

Mrs. Day, declared to be the most beautiful prisoner who has ever entered San Quentin was assigned the number 42,555.

One of Twenty.

She was one of a squad of twenty received today from Los Angeles and this delayed her assignment of a number and the usual routine.

The prisoners were in charge of Deputy Sheriff King and Mrs. King was in particular charge of Mrs. Day.

It was said at the prison that after the customary day of observation, Mrs. Day would probably be assigned to waiting on the table.

Makes No Comment.

The prisoner had no comment to make after entering the prison, according to prison authorities other than to answer such questions as were asked.

However, it was said, she took a keen interest in the proceedings and her surroundings.

No statement was available at the prison concerning her probable cell assignment.

Darby, Senior, Indifferent.

CHICAGO, Aug. 14.—(INS)—Darby Day, sr., father-in-law of Mrs. Bernie Day, who was imprisoned in San Quentin today for throwing acid in the face of her young husband, Darby Day, jr., is as indifferent to the whole affair today as he was throughout the trial.

"Of course I'm sorry for the girl," he said when he was informed of the imprisonment of Mrs. Day. "But aside from that we have no interest in the case."

He refused to state what interest his son might have in the affair. He denied that there is a reconciliation measure going on between them. He asserted that his son felt sorry for the girl, and had told her "Goodbye, but that was all."

Mr. Day was quite indignant when he learned that attorneys for the girl planned to sue him for alienation of affections.

"If this talk keeps on, we have a few suits to file ourselves," he said. "It is defamation of character. We haven't said one word to influence our son one way or another. We have never prosecuted the girl. It was merely a matter for the state of California, and we could not help it."

Darby Jr., was "not available" today.

SERVICES FOR BANDIT MONDAY

Funeral For Reese Whittemore Will Be Conducted By Rev. Biggs.

BALTIMORE, Aug. 14.—(INS)—Funeral services for Richard Reese Whittemore, hanged for the murder of a prison guard, will be held Monday afternoon from the home of his brother, Rawlings V. Whittemore, jr., it was announced today.

Service will be conducted by Rev. Charles S. Biggs, Methodist Chaplain at the Maryland penitentiary, who was with Whittemore as he was led from his cell to the gallows.

The place of interment was not announced because the family wishes the services and burial to be private.

Grip of "Little Cicero" On Canton Damper On Clean-Up Of Mellett Murder Mystery

(Copyright 1926 by the International News Service.)

CANTON, O., Aug. 14.—(I. N. S.)—Absolute hold of Canton's "Little Cicero," on the public—and private—lives of the city and county officials here has halted the inquiry into the Don R. Mellett murder, Joseph R. Roach, national known clean-up attorney, declared to the International News Service today.

Evidence that should send several men to the electric chair or that should at least result in their conviction of first degree murder in connection with the Mellett assassination, has been kept from the consideration of the proper investigating bodies because of the close contact between certain Stark county and Canton city authorities, with the lords of the jungle, he declared.

Bring Desired Results.

Past — and present, blackmail plots, on which Roach intimated he had definite evidence, which were said to be directed against a person vitally interested in the investigation, were that the murder case should not reach a Stark county grand jury until publicity on the crime and murder itself, had died a natural death, said Roach, in substance.

Has Part In Murder.

The "ivory handled" revolver of foreign manufacture, reported first by the International News Service as having been used in the murder, played a most important part in the assassination, according to Roach and its owner, was today declared by the Chicago attorney as having participated in the crime.

"We are now mighty close to that revolver—the owner of which is known, who, according to evidence I have gleaned, was one of triggermen," Roach stated.

No Action Taken.

"Evidence in my possession that should have been gathered and submitted to a special grand jury days ago by Stark county authorities remains untouched," Roach emphatically stated.

"Is Patrick E. McDermott, the man wanted for questioning in connection with this murder, essential to the ultimate solution?" he was asked "Absolutely not," Roach replied.

"Would you be willing, if called, to go before a grand jury and reiterate the statements you have made and submit to the jurors the evidence you say you have gathered?' He was further questioned.

"Yes, answered the square jawed man who convicted scores of Indiana officials on charges of low violation and bribery.

There Is No Way.

"Is there any way, in your capacity as advisory counsel, to the acting chief of police, that would legally enable you to bring about the arrests of the murderers of Mellett or that you could personally present the case to a grand jury?"

"None," Roach replied.

It was pointed out to the Chicago investigators that Governor Vic Donahey, has been quoted as saying that he was not empowered to act in the Mellett case except should a liquor conspiracy develop that would involve city or county officials.

Plenty Room for Action.

"The governor will have plenty of legal room for definite action," Roach said.

Regarding the conference that Judge H. C. Pontius, former attorney of the slain publisher, and a "mystery witness" held with District Attorney A. E. Bernsteen, Cleveland, yesterday, Roach today declared that if "evidence revealed there is acted upon one of the most exceptional revelations in criminal history should be uncovered."

Roach repeatedly asserted his complete confidence in Bernsteen and his first assistant, Miles E. Evans, declaring that "they will see this case through to the bitter end, regardless of political and moneyed factions."

What Evidence Includes.

In the brief, the evidence which Roach claimed to have gathered included, according to his statements today, the following alleged facts:

That several Canton policemen will eventually be linked with the actual crime.

That a Canton detective drove a liquor truck from Cleveland to Canton, during the inception of the murder plot and that "Red" McDermott, alleged "Triggerman," accompanied the detective on the liquor truck trip here.

Flaunts Flag of Scorn.

That despite the investigation carried on here during the past four weeks the lawless element has flaunted the flag of score in the face of police department by continuing, unabated, its illegitimate practices.

That a huge whiskey and narcotic bootlegging ring, evidently a part of a Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Toledo, Detroit and Chicago conspiracy, existed here, presumably under the protection of certain law enforcement agencies.

Are Marking Time.

While Roach was making these startling disclosures, operatives under Ora Slater, Cincinnati detective, in charge of the investigation, were admittedly "marking time" until McDermott is captured.

County Prosecutor C. B. McClintock was preparing to go before the grand jury which is scheduled to meet Monday. He has subpoenaed eight newspapermen who he hopes will throw some light on alleged affidavits which were claimed to have connected several prominent persons with purchases of whiskey.

U. S. TO PROTECT RIGHTS IN MEXICO

Government to Guard Americans But Keep "Hands Off" Church Trouble.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14.—(INS)—The United States will take steps to ensure protection of the property and personal rights of all Americans in Mexico during the present church controversy, it was revealed at the state department today when a group of Catholic emissaries called to protest against the church edict of the Calles government.

The American policy in the church crisis, however, will not be definitely determined, it was added, until after Ambassador Sheffield returns to the United States with a confidential report for President Coolidge and the state department. There were indications, however, that the American government will maintain its "hands-off" attitude.

With this message to a delegation of Catholic churchmen, Secretary of State Kellogg left the capitol enroute to Paul Smith's, N. Y., to lay before the president a copy of the resolutions adopted by the Knights of Columbus, which requested the state department to withdraw recognition of the Mexican government.

In returning here, Ambassador Sheffield will also bring back a report on the Calles government's attitude toward modification of the Mexican anti-alien land laws.

TAKE STEPS TO STOP KILLINGS

Detroit Increases Number Police On Duty In Underworld.

DETROIT, Mich., Aug. 14.—(U. P.)—Increased police guard over Detroit's underworld was ordered late today to frustrate possible resumption of a bitter bootleg feud for control of the liquor traffic to approximately 15,000 blind pigs, here.

The order followed four murders and two spectacular street shootings this week, which brought the year's total of known dead to twenty-two.

Officials of the police department admitted there probably were more dead, secretly buried, or weighted and drowned in Detroit river, scene of the traffics greatest activity.

Others Tell Fish Stories For Dawes

OMAHA, Aug. 14.—(U.P.)—Somewhat tanned and weather beaten from many hot days spent out of doors, Vice President Charles G. Dawes passed through here this afternoon on his return trip to Chicago from Wagon Wheel Gap, Colo.

The vice president admitted he had caught "over a hundred mountain trout" at Goose creek canyon, which is 180 miles south of Denver. He talked guardedly evidently fearing to overshadow the record made by another famouss fisherman at Paul Smith's, New York.

Others in the party declared he caught more than 200 trout, tossing those which measured less than ten inches back into the water.

Lincoln Man Is Grand Officer Of Order of Eagles

Gus Beschorner of this city, was appointed deputy grand president o the Fraternal Order of Eagles and organizer for Nebraska at the twenty-eighth annual convention of the Grand Aerie of the lodge at Seattle, Wash., which closed Saturday, according to information received by him.

The million dollar Eagle home, recently constructed, was dedicated in the course of the convention. Michael O. Burns, attorney of Hamilton, O., was elected grand worthy president of the order.

The delegates enacted a law recognizing ladies' auxiliaries of the order, according to the message received here.

SEARCHING FOR "EYE WITNESS"

Prosecutor In Gaines Murder Trial Looking for "D. B. Jones."

SEATTLE, Wash., Aug. 14.—(UP)—An intensive search was being made by the prosecution tonight to locate the mysterious "D. B. Jones, of Oklahoma," "eye witness" to the slaying of Sylvia Gaines.

If the witness can be located and his story found to be authentic, Prosecutor Ewing Colvin said, he will be called to testify against Wallace C. Gaines, on trial for the murder of his daughter, a pretty Smith college graduate.

The search for Jones started upon the prosecuting attorneys advice that Jones was in Olympia, Wash. In a letter received by the prosecutor. The letter waspostmarked Olympia, Wash.

With the murder trial gone over until Monday, the defense was marshalling its forces. When court resumes, it is expected that an effort will be made to attack the testimony of the state's surprise witness, Harry R. Wurster, an automobile mechanic.

Gaines' car was said to have been parked near Green lake, near the spot where Miss Gaines was beaten and choked to death the night of June 16.

What course will be followed in presentation of defense evidence Gaines' attorneys would not reveal. They did admit, however, that they will rely on the testimony of Dr. Tracy, who is reported to have examined Gaines at the county jail.

FIND NO PROFIT IN LOAFING HENS

Value Of Culling Is Demonstrated In Pawnee County.

Handling Of Poultry On Scientific Basis Proves Its Value.

(Special to The Star.)

PAWNEE CITY, Neb., Aug. 14.—First to Pawnee county came the Nebraska poultry special with its exhibits and missionaries in the better chickens cause; then came representatives from the state university showing how to pick out the non-producers, and this week from records kept on the farm flocks exiled comes tangible evidence of the profit accruing through the new program that calls not for more chickens, but for better ones.

At two farms near Pawnee City the culling demonstrations under direction of the extension department of the university were given before large crowds of interested farmers and farm women. At the Williamson dairy farm, two miles east of here, 285 chickens composed the farm flock that had been chosen for culling. For a week before the visit of the state experts, records were kept of eggs produced and the 285 hens laid an average of 109 eggs a day.

The day of the clinic interested neighbors watched and learned why thumbs were turned down on 68 of the flock, and it saw the 68 labeled loafers crated to be sold. This week Mr. Williamson announces that the 217 hens left have continued to produce a daily average of 103 eggs, conclusive enough proof of the waste in feeding the 68 non-laying hens.

From the John Elwonger farm, four miles west of town, came the same story of decreased feeding costs and barely diminished egg production. Mrs. Elwonger's 160 Barred Rocks had been producing 60 eggs daily; 52 hens were tagged as slow producers and sold, and while the first week following the culling the hens laid slower than usual from their handling, she now receives between 60 and 70 eggs daily from a flock of 52 less hens than was originally fed.

Chicken raising in Pawnee county years ago was a very small side line that "the woman was interested in." For the past year the exports of poultry products have totaled staggering figures, and the steady, year-round income from the farm's new crop which drouth nor dry weather affects makes its profits, of pin money, at least "safety" pin money in this year of withered corn fields.

PIONEER IS CALLED.

(Special to The Star.)

NEBRASKA CITY, Neb., Aug. 14.—George Wright, 91, a resident of this county since 1855, died at the home of his daughter south of this city late Friday, after an illness of several months. Death was due to a stroke of paralysis which he suffered early in the spring while visiting in California. He is survived by three daughters, one sister and a brother, residents of this community.

Monster Catfish In Elkhorn River Outwits Anglers

(Special to The Star)

NELIGH, Neb., Aug. 14.—A prize has been offered by the Tri-State Utilities company, to the man or woman who catches the big fish that has been getting away from the local anglers the past few weeks. This organization through its representatives offered a prize of $20. There are no strings attached only when the fish is landed that the successful one must make affidavit of its catch and the weight. The offer holds good until Sept. 10.

Several of the local sports have almost had him on the scales the pask week or more. R. G. Kryger was the first to report of having hooked him, and claims he was the biggest he ever saw. Night Officer Hartman lost several feet of line, including a perfectly good hook and sinker, trying to make a landing. Ase Keezer was dragged into the river Wednesday evening when he had him hooked, but he got away as usual. This fellow is of the largest catfish variety, according to those who have seen him.

Fishing space at the Elkhorn here at the mill dam has been taken up for the past week by parties hoping to make the catch and win the prize.

Shape Plans For Gage County Fair

(Special to The Star.)

BEATRICE, Neb., Aug. 14.—Plans are shaping up nicely for the Gage county fair to be held here August 24 to 27. About $25,000 has been spent in new buildings, improving the track, etc., which will make the grounds as good as any in the state. The exhibits promise to be the best in years, and a good racing card will be offered from day to day.

Antelope County Farmers' Picnic

(Special to The Star.)

NELIGH, Neb., Aug. 14.—Big preparations are being made for the seventh annual picnic of the Antelope county farmers' union, which is to be held in this city at Riverside park next Wednesday morning. Local anMager A. E. Graybiel estimates that the crowd this year will reach 10,000. An elaborate program, both of things which appeal to the mind and also of sports, has been scheduled.

FARRIS' CAREER WAS VARIED ONE

Aged and Wealthy Kearney Man Had Had a Very Wide Experience.

(Special to The Star.)

KEARNEY, Neb., Aug. 14.—Reputed to be a millionaire, but leaving an estate valued at slightly less than a quarter of a million, Swan Farris, 90, who came to this country from Sweden when 19 years old, was buried here today.

Farris, during the course of his career, acted as a raftsman on the Mississippi, assisted in building levees on the lower river and engaged in the transport of slaves. As an express driver he conveyed negroes from Arcade hall, New Orleans, to debarkation points, following their auctions. As a contractor he built many of the big levees along the Mississippi river and canals in southern states.

At one time he was the owner of 10,000 acres of Phelps county land and at the time of his death he still owned a considerable acreage in that county and Kearney county. Although making several trips into this part of the country before it was settled, he did not make his home in Kearney until 1888.

Mr. Farris acquired a library of rare books said to be unequalled in this part of the country. There are nearly 100 volumes published before 1550, including prayer books and Bibles written and illustrated by hand by monks, before printing art was invented. He was also the possessor of one of the finest collections of gold coins in the country, dating back as far as records of gold coins are available.

Mr. Farris left no immediate relatives to inherit his vast estate, but he had indicated to friends that he would leave his personal belongings to Swedish institutions of learning.

Abandoned Coupe Found In Woods

(Special to The Star.)

NEBRASKA CITY, Neb., Aug. 14.—An abandoned Ford coupe was found in a clump of underbrush on a farm near the Missouri river four miles north of this city late Friday. Numbers from a Ford coupe stolen from O. A. Kenyon of this city, were found on this car. Sheriff Ryder is trying to trace the ownership of the abandoned car. The thieves evidently drove the Kenyon car to this point, changed numbers and then disappeared in the newer machine.

RAIN MAY SAVE LATE CORN CROP

Local Grain Men Think Fair Yield May Be Attained.

Much Good Grain In East and Extreme West Sections.

The effect of last week's rains on Nebraska's 1926 corn crop was little more than to give it "a fighting chance," Lincoln grain men said, Saturday.

It was the consensus of opinion that, without the rain, the crop would have been practically lost, but many grain men were reluctant to say whether the rain came in time to save a great portion of the crop.

C. S. Miller, local representative of Armour and Company, 607 First National Bank building, said at the best the quality of the corn will be in question.

"In sections where late corn has started it will take ideal ripening conditions to bring the crop to a satisfactory outcome as to its real quality," Mr. Miller said. "One half the state, even now is conceded of very little value as to the corn crop. There is much good grain in the east and in the extreme west sections of the state. Reports from the central portion are very discouraging.

"The state department of agriculture, in its August crop report, conceded 160,210,000 bushels of corn, as against 236,000,000 last year and a five year average of 218,000,000 bushels. Much deterioration may have happened, since the publication of that report, which could have reduced even that estimated figure. No doubt the rain stopped further deterioration but increasing of yield depends entirely on weather conditions from now on."

E. N. Mitchell, president of the Wilsey Grain Company, 1017 Terminal building, said the rain will help corn which has eared, to a great extent. Late corn, which has not been burned, is fairly good and will yield a good crop unless it encounters an early frost. In his opinion prospects are excellent for a good crop in the territory from Saunders county north to within thiry miles of the Nebraska line and east of Columbus. He said in all probability there has been much deterioration since the August crop report.

W. T. Barstow, of the W. T. Barstow Grain Company, 601 First National Bank building, was more optimistic. He said:

"Friday's rain undoubtedly was of great benefit. The hot weather caught the late corn at about the right time. The late corn, however, probably would have been lost if it had not been for the rain. The early corn crop was destroyed because hot weather caught it just at tasseling time. I believe practically the entire late crop has a chance to be good."

J. M. Paul, grain broker, 605 First National Bank building, said: "The rain hasn't saved the late crop entirely. However, it has helped considerably in some sections."

GROCERS PICNIC NEXT WEDNESDAY

To Give Away Carload Of Watermelons At Annual Outing at the Beach.

A whole carload of ice cold watermelons is to be given away at the twenty-fourth annual all day picnic of the Lincoln Retail Grocers' and Meat Dealers' association which is to be held at Capitol Beach Wednesday, August 18.

The members of the association are closing their stores for the entire day and expect from fifteen to twenty-five thousand people to attend the all-day celebration. The largest crowd which attended any of the annual picnics in the past was twenty-three thousand and arrangements will be made to care for as large as attendance next Wednesday.

An elaborate program of contests theater at 2 p. m. and the thouis aranged to begin in the open air sand watermelons are to be given away at the shelter house at 5 o'clock. As usual the country store for which merchants contribute merchandise is to be a big feature of the entertainment.

Prices will be awarded to the winners of the following contests:

Farmer Arrested—Declaring they found 75 quarts of beer and 40 gallons of beer mash at his farm, state officers Saturday night put Ed Tewey, 40, in the city jail and said charges would be filed against him Deputy State Sheriffs Duschus, Straun and Weygint made the raid resulting in Tewey's arrest. His farm is located a short distance southwest of Lincoln. When arrested the man had $124.25 in bills of small denominations.

Northwestern Is Purchasing Cars

A total of 1,500 new freight cars and a new oil electric locomotive will be furnished by the Chicago & Northwestern Railway company in the near future, officials of the triffic department announced Saturday night.

The announcement states that, of 1,000 automobile freight cars now on orders and being constructed by the Chicago shops, 755 already have been shipped. The remainder is scheduled for delivery at the rate of eight cars a day. Delivery of 500 stock cars, to be built at the Hammond, Ind., shops of the I. C. & M. company, will start about September 1, the statement says.

The locomotive, built by the Ingersoll Rand company at Schenectady, N. Y., will be shipped about August 4.

END SECOND WEEK OF CHURCH FIGHT

Bitterness Grows Between Factions But Quiet Reigns Past Few Days.

Settlement Seems Farther Away Than Ever, Declares Bishop of Tobasco.

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 14.—(INS).—The second week of suspension of religious services in Catholic churches and enforcement of nation-wide boycott ended here tonight both church and government officials expressing confidence in eventual victory and a determination to carry on until the other side yields.

Despite a steadily growing bitterness, Mexico City and the eastern and southern sections of the country have been comparatively quiet during the week. In the west and some northern districts, however, there has been both rioting and bloodshed in the struggle for possession of the churches.

Headquarters of the Catholic church here has announced the execution of several priests within the last few days by government forces following fights at the churches in various villages.

Settlement seems farther away than ever, according to Pascual Diaz, bishop of Tobasco and now acting head of the episcopate. It is even less likely, he said, than it was a week ago when several mediating influences were actively engaged in the attempt to work out some arrangement permitting both sides to retreat gracefully and thus end the bitter feeling.

The controversy thus far has been marked by one development that seems curious in a conflict which, on the surface, would appear to be only an internal one. That is the inclination of both factions to appeal through the press of the United Seates for American support.

Statements and counter-statements have been made, but less than half of the grist of attack and malignancy has been carried by the Mexican newspapers. Not only Archbishop Mora del Rio and Bishop Diaz, but also Secretary of the interior Tejeda and even President Calles apparently have been talking almost exclusively for American consumption.

WORTHAM SHOWS WILL PLAY HERE

Company to Open at Fifth And A Streets Monday.

Traveling in a special train of thirty-length circus cars, the Wortham Shows, brought to Lincoln by the Veterans of Foreign Wars, are scheduled to arrive Sunday evening at Fifth and A streets.

Burr W. Gordon, special representative, was in the city Saturday making arrangements for supplies that will be needed for the 400 people with the shows.

Work will be rushed and the show will be ready to welcome the crowds that are expected Monday afternoon. The Wortham Shows, it is stated, is the largest of its kind in this country, and this year has many new attractions.

The troup will be in Lincoln the entire week.

Among some of the attractions carried by the shows are: mammoth water circus wieh a bevy of pretty diving girls. Trained wild animal circus with lions, bears, tigers, dogs, monkeys, and other animals all trained to perform. Millers mechnical battlefield considered one of the most elaborate mechanical shows ever constructed. The "Law and the Out-law," a wax replica of bold outlaws, and famous peace officers of the old days. "Wall of Death," with the reckless bells who risk their necks riding the straight eight-foot wall on motorcycles. Jungleland with a large collection of jungle animals. Circus side shows with freaks and curiosities from all parts of the world. Collection of freak animals will be interesting to everyone. The "monkey speedway" will surely amuse the children. These are only a part of the many attractions and there are so many that it would be impossible to make the complete rounds in one evening.

The popular riding devices include the merry-mixed-up, Mexican derby, caterpillar, merry-go-round, giant Ferris wheel, jasser, whip, and the new $20,000 hay-day ride.

PAVES WAY FOR TURK MONARCHY

BERLIN, Aug. 14.—(INS.)—Kemal Pasha is preparing to restore the monarchy in Turkey and make himslef sultan, according to an unconfirmed report circulated by the Asia-East-European News Service. The recent political trials and consequent hangings are alleged to have been for the purpose of crushing opposition to Kemal and to pave the way for his creation of a monarchy.

ARRESTS SOON IN MELLETT MURDER

Grand Jury Will Convene Monday and Open Investigation.

Prosecutors Working On Case Declare Expect Indictments.

CANTON, O., Aug. 14.—(INS)—The murder of Don R. Mellett, crusading Canton publisher, is about to be avenged.

Arrests are impending and will come within seventy-two hours.

Hole-proof evidence has been gathered by a certain investigating agency that has convinced the agency that arrests must be made before the case reaches the hands of the Stark county grand jury.

These facts were definitely and authoritively learned by International News Service late today.

All investigating agencies tonight were of the sincere determination that the fallen eidtor would be avenged before many more hours fly by.

Indictments Expected.

CANTON, O., Aug. 14.—(UP)—Murder indictments are expected from the county grand jury convening here Monday to investigate blackmail charges in connection with the murder of Don R. Mellett, proprieteor of the Canton Daily News.

The announcement during the day, one from Joseph Roach, Chicago, special counsel to acting Chief of Police Earl Hexmer and the other from C. B. McClintox, county prosecutor, brought hope for early solution of the four-weeks-old murder.

Roach said he believed evidence in his possession was sufficient to convict several men of the murder and declared his willingness to go before the grand jury.

McClintock followed with a statement that the murder case as well as blackmail charges will be brought to the attention of the jury.

Any evidence in the possession of Roach or anyone else will be sought for the grand jury, McClintock said.

In case the county grand jury fails to return indictments for murder, the cse will probably be brought before the grand jury next month.

WILL BEGIN ON STATE BUDGET

Gathering of Information to Be Started Soon By Finance Department.

Work of compiling a provisional state budget to be submitted to the next legislature will soon be commenced by State Finance Secretary Dalbey and Mrs. Maude Butler, budget supervisor in his department. Every department of the state government will be furnished with blank forms calling for data relative to its expenditures during the present biennium and its estimated needs for the coming one.

The departments will be asked to get these reports in by October 1, so as not to delay compilation of the budget. That is the time limit specified by law for the information to be supplied.

Should Governor McMullen be reelected, the budget made up will be the only governing the legislature's action. In case his opponent should win, the McMullen fiscal summary will become merely an advisory document, and it will devolve upon his successor to prepare and submit a budget for the next biennium.

No appropriation for an existing department or institution of the state can be made by the legislature, if not included in the governor's recommendations, unless three-fifths of the total membership of each branch vote for it. In that case, the governor has no power to veto it. He may veto items appropriated by the legislature which were included in his budget, however.

AIRPLANE TOUR AT KANSAS CITY

After Hop From Wichita Rest Sunday And Go to Moline Monday.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Aug. 14.—(INS)—The twenty-one planes competing in the 2,600-mile Ford reliability tour through the middle-west rested here tonight, following the completion of the trip from Wichita today.

All planes are holding up well, according to Capt. Ray Collins, official referee of the tour.

Walter Beach, leading in points for the $7,000 Edsel Ford trophy, placed first in flying time between Wichita and Kansas City today, making the trip in 1 hour and 30 minutes. Beach was the last to take off at Wichita and the second to land here.

Only one plane has been dropped during the week's flying, the diminutive Driges Dart piloted by Jack Laass, having been forced out by accident. It was not an entrant for the prize.

The planes will hop off Monday for Moline, Ills., on the ninth leg of the tour.

No Trace of Car—No trace of the Chrysler sedan which was rented in Lincoln Friday night and never returned, and which police believe may have been connected with the holdup of the Palmer House at Grand Island that night, had been found Saturday night. Several clues, however, were being followed up.

U. S. IMPORTS WINE, LIQUOR

Available Figures Show Business Increased During Past Year.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14.—Dry America legally imported 135,261 gallons of distilled liquors and wines in the year ending June 30, according to figures available at the department of commerce today.

Although the quantity was 2,860 gallons less than in the preceding year, the value of the import was $497,931, about $96,000 greater.

Of the total import last year 64,068 gallons, valued at $301,628, represented distilled liquors and 71,193 gallons of $196,303 value, wines.

The principal volume of wine imported was for sacramental purposes, a considerable quantity having Kosher wine, brought from Palestine for use in Jewish religious rites.

Some Chinese wine, recently held as medicinal by the department of Justice, was imported at San Francisco.

Import of other alcoholics included perfumery, bay rum and toilet water valued at $1,870,000 during the fiscal year. It was a material decline from the year before. The treasury has held that these non-beverage alcoholics must be denatured before permitted to enter the United States.

The total export of beverages, alcoholic and non-intoxicating, amounted to $1,635,000, an increase of $100,000. Exports of distilled liquor, sold abroad by owners in this country on special government permit, amounted to 212,455 gallons valued at $161,118. Both quantity and value were ahead of the 1924-1925.

Business was also increasing in malt extracts and malt syrups, 387,115 gallons of which, went abroad during the fiscal year. Value of the export was 315,985.

Explosion Kills Four Workmen in A Lumber Plant

NINETY-SIX, S. C., Aug. 14.—A boiler explosion at the Self Lumber company today killed one white youth and three negroes. Two white men and five negroes were injured.

Ernest Jarrett, 18, a machinist and son of the superintendent of the plant, died soon after the explosion from injuries he received.

Elliott Walter, Everett Davies, both negroes, were standing beside the boiler when the explosion occurred and were instantly killed. Andrew Butler, another negro, died later.

Supt. G. J. Jarrett and R. H. Goodman were injured. Five negroes were also hurt. Twenty-five men were at the plant at the time of the explosion.

HAVELOCK WATER WORRIES OVER

New Well and Reservoir Are Put Into Operation.

Everyone May Sprinkle the Lawns Instead of Taking Turns.

With the attachment to the reservoir late Saturday afternoon of a new gravel-wall well, pumping over 600 gallons of water a minute, the Havelock people are congratulating themselves that their water worries are a thing of the past.

The eight old wells only had a capacity of 329 gallons a minute. During the hot weather it has been necessary to restrict the use of water. People living in the first ward of Havelock could water their lawns on Monday but on Tuesday the sprinklers must be left idle—no matter how thirsty the lawns—so that those persons living in ward two could have water. Only by alternating in the use of sprinklers and being conservative was the old supply made to serve. Water Commissioner L. B. Deremer and Mayor Fred C. Hall say that these worries are now all past.

The type of equipment, which is entirely automatic is said to be new in this part of Nebraska. The Layne Western company of Kansas City which sunk the well and installed the pump guaranteed the city of Havelock that unless the supply was at least 500 gallons a minute the city would pay nothing. When the well was tested August 7, before the mayor, water commissioner and councilmen Otto Haas, A. J. Schoonover and William Graham, it produced 533 gallons a minute for nine hours and when opened gushed forth 610 gallons in sixty seconds time. Yesterday afternoon the final connections with the reservoir were made and today everybody in Havelock may celebrate by sprinkling the lawn and taking a bath at the same time.

Seven Test Holes.

The company has been working on the well for about six or seven weeks. Seven fourteen-inch test holes were drilled to begin with and water was found at a depth of about a hundred feet. In between the thirty-eight inch outer casing of the well and the eighteen inch inner casing is a layer of graded gravel, with an eighteen inch shutter screen at the bottom to purify the water and increase the yield.

A vertical centrifugal pump extends about eighty-five feet into the well and pumps the water into a 175,000 gallon reservoir. A float switch in this reservoir automatically starts the pump when the water is low and closes it when high.

The booster pump which forces the water from the reservoir to the standpipe is also automatic so that Havelock may use 878,400 gallons of water a day without any attention being paid to the well. The old wells are continued so that in case of any emergency the city will not be without water.

Celebrate Birth Of First White Baby In America

ELIZABETH CITY, N. C., Aug. 14.—(I. N. S.)—Eyes of two nations will turn momentarily upon this little North Carolina town, August 18, in the midst of the Dare county, Virginia, celebration commemorating the birth of America's first-native-born and the Lost Colony.

On the day that thousands of persons from over the country arrive here to take in the gigantic celebration that will take place on Roanoke Island, Sir Esme Howard, British ambassador of the United States, will make the principal address.

Sir Esme will be taken directly to Roanoke Island to old Fort Raleigh on the coast guard cutter Apache.

The celebration will take place on the site of the old Fort Raleigh where the first English settlement in America was made in 1584. This is now the property of the Roanoke Colony Memorial association, a little band of patriots who have worked since 1890 to preserve the memory of the Roanoke settlement.

The association has marked the site of the fortress, and by yearly celebrations have kept alive interest which will culminate this year in one of the most widely heralded celebrations of its kind in history.

President Coolidge has written a letter to be read on August 18, when Sir Esme Howard will speak. Governor McLean, of North Carolina, Ex-Governor Morrison, and Bishops Cheshire, Darst, Horner, and Penick, the four Episcopal bishops of North Carolina, are expected to attend the celebration.

Congressman Warren's bill providing for the erection of a marker to commemorate the birth of Virginia Dare, has been passed and it is believed that it will be erected in the near future under the supervision of Secretary of War Davis.

Bronze Coins Of Austria Are Not Worth Picking Up

VIENNA, Aug. 14—(I. N. S.)—This is one of the few cities in the world where coins can lie about the city streets without exciting the interest of even beggers.

One may count five or six 100-Kronen pieces lying on the sidewalk or the road during the course of a few blocks walk and usually they will be lying in the same place if you return a few hours later.

This is, of course, due to the fact that the tiny bronze 100-kronen piece is now worth only fourteen-tenths of a cent whereas once it would buy five dollars worth of anything.

Still it is a shock to the thrifty instinct of a stranger to see such contempt shown to the coin of any realm, though he soon learns that keeping his eyes on animate objects while passing along the streets is more profitable.

Battle Grounds Of Moundbuilders Brought Into Park

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Aug. 14.—(I.N.S.)—The huge mounds of earth in Ct. Clair and Madison counties, in Southern Illinois, built, it is believed, by the "Mound Builders" in bygone ages, a race concerning which there has been much speculation, soon will be part of Illinois' newest state park.

Cahokia mound in St. Clair county, about six miles from the Mississippi river, is the largest earth-work of human hands in the world. At the period when it was constructed, archeologists estimate, the population of the mound region could not have been less than 100,000.

Scientists for years have been puzzled over the mounds and speculated as to the race that built them. One thing, they agree, is practically certain, that the moundbuilders had disappeared before the Indians began their bloody battles and peaceful hunting trips in central North America.

Final plans for the state park have now been completed and work is expected to be started at the site in the near future.

A mile of pavement within the park has been decided upon. A large tourist camp will be placed at one end of the park. A walk around the largest mound will be constructed so that sightseers may gaze at the huge pile. The mound itself will be left undisturbed.

Recently the state of Illinois purchased the mounds at a price of $50,000 and $20,000 will be spent in making a park of the site.

Thomas L. Fekete, member of the state legislature from East St. Louis St. Clair county, in which partially the park will be situated, fathered the bill for the purchase and beautifying of the mound country.

Completion of the paving work is expected within a year and the park, it is hoped will be thrown open to the public soon afterward.

Whether the mounds were altars of a primitive race, built for the worship of their now forgotten gods or whether they were connected with the burial of tribal rulers has never been ascertained.

Excavations have shown that numerous tools, and trinkets which doubtless were valuable to their makers, and other articles were buried in the great earthen heaps.

Interest in the mounds has been fostered by recent explorations and by agitation for the bill for creation of the park when it was sent through the state assembly. High price set on property in that vicinity balked state purchase of the mounds for years.

NASH OBSERVES TENTH BIRTHDAY

Has Made Remarkable Progress In Motors Field.

Dealers Showing Two New Series of Models. to Public.

Coincident with the celebration of the tenth anniversary of the founding of The Nash Motors company Nash dealers throughout the country are staging an impressive introductory display of the newly-refined advanced six and light six models.

The height of development to which Nash has brought these cars epitomizes the phenomenal progress of the company since the day the first Nash car came off the production line a full decade ago.

Both from an engineering standpoint and with regard to the niceties of arrangement and appointment, these two newly-refined groups of Nash models evidence even more vividly the notable character of Nash manufacturing resources.

Their advent presages an even more phenomenal success for Nash in the future than has been true of the past although in the ten years that have elapsed since the first Nash car was marketed the company has reached a position in the industry ranking fifth or sixth among all automobile manufacturers in the world and is enjoying an uninterupted sales advance which for rapidity and continuity of business increase is outstanding in the of this year Nash sales reached a industry. During the first six months total of 78,123 cars as contrasted to the total sales for the entire year 1925 of 96,121 cars. And 1925 had gained nearly 80 per cent over 1924.

Both the series now being presented to the public are powered by newly-improved 7-bearing crankshaft motors whose conspicuous characteristics are extreme power-smoothness and quietness, combined with exceptional acceleration ability.

As regards the exterior apperance of these newly-refined models there are two features which immediately attract attention. First, is the artistically sculptured emblem of flying wings which surmounts the radiator. Next, is the harmonious richness of the new color combinations with which Nash has dressed these models. All of the open body models in these two groups are done in duotone color combinations with the body molding marking the division line between the two colors.

The light six 4-door sedan which is the leader of the light six series presents a longer, roomier body with an increased amount of leg room. The rear of this body attracts the eye because of its beautifully rounded contour and an important feature is the more costly genuine wood-frame body construction Nash employs similar to the practice which is in vogue among the finest European and American cars, instead of the steel-frame type previously used.

This newly refined light six 4-door sedan is beautifully done in a deep mallard green finish with black upper structure and black body moldings, both of which are penciled with thin double stripes of gold. Gold striping is also observed in the disc wheels. The light six touring car is done in duotone. Above the black body molding is a rich green-gray while below the molding the car is finished in lustrous lilac gray. The body molding has double gold striping and the green-gray disc wheels are also traced in gold.

Both front and rear fenders are more deeply crowned and particular care has been taken in curving the rear fenders gracefully roadward.

The doors of the sedan are of a composite lumber and steel construction like that employed on the most costly cars.

The light six carburetor is now equipped with an air cleaner to exclude foreign substances from entering the air intake, and as further evidence of the quality Nash employs throughout the light six series there is a new oil purifier which has been included in light six equipment to purge the oil of all grit, dust and abrasives.

In both the light six and advanced six series there are new instrument boards and in each case all the instruments are compactly and artistically grouped. In the case of the advanced six series the single panel under glass has indirect illumination and is provided with an electric clock. Both panels include among other instruments a new-type hydrostatic gas gauge.

With respect to the headlamps there is also similarity between the two series for each has the new-type double filament headlights which throw a strong beam straight ahead or directly downward in front of the car as may be desired. These lights are controlled by a lever located on the instrument board in the case of the light six series, and placed on the steering wheel in the advanced six models, which is built on the 127 inch wheel.

The advanced six 4-door coupe base is picturesquely toned in sumptuous mallard green. Its body moldings are cut in with a light green and striped with a double gold line. Disc wheels are likewise penciled in gold.

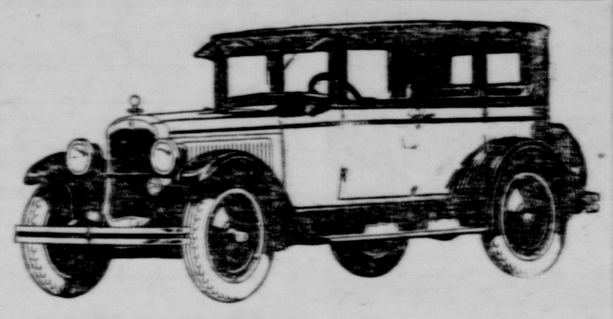

In contrast there is the stunning advanced six roadster whose lines are particularly racy. This model is in duotone colors. The upper body has a plymouth gray shade, while the lower body is in rich beige. The body molding is in black, double-striped with gold. The disc wheels are plymouth gray, too, gold traced.

Further inspection of the improvements introduced on the advanced six series discloses an ingenious new thermostatic device which controls the heat of the motor by regluating water circulation. It operates to shut off water circulation until the proper running temperature of the motor is reached, then it opens permitting the water to circulate and in this way Nash maintains at all times the most efficient operating temperature.

With respect to the advanced six series Nash has also provided an "agitator"—a revolving device directly under the intake screen of the oil pump. This is devised so as to positively prevent any coagulation of oil on the screen even in the coldest weather.

Along with these refinements is also a new-type crankcase breather which carries the gases from the motor out under the rear of the car and in this way keeps the driving compartment free from heat and odor.

Oldsmobile DeLuxe Sedan

Oldsmobile series E, four door De Luxe Sedan, equipped with balloon tires, trunk and trunk rack, air cleaner, harmonica balancer, oil filter and ventilated crankcase.

Chrysler Believes Better Small Car Is Present Need

Walter P. Chrysler, in a statement unusual for its frankness, commenting on what have been termed "the deficiencies in small car field," declared unreservedly that better American type cars are necessary in this field. "Roomier, more comfortable, smoother cars of longer life, with less vibration, are of paramount importance," he continues.

His statement, in part, is:

"The American public has always been satisfied with the prices in the small car field, but today is obviously and decidedly dissatisfied with what it receives for that price.

"I believe it has been demonstrated conclusively that the American people are not interested in the so-called 'bug,' or what someone has erroneously termed 'European type' car. Several manufacturers have endeavored, each time unsuccessfully, to capitalize on a tendency on the part of the public to flock to anything which carries a tang of novelty, even if that novelty is unequal to what we already have. The so-called European car, everyone knows, sacrifices the far greater virtues of smoothness, power, hill climbing ability, durability, riding comfort and even appearance to achieve that little tin deity High Gasoline Mileage.

"Motor car conditions abroad are entirely different from what they are here. The tremendous success of the American car in th export market is only overwhelming proof of its superiority.

"What this organization feels the public wants in a small car is not a cheaper, smaller automobile than it has now, but a bigger, better, roomier, easier-riding and longer-lived car for the sume money it has been paying. Modern space engineering and better chassis engineering can give the public that car.

WITH OLDSMOBILE

E. A. Becker again connected with Oldsmobile. Mr. Becker, who was formerly with Oldsmobile for seven years, has now joined the sales department of the Harry Williams Cadillac company.

Curiosity About Chrysler Model

There is an increasing curiosity among people interested in motor cars—which about embraces the whole public—in the details of the new Chrysler foura cylinder car which is shortly to be announced.

While Mr. Chrysler has acknowledged that such a car is on the way, there has been no intimation from official sources as to what will be its chief characteristics.

Word comes from Detroit however that the formal announcement will stress the fact that the new Chrysler is a "full sized car." This is taken to mean that exceptionally large passenger room in a car of its class will be a leading feature.

AUTO NOTES.

If the lens breaks, tie a transparent paper or cloth over the headlight until the lens can be replaced. This will eliminate the glare and protect the reflector.

The good driver regulates his speed in accord with the condition of the road over which he is traveling, and never travels at such a rate that he cannot stop within the "clear course" ahead.

The generator, starting motor and distributor bearings should be oiled monthly or every 1000 miles. They should not be flooded with oil, however, five to ten drops of light oil shoul dbe sufficient.

Avoid overloading tires. When it is absolutely unavoidable, help the tire to handle the extra load by putting in more air. If the overloading is likely to be continuous, change the tires for larger ones.

A loose wheel, bent axle or housing will cause an irregular rubbing sound, and such a sound should be investigated. The noise may include a dangerous condition, or one which need not be worried about.

Compare the lighter, lower-priced six Chrysler "60" with any car near it in price.

In it you have, unit for unit, the same Chrysler standardized quality comprehended in the Chrysler "70" and Imperial "80"—in features, in materials, in craftsmanship, in rigid inspection and test, in characteristics of dependability and long life.

Sixty miles, and more, per hour; unprecedented get-away; gas economy of 22 miles and more per gallon; Chrysler's striking beauty; astonishing riding ease and roadability; the safety of Chrysler four-wheel hydraulic brakes; oil-filter and air-cleaner; full pressure lubrication; seven-bearing crankshaft; impulse neutralizer; road levelizers front and rear; roomy, luxurious bodies.

There isn't a low-priced six on the market that will begin to give you as much for your money.

See it for yourself; drive it; put it to any test. That is all we ask. We know the new Chrysler "60" will sell itself to you—that you'll be satisfied with nothing else.

CHRYSLER "60"—Touring Car, $1075; Roadster, $1145; Club Coupe, $1165; Coach, $1195; Sedan, $1295.

There is scarcely a motor car of importance today that does not reflect in either design or practice the influence of Walter P. Chrysler and his engineers.

This is because in the past three years the organization of which Mr. Chrysler is the head has pioneered more improvements in the automobile than had been brought forth in the preceding decade.

The result has been quality beyond comparison and now Mr. Chrysler further emphasizes this quality—makes it more than ever outstanding in all price classes—by his plan of Standardized Quality.

Mr. Chrysler is the first and only large scale manufacturer building four cars under one name and one management in one group of unified plants on a standardized quality basis.

This standardization of quality is the result of an extraordinarily complete coordination of engineering and manufacturing facilities and resources.

It brings Chrysler superiority in speed, power, beauty, comfort, roadability and long life within the reach of practically every purse.

It enables every motorist to buy in any of the four general price classifications, with complete assurance of receiving all the brilliancy and dependability of service for which Chrysler has established a reputation throughout the world.

CHRYSLER "70"—Phaeton, $1395; Coach, $1395; Roadster, $1525; Sedan, $1545; Royal Coupe, $1695; Brougham, $1745; Royal Sedan, $1795; Crown Sedan, $1895.

CHRYSLER IMPERIAL "80"—Phaeton, $2495; Roadster (wire wheels standard equipment, wood wheels optional), $2595; Coupe, two-passenger, $2895; Coupe, four-passenger, $2895; Sedan, five-passenger, $3095; Sedan, seven-passenger, $3195; Cabriolet, $3495; Sedan-Limousine, $3595.

LARGER COUNTY JAIL IS NEEDED

Insufficient Room For Offenders In Box Butte County Cells.

(Special to The Star.)

ALLIANCE, Neb., Aug. 14.—More room is needed at the county jail here, according to the sheriff. Sometimes it is necessary to house as many as a dozen prisoners in space originally provided for four. County officials are contemplating the changing of a large corridor on the top floor of the courthouse into a "bullpen," which will furnish accommodations for over 20 prisoners.

For some time the county jail has been the scene of considerable activity and the number of prisoners is increasing daily. Since Sheriff G. P. Jones has been in office, 872 men have been inside of the county bastile on charges ranging from forgery to murder and as many as 24 criminals have at one time been confined there.

When the courthouse was first built, that part of it set aside for the county jail was considered of minor importance and the space provided for four prisoners was regarded as ample. Today, county officials say, a county jail with only four prisoners' quarters is entirely inadequate.

During the past week the county jail has been crowded to capacity and county prisoners have been held in the city jail, with several women offenders finding quarters at the home of Police Matron Highland.

Columbus Knights At Annual Picnic

(Special to The Star.)

ALLIANCE, Neb., Aug. 14.—The fourth annual Knights of Columbus picnic will be held at the state park north of here Sunday. It will be a joint affair with the Alliance and Chadron councils participating. The local knights and their families will leave here at about 9 o'clock Sunday morning.

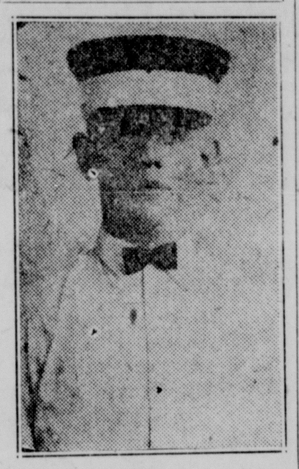

Following a picnic dinner a lively program of sports will be staged. A feature of the afternoon's activities will be a baseball game between the two councils. They will also meet in a tug of war. Other sports, contests and events will be held in addition to the ball game.

AUTOMOBILE CRASH.

(Special to The Star.)

BURCHARD, Neb., Aug. 14.—Geor e Cumro, resident of Pawnee, driving his auto on the highway east of here, was struck head-on by a big touring car and trailer bearing a Lancaster county license. Both cars were badly damaged, the Cumro car being put out of commission and the Lancaster car being able to proceed after a few repairs. With Cumro at the time were his son and another small lad. None of them was hurt except for a few bruises.

Count Traffic On Highway For Week

(Special to The Star.)

HARVARD, Neb., Aug. 14.—Beginning six o'clock Sunday morning, a complete count will be made of all the traffic passing a point two miles east of here on the D. L. D. highway until nine o'clock next Saturday evening. County, state and out of state automobiles will be counted separately, as well as trucks, wagons and other vehicles. Roscoe Curtis will have charge of the local count.

Big Exhibit For State Fair From Box Butte County

(Special to The Star.)

ALLIANCE, Neb., Aug. 14.—A committee consisting of Box Butte county farmers and Alliance business men is planning an elaborate exhibit of farm and garden products to be displayed at the state fair next month. Certain members are responsible for each part of the exhibit. Experts in each of the different kinds of farm produces are selecting the best quality grain specimens the most plump tomatoes, the choicest of the Box Butte county seed potatoes and the most perfect specimens of everything that goes to make up a good catchy display of products.

Box Butte will furnish a lavish exhibit that will give keen competition to anything on view under the high roof of the massive agricultural hall at the fair grounds. The plentiful products of this section are forming a collection that will make a spectacular display.

Bridge Goes Out Near Cotesfield

(Special to The Star.)

GRAND ISLAND, Neb., Aug. 14.—The large white Davis creek bridge on the Clark Hill road, one and one-half miles north of Cotesfield, was washed out when a two inch rain fell in that vicinity, Thursday night. The bridge is on the west side of the Middle Loup river. Since Wednesday, the rainfall in that section has totalled three and one-half inches.

MILFORD NOTES

(Special to The Star.)

MILFORD, Neb., Aug. 14.—Camp Kiwanis closed its 1926 season Saturday.

Five hundred girls have spent a week or more at the camp within the ten weeks. Horseback riding was featured, besides canoeing swimming and other sports.

Thirty deaf people from Omaha, Lincoln and Cedar Bluffs, picnicked at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Bender last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Vance of Milford left Wednesday for a visit to points in Pennsylvania.

For sometime the boys have talked of the queer "crawdads" in the Rumler ponds. They have funny heads and legs. W. J. Kirkbride of Lincoln investigatedw and found them to be salamanders of rare variety.

The M. J. Schweitzer and George Miller families left Friday by motor for a visit to Kitchener, Ontario.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Weaver left Thursday for Harrisburg, Pa., and will go to Philadelphia for the Sesqui-centennial.

Mr. and Mrs. John Hershberger and Amelia and Earl left Friday for a motor trip to Ontario.

Awarded Red Cross Service Medals

Red Cross service medals were awarded to Foster Matchett, Milan Kinsey and Harold Hildreth at the close of the animal water carnival at Municipal pool last Saturday evening.

The medals are the highest honors that can be won in the Red Cross and are bestowed for 200 hours of voluntary work in teaching life saving and swimming. The instruction was given at the pools in and near Lincoln.

Announcement was also made that Milan Kinsey will be awarded the Red Cross rescue medal for saving a life last summer at Linoma beach, near Ashland.

Babe With Heart On Wrong Side Is Not the Only One

McCOOK, Neb., Aug. 14.—(UP)—Although physicians said similar cases are rare, the parents of four months old Marvin Harris, whose heart is on the right side of his body, have found moe than a dozen similar cases.

Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Harris, parents of Marvin, said today they had received more than a dozen letters from New York to San Francisco, telling of similar cases in which the patient lived.

Marvin has been removed to a hospital, where physicians can study the caseaonesom,fwheFrazih study his case. Attendants said today that the real danger for the boy is from intestinal trouble and not from the heart being on the wrong side. They explained that some of his other internal organs are probably also in unnatural positions and may cause complications.

The parents were cheered from the concoling letters from other persons with misplaced hearts.

Miss Bess Mahoney Becomes Bride of Homer Gruenther

OMAHA, Neb., Aug. 14.—The marriage of Miss Bess Mahoney, daughter of Mrs. T. T. Mahoney, to Homer H. Gruenther, son of Mrs. C. M. Gruenther, took place Saturday morning at 7 o'clock at the St. Peter's church here. Rev. J. F. McCarthy officiated.

Miss Mahoney attended Duecchne college and the convent of the Sacred Heart, and has been editor of the woman's page of the Omaha Daily News. Mr. Gruenther attended St. Thomas college in St. Paul, and Creighton university. Only the immediate members of the families were present at the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Gruenther left for an automobile trip through Canada. They will make their home in Omaha.

Picnic Given By Modern Woodmen Largely Attended

(Special to The Star.)

BEATRICE, Neb., Aug. 14.—About 2,000 persons attended the M. W. A. picnic at Riverside park Friday afternoon and evening, and it is estimated that double that number were present at the park Saturday to attend the closing day's festivities. A basket dinner was served at noon.

During the afternoon addresses were given by C. W. Bryan, democratic candidate for governor, C. E. Renner and E. E. Kester of Lincoln, national lecturer an dstate deputy, respectively, while in the evening Frances Torkelson, supreme auditor of the Royal Neighbors, gave the principal address. Outdoor amusements of various kinds and dancing furnished entertainment for the visitors.

Want More Gravel Laid On Highway

(Special to The Star.)

HARVARD, Neb., Aug 14.—It is probable that another layer of gravel will be soon applied to the K. K. D highway from the north county line to near Clay Center. The first layer, although well packed, is becoming thin and the county supervisors are making an effort to have another layer placed.

Slightly Injured When Car Crashes

(Special to The Star.)

BEATRICE, Neb., Aug. 14.—Mrs. Frank Sanders, her sister, Mrs. L. C. Oden, and the latter's daughter, Miss Darlene Oden of this city, escaped with slight injuries Friday evening when the Sanders' car dashed into the curbing and crashed against a mail box and telephone pole. Mrs. Oden and daughter jumped, but Mrs. Sanders remained at the wheel until the car was stopped. It was considerably damaged.

PENNZOIL POPULAR WITH AVIATORS.

On the trip through Lincoln Thursday several of the pilots of the planes requested Pennzoil for their motors, which was supplied by the Harry Williams Cadillac company, local agents. In talking with Ace Hughes, who is head mechanic for the Woodson planes and with Pilot Downes he stated that they had never used anything but Pennzoil for any of their long trips and had never experienced any oil trouble. The oil was to have been changed at Des Moines but rather than accept a substitute when they could not obtain Pennzoil they came on through to Lincoln and then found their oil in better condition than some of the planes which had made the change at Des Moines. This means that they made the entire trip from Detroit to Lincoln without changing oil.

Road Conditions

The following road report was given out Saturday evening by the tourists' bureau of the Lincoln Automobile club:

D. L. D., No. 38 to Omaha. Road is graveled all the way and is in good condition. Use the detour from Gretna east five miles on gravel then north four miles.

Roads out of Omaha are in fair to good condition. Des Moines, Carroll and central Iowa towns report heavy rains Friday night with the roads drying rapidly Saturday. No. 2 is the preferable route to Des Moines. No. 8 is under construction from Council Bluffs to Glenwood. No. 6 is still under construction in two places between Council Bluffs and Dennison. No. 7 to Avoca and then north on No. 4 is a good optional route.

D. L. D., No. 38 west to Minden is fine. There are three miles of rough road this side of Fairmont. From Minden to Axtell is rough. From Axtell there is gravel to Atlanta and from there west the road is only fair due to heavy rains early in the week. In a couple of days this road will be good. Detour from Chase to Lamar and the state line west.

Cornhusker No. 77 is fine to Fremont. Use the detour out of Fremont two miles west and then north to Hooper. The road from Fremont to three miles south of Walthill is dirt and then graveled to Sioux City. From there it is either paved or graveled to most points in Minnesota.

Cornhusker, No. 77 is graveled south to Wymore and is good to Marysville. From there it is a little rough in spots to Junction City. From Junction City to Eldorado the road is of graded dirt. From Eldorado south there is twelve miles of paved roads and pavement or gravel from August to Ponca City.

East O, No. 11 is still rough between Lincoln and Union. East A streets road is recommended as a detour. No. 24 to Nebraska City is good. The road is a little rough from Bennet to Palmyra, and poorly marked. The road is also rough from Unadilla to Syracuse. From Nebraska City south to the state line the road is graveled.

S. Y. A. No. 11 is good to Seward. It is graveled to York and Aurora. There is a detour to Grand Island. Lincoln Highway, No. 6 and U. S., No. 30 to North Platte are good roads but only fair in western Nebraska.

No. 19 from Sidney north to Bridgeport and north to Alliance has one detour out of Bonner north to Letan. It is good from Alliance to Chadron and Hot Springs. The Meridian Highway, No. 4 is good through the state. There is one detour from Stoddard south to Chester.

Golden Rod, No. 3 is good in eastern Nebraska and fine in central and western parts of the state.

The road is graveled from Crete and Wilber to Lincoln. There is a dirt road from here to Tecumseh. Follow No. 24 through College View and Bennet, then continue south to Panama, east to Sterling and east and south to Tecumseh.

Blue Pole, No. 8 through northern Nebraska is good to Valentine and fair west to the state line.

Suspends Rates Pending Hearing

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14.—(INS)—The interstate commerce commission today suspended from August 25 to December 23 the proposed six cents per hundred reduction on rates on grain and grain products from Minneapolis, St. Paul, Duluth and Superior, Wis., to eastern points over the Minneapolis and St. Louis and the Soo railroads.

Not Every Homebuilder Who Wants Curtis Woodwork Gets It!

Many of Lincoln's finest homes are finished and equipped throughout with Curtis Woodwork. You know these homes, both large and small ones. They are beautiful and distinctive and stand out from the ordinary house.

There have been cases where the homebuilder wanted Curtis Woodwork and thought he was going to have it in his home—but did not get it. That is because he did not specifically tell his contractor that he wanted Curtis Woodwork and expected to have it.

Whether you build new or remodel, it will pay you to use Curtis woodwork. Installed in the home, it costs no more, sometimes less, than ordinary millwork.

Miss Barrett Strives to Surpass "Trudy's" Feat

CHANNEL SWIM STARTS TODAY

Clarabelle Barrett Will Set Out This Morning From Dover; Trial Financed By Funds From U. S. A.

DOVER, Eng., Aug. 14. — (I. N. S.) — Miss Clarabelle Barrett, New York's school teacher-swimmer, will take off from the pier here tomorrow in her second attempt to negotiate the English channel.

Everything at the Barrett headquarters was in preparation tonight for the dash, far more elaborate preliminaries having been taken than were evidenced in her first attempt. Walter Brickett, who has trained her for both attempts, was confident not only that she would cross successfully, but predicted she would break the 14 hour and 31 minute record of Gertrude Ederle.

Confident of Success.

Miss Barrett failed narrowly in her first struggle with the channel, battling fog, winds and bad tides. She was within two miles of the shore of France when she gave up on August 3. She was in the water 21½ hours.

Practically unknown previously, her gallant attempt brought her plentiful financial assistance from the United States and made this second dash possible. Miss Barrett said she expected to make the swim in 12 hours.

Miss Cannon Starts Monday.

CAPE GRIS NEZ, Aug. 14.—(I. N. S.)—Lillian Cannon, Baltimore aspirant for the English channel swim, announced tonight that she probably will start her first attempt Monday night.

The camps of the channel aspirants were increased tonight by the arrival of Otto Kemmerich, a 40-year-old German professional deep-sea diver, who has opened training quarters at Sangatte, near here. Kemmerich will make an attempt next week. He hopes to swim the channel in twelve hours. Last year he swam 38 miles in the Baltic without anyone accompanying him, carrying a compass on one wrist and a wrist watch on the other, and a bottle of bouillon strapped to his back.

LEAD OF DEMONS NICELY SLASHED

Des Moines Club Blanked By Indians, 4 to 0, in Final Clash of Series.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Aug. 14.—Oklahoma City slashed Des Moines' lead to a game and a half by taking the rubber tilt of the final series here today, 4 to 0. Herbert May held Des Moines to four hits and not an invader passed second base. The Indians bunched hits on Moon in the first, third and fourth innings for their tallies. The score:

Miss Curtis Wins Iowa Golf Title

DES MOINES, Ia., Aug. 14.—(U. P.)—Playing an almost unbeatable game of golf, the kind that gained her medalist honors when she set a course record of 93, Miss Elizabeth Curtis of Clinton, this afternoon won the fifth annual woman's state golf tournament 8 and 7 from Mrs. F. C. Byers of Cedar Rapids.

Miss Curtis made the turn in 47, the same as her first nine in the qualifying round, being seven up at that time, and then went ahead to win the tenth and halve the eleventh for the match.

Fitting has not been robust in the Florida State league, but Lakeland made up for it this week when it buried St. Petersburg under 23 hits and 20 runs. Ten doubles and five triples figured in the hitting jamboree.

Unlucky Year For Champions

This has been the dethronement season for kings of fistic realms.

Its dawning found Paul Berlenbach, Mickey Walker, Harry Greb and Rocky Kansas dominating the light-heavy, the welter, the middleweight and lightweight situations. And now "ex" prefaces each of their names and they belong to the rulers of yesteryear.

Berlenbach bowed to Jack Delaney, the Irish Mr. Walker got his'n from the clenched fists of one of those Latzo boys, Greb lost his title to Tiger Flowers and Kansas surrendered to Sammy Mandell.

A fifth champion went out of the picture when Kid Kaplan, the feather boss, quit the title because he no longer can make weight.

Who's next?

Well, Flowers meets Greb in a return bout on August 19 and Jack Dempsey risks his crown on September 16 against Gene Tunney. So if you think that history will repeat itself, or that the past of 1926 is a sure barometer of events to come, you can proceed now to do your own horoscoping concerning Flowers and Dempsey.

EVEN DIVISION BY LINKS AND IZZIES

Zwillings Grab First Game, But Lose the Second In Seven Innings.

WICHITA, Aug. 14.—Wichita and Lincoln divided a doubleheader here today, Links taking the first, 9 to 7, and the Izzies annexing the second, 4 to 1. Manager "Dutch" Zwilling pitched the second game for the Links and did some nice hurling. The Izzies got to him in the fifth, however, and tallied three runs off two hits and two walks. The victory in the first game gave the Links their seventh win in thirteen starts on the present road trip. The scores:

YANKS, SENATORS SPLIT TWIN BILL

Forty Thousand Fans Greet Return of Huggins Club To Home Field.

"Babe" Ruth Clouts Homer No. 38; Goslin Also Poles a Pair.

NEW YORK, Aug. 14.—Babe Ruth clouted his thirty-eighth four-bagger of the season today while the Yankees shared a double bill with the Senators before a crowd of 40,000 fans. The Yanks won the opener, 4 to 2, and dropped the nightcap, 10 to 5. Ruether was the victim in the first affray, Ruth's homer and one by Gehrig defeating him, while the Senators were able to garner only six scattered hits off Sam Jones. Homers by Goose Goslin and a flock of two-baggers featured the second game. The scores:

Sox Take Plunge Toward Cellar

CHICAGO, Aug. 14.—Earl Whitehill and the Detroit Tigers catapulted the White Sox toward the American league cellar today by winning the series opener, 5 to 2. Whitehill kept his hits well scattered, Tommy Thomas pitched winning ball for the greater part of his sojourn in the box and was capable of victory had his teammates been more effective offensively against Whitehill. Fourth Munn Coming Up.

When the 1926 football season gets under way next month at the University of Nebraska, the fourth of the Munn tribe will make his bow in Cornhusker moleskins. Munn No. 4 in Glen Munn, youngest brother of the tribe. Three older Munns—Wayne, Wade and Monte—served their time and did their stuff in the Nebraska football camp, Wayne during the regime of "Doc" Stewart and Wade and Monte under "Indian" Schulte and Fred Dawson.

Glen and Monte were in Lincoln last week and Glen gave notice that he would enroll at Nebraska this fall. The youngest of the Munns ranks second in stature only to Wayne. He measures a bit more than 6 feet 5 inches and scales at 210 pounds. Glen has been making his home with an aunt at Caldwell, Idaho, the past several years. At Caldwell high, he was a potent factor in the success of the school teams in football, basketball and track. Alumni of several western schools put the pressure on the Caldwell goliath to enter a far west institution, but Glen would have nothing to do with the suggestion. It has been his ambition to be a Cornhusker since the day he entered high school at Caldwell.

The picture of Glen and Monte was snapped by Photographer Hale at the state capitol shortly after they had called on Governor Adam McMullen for a personal chat. Monte recently entered the professional boxing whirl in New York and Gotham critics are predicting that the big boy from the Cornhusker state has a glittering future. In a string of five or six bouts, Monte has won all but one via the kayo route, while the other netted him a victory by decision. Monte returned to New York a few days ago to resume training.

Phil Aitken Downs Folsom and Retains Country Club Crown

Phil Aitken extended his period of supremacy in Lincoln Country club circles for another year when he defeated Willard Folsom, 1 up, in the 36-hole final match of the club tournament Saturday. Folsom, seven times the club title-holder made a valiant stand at the close of the afternoon round, taking No. 17 with a birdie-four, which left him one down, but Aitken halved the last hole and ended the match.

Folsom had staged an uphill fight all the way. In the morning round Aitken stepped away to a lead of 3 up on the first nine holes. Coming in, Folsom pulled out a 39, while Aitken was shooting 42, and Folsom was only one down.

Starting the afternoon play, 1 up, Aitken increased his lead by another hole on the second green and was still 2 up after No. 6, but Folsom won numbers seven and eight and they split No. 9, making the match all square as they started in for the last nine holes.

Folsom's Final Bid.

When they reached the seventeenth tee, Aitken had gained a two-hole advantage. Here Folsom made his final bid for the match, taking a birdie-four. Both hit long balls straight down the fairway. Folsom's carrying a full 250 yards. He made the green in three, after a long brassie shot, and rolled a six-foot putt for a four, while Aitken was down in a par-five.

On the deciding hole, No. 18, Folsom had the advantage of a better drive, but his approach shot rolled onto the apron just past the green, while Aitken laid his approach well onto the sward. After an approach-putt which was short, Folsom passed the buck to his opponent by sinking an eight-foot putt for a four, but the young barrister rose to the occasion, dropping a four-foot putt to halve the hole and cinch the title.

High Scores in Morning.

The play of both the finalists was erratic, especially on the greens. On the first nine of the morning round it was Folsom who was off, his medal score being 43, but on the homeward journey conditions were reversed, the defending champion taking a 42. In the matinee, however, they stayed closer together, Aitken doing the eighteen holes in 75 strokes, while Folsom shot a 76.

High medal scores in the morning were the result of uncertain putting. Folsom three-putted several greens and sacrificed several holes when he was unable to find the cup with short putts. Aitken evened matters by duplicating this performance, however. The duel on the fairways was about even, Aitken compensating for his opponent's slight advantage in driving by making a number of nice approaches.

Tightened in Afternoon.

Although the medal scores of the morning round were hardly of first flight quality, both golfers tightened in the afternoon and were shooting close to par. Aitken had a stroke the advantage in the medal computation when he made the first nine in 39 and came home with a par-36 for a 75. Folsom did the outward nine in 38 strokes and was over par with a 37 on the return, giving him 76 strokes for the round.

Par was bettered on but one hole in the morning when Folsom collected a birdie-four on No. 13, but in the afternoon Aitken shot three birdies and Folsom one, using it to reduce Aitken's lead to 1 up on the seventeenth hole. The cards:

CUBS TAKE PUNCH AT CARDS' HOPES

Chicago Club Evens Score With Alexander; Drives Him From Mound.

Blake On Mound For Windy City Outfit and Pitches Nine Full Frames.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 14.—(I. N. S.)—Alexander's twirling record against the Cubs, his old teammates, stood at .500 today, following his defeat this afternoon by a score of 3 to 2. The defeat gave the Cardinals just one point margin over the Reds for second place in the National league. Alexander allowed only one hit in five innings, but weakened in the closing rounds, his wild throws allowing the Cubs to tie the score in the sixth. He retired them in favor of H. Bell. The score:

Fight Champions Always Reviled by Fickle Public

From John L. Sullivan of Thirty Years and More Ago On Down to Present Day, the Title-Holder Seldom Has Heard Aught But Abuse; Unpopularity of Jack Dempsey Is Same Old Story.

If anything in life can be construed as a curse, and a thing not worth the effort, it's possession of the heavyweight championship of the world!

Through 45 years of the shifting of the tinselled crown, its passing from one to another has meant anguish and grief and hisses and boos jeers and trouble, heartaches and heartbreaks and denunciation and derision and, in the end, the dissipation of whatever fortune has been gained.

Because Jack Dempsey's case is modern, and the public at times is inclined to forgetfulness, the idea exists that "Dempsey is the most unpopular champion of all times." Yet all that has happened to Dempsey is nothing but repetition of the plight that every other champion has known in one phase or another.

Jeers For John L.

John L. Sullivan's name comes down through the lanes of history as "the most idolized of all champions." The assumption is that through all his years he was a hero of heros, loved and admired and universally respected.

Yet Sullivan perhaps was jeered and scoffed at in almost the same measure as is Dempsey today. For many, many years he was accused of dodging Peter Jackson, the Australian negro. He was called a coward and "a man afraid to fight anything but clowns and dwarfs." He was referred to as a drunken, dissolute bum; he was held up frequently as a horrible example of human brutility and human depravity.

Corbett Hated Champion.

The day when Jim Corbett, splendidly mannered, polished, a clean and fine example of American manhood, stopped him—and dethroned him. Corbett represented all that was manly and fine in athletics; he was the man who uplifted and ennobled boxing.

Yet Corbett, in victory, was perhaps the most hated of all champions. He was sneered and scoffed at as a "dude" and a "sissy." He was called "yellow" and a "coward" perhaps he didn't immediately accept the challenge of Bob Fitzsimmons. The mob hissed and hooted him—called him vile names They kept it up almost unceasingly for five years; they taunted him, flaunted him, and Corbett, in his reminiscences covering some of those years, has said:

Process Servers Busy.

"When they couldn't do anything else, they sued me, and I used to think I was neglected when I wasn't served with a court summons for something or other at least once a day."

And then there was Fitz. They called him a drunkard and they hissed him and scoffed at him and told him he was "yellow" because he didn't give Corbett a return match. They called him names, they "rode" him in the newspapers; they called him illiterate, ignorant, "a disgrace" and much else.

The men who had prayed to the highest heavens that he should whip Corbett in 1897, prayed just as fervently through 1898 and into 1899 that Corbett get a return shot and "murder the damned Cornishman." Fitz had never done anything to change the sentiment of 1897 to that of 1898 except to win a world's heavyweight championship.

Jim Jeff Has His Turn.

Then Jim Jefferies bumped off Fitz, whereupon he promptly became "that big California bum." How'd he happen to win it? "Fluke" said almost everyone. What a bum he was. Why he couldn't even stop poor old Bob Armstrong a year ago. He was just a sparring partner—a big rough fellow who didn't even know how to hit straight.

And so it continued, Jeff, the quiet, unobstrusive gladiator, quickly became unpopular for no reason other than that he had won a championship. When he fought Tom Sharkey at Coney Island, the crowd was with Tom. Jeff's portion was hisses and booes. Why didn't he pick on some one his size? When he gained the decision, after one of the most terrific battles ever waged they said the title was stolen for Jeff. And the hisses and the booes became his in even greater portion.

Reviled By The "Mob."

The rabble besought Jim Corbett to "kill the big stiff" at Coney Island in 1900; the crowd, which had a venomous dislike for Corbett, when he was champion, made an idol of him when he fought as an ex-champion. Jeff won, but in victory he became disliked more than ever. The crowds went to see him get whipped; hoped he'd lose; shrieked encouragement to the foeman of this modest, unassuming king of the heavies.

When Jeff had whipped every man in his division—when he had conquered all of his world, he retired; he hung up his gloves and went into retirement where he remained for more than five years. And then, of a sudden, the black shadow of Jack Johnson loomed upon the horizon, and the voice of Johnson boomed "I'm champion."

The mob resenting the Johnsonian swagger and Johnson's arraganant atitude, called upon Jeff to come out of retiremen. He replied that he was then 60 pounds overweight, had been out of the game for years and that it was 10 to 1 that he never could get back into winning condition.

Jeers and More Jeers.

So they hooted Jeff and jeered him; they called him "a yellow cur," they said he was a coward an dthat he was afraid of Johnson. They said he always had been saffron, in so far as courage was concerned. They sneered at the mention of his name and declared that he disgraced the white race by refusing to fight Johnson. All that has been said of Dempsey, wasn't more than what was said in those day about Jeff.

In the end, Jeff disregarded his own best judgment; he harkened to the taunting voices of his revilers. He went back into the ring, was whipped—and though sixteen years have swept down through the canyons of eternity, the same scoffers who had urged him to "come back" continued to condemn him because he did.

A man of less phlegmatic nature than Jim Jeffries would long since have been driven into the grave of a broken hearted man because of the condemnation heaped upon him because he did what the public demanded he should do.

Johnson Glad He Lost.

Johnson's career still remains vivid—and a blaze of scarlet. He was a conceited black man, arrogant and yet not really vicious. Yet Johnson, from the day he whipped Jeff until the day that he lost his title in 1915 in Havana, was persecuted. Every time he drove his car a trifle fast, he was jailed and fined. He was sued about 1,000,000 times. Every policeman who saw him regarded him as fair prey. He was hounded wherever he went. He was indicted from this country and for years was a wanderer.

Jes Willard knocked him out in the afternoon. That night a fight writer saw Johnson in the Hotel Plaza in Havana.

"Well, what about it?" he was asked.

"Thank gawd, it's ovah," he said.

"The fight?" the writer countered.

Just a Hell on Earth.

"No, this business of being champion;—that's what I mean" he replied. "It's been hell,—just plain hell. Before I was champion nobody said I was a bad fellow. But from the day I beat Jeffries—well, it's been hell on this earth for me. Willard is welcome to that title and it won't be long before he's sorry that his is champion, just like I've been.

Willard lived to rue his ascendancy to the throne. He, too, ran into one law suit and another. Instead of acclaim and cheers and the hero worship stuff that he had anticipated, he became known as "that big bum." He was called a coward for failure to meet Fred Fulton; he was accused of being "yellow" because he dodged Dempsey and some of the others.

History Repeats for Jack.

And now it's Dempsey—with history repeating. Like Sullivan and Jeffries, he's accused of dodging a black man; he's called "yellow" and "cowardly." He draws his hoots and his jeers; at every turn and he's met by one process server or another. His every act, good, bad or indifferent, is distorted to take on the appearance of some outrageous bit of conduct.

Sullivan went broke—and died broke; Corbett made nearly $2,000,000 in his ring days, but frittered it all away, only to rebuild a fortune through his theatrical work in hese late years. Fitz died broke. His only assets were a few diamond fillings which he had in his teeth. And now his widow asks permission of the courts of law to exhume his body so that the diamonds can be taken from his mouldering jaw bone and sold so that the proceeds will help her to live.

Champs Always go Broke.

Jeffries made a huge fortune, but only a few years ago he had to go through bankruptcy. Johnson went broke years ago. Willard made around $350,000 but, he too, went broke. And so, all through the history of modern ringdom, the lives of the ex-champions reveal taht no matter how much they gained, no mater how great were the niches they accumulated from their prestige or their activities in the prize ring, they lost it all in he end.

Dempsey isn't broke. But Dempsey isn't dead yet, nor is he an ex-champion. Give time and the curse, which already has dealt him his portion of scoffs and booes, a chance at his ring fortune!

AITKEN VICTOR OVER FOLSOM

when he beat Dr. J. S. Pierce, 1 up on the twentieth hole. It was the third time during the course of the tournament that Burt had won on extra holes. In the first round he eliminated J. M. Mayhew on 21 holes and in the second round his match with Al DuTeau went 19 holes.

Results at Eastridge.

Five more matches in the Eastridge golf tournament were cleared away as a result of Saturday's play over the club course. One second round match was decided in the first flight when C. D. Ammon, who had already eliminated the tournament medalist. George Meckling, defeated O. H. Magee, 3 and 1. The remaining first round match in the championship was also played yesterday, Jasper Clark winning from Max Johnson, 1 up on 21 holes, after a gruelling match. Results of yesterday's play:

First Flight.

C. D. Ammon defeated C. H. Magee, 3 and 1. Second round.)

Jasper Clark defeated Max Johnson, 1 up on 21 holes. First round)

Third Flight.

C E. Hinds defeated Don Wachter, 4 and 3. Second round).

Fourth Flight.

R. D. Latsch defeated H. P. Letton, 3 and 2. Second round).

H. F. Wheeler defeated L. E. Gunderson, 4 and 3. Second round.)

In the only match of the women's tournament, Mrs. Guy Minor eliminated Mrs. Paul Royal, 7 and 6. It was a second round contest in the second flight.

Diamond Briefs

Travers Jackson of the Giants was hitting sensation in the National league last week, the shortstop edging up among the leaders.

Put down Second Baseman Selph of the Fort Smith team in the Western association as one of the most frequent visitor at the home plate. He has scored 138 runs in 116 games.

When it comes to double plays, Beaumont in the Texas league demands a hearing. The Exporters have perpetrated 165 twin killings so far.

They want to know down in the Virginia league if there is anyone to match speed with First-baseman Attreau of the Norfolk team. He has stolen 52 bases in 120 games.

Centerfielder Oliver of the Beaumont club in the Texas loop entered the Hall of Fame and locked the door behind when he pounded out six hits in as many times up against San Antonio.

BIG BILL STILL KING OF TENNIS

Tilden Downs Johnston and Shows Old Wizardry In Wielding Racquet.

Critics Who Predicted The Champion's Downfall Are Badly Fooled.

By DAVIS J. WALSH.

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Ag. 14.—(INS)—"For men may come and men may go, but I go on forever."

Tennyson's classic couplet must have jingled through the mind of someone in the crowd of 5,000 that saw William T. Tilden score another of his series of victories over William Johnston this afternoon in the feature of the annual east-west matches. The scores were 6-3, 4-6, 6-1, 6-1, and Johnston had no chance after the second set, if, indeed, he ever had one.

Reply To Critics.

This was Tilden's gesture—his reply—to his critics who had been chanting a requiem over what they had conceived to be the champion's competitive remains. Yes, the boys had gathered around the catafalque and the sum total of their lamentations was that he was a good guy when he had it.

Well, he had it today — speed, pace, judgment, surety of stroke, everything. Bill Tilden, to my jaundiced eye, was as good this afternoon as he has been at any time since he first won the title in 1920.

West Outclassed.

When Tilden is like that, Johnston must run second. He did. So, for that matter, did the entire west, losing all of the seven matches played.

Three others, in addition to the Tilden-Johnston affair, were held today and resulted as follows:

Francis T. Hunter, east, defeated Phil Neer, west, 6-4, 6-3.

Manuel Alonso, east, defeated Cranston Holman, west, 6-3, 8-6.

Vincent Richards and R. Norris Williams, east, defeated William Johnston and Edwin Chandler, west, 6-3, 6-4.

Lean Picking for West.

The west, as a matter of unfortunate fact, won only two sets in the entire series, Johnston's second against Tilden, and that of Holman and Lionel Ogden against Tilden and A. H. Chapin yesterday.

It was perhaps the strongest team the east has yet placed in the field in this series, and it made the most of it.

Further, its leader was the strongest in the world, at least on the run of today's play. He may be bad tomorrow, but today he was fool-proof.

Bill Himself Again.

He proved it with the first exchange against Johnston, one of his drives almost knocking the racquet from Billy's hand.

"Don't tell me that guy's gone back," said a newly arrived critic. I didn't try to.

Johnston battled the old master as only Billy can, but even though he did win the second set he hardly had enough to argue successfully with a man who couldn't go wrong, and didn't. Apparently Billy's second set effort tapped all of his reserve, for the last two sets were played in most formal fashion, Tilden knowing he could win at any time, and Johnston knowing it, too.

MANUSH, GOSLIN BUSY CLOUTERS

Tiger and Senator Sluggers Climb Toward Top In A. L. Hitting.

The rapid advance of Manush of Detroit and Goslin of Washington towards the top in hitting, the home run drive of Babe Ruth and the crossing of the 50-mark in two-baggers by Burns of Cleveland featured the race in the American league during the past week.

Fothergill of Detroit, as might be expected, retained the lead among the hitters, but he fell below the .400 mark by losing five points. Manush tacked on 14, Ruth seven and Goslin six.

Ruth made a determined assault on the pill to catch up with his record in four-base clouts, hammering out four, which brought his total to 37, six behind his record mark for the same day. Incidentally Ruth stepped over the century in runs by scoring nine times. Gehrig, his teammate, also topped the 100 tallies by crossing the plate six times, Ruth leading by three.

Burns Bids for Record.

The four home runs helped to make it a fraction over two bases per hit for Ruth with 137 safe smashes and 276 total bases.

Burns pounded out four two-baggers, which brought his total to 53, and unless an accident should befall the Cleveland walloper he is certain to set a mark to shoot at for some time to come. The old record, held by Tris Speaker, is 59.

There were others busy with the flail besides the Bambino. Manush and Goslin and Williams of St. Louis drove the ball over the fences twice. Simmons of Philadelphia and Lazzeri of New York hammered out one each.

Yanks Touch .300 Mark.

The hitting was fairly robust near the top, although there were some losses and there were more teams which lost or just broke even than those which gained. New York gained a little and again touched the .300 mark. Detroit and Boston made the biggest advances, while Chicago was one of the biggest losers.

Except for those at the top among the individuals, the changes were not great, either way. Burns fell back in his all-around hitting, as did Miller of St. Louis. Bob Muesel of the Yankees, returning to the game, dropped five points.

Reuther of Washington became the leader among the regular pitchers, although Shocker and Pennock of New York and Uhle of Cleveland have won more games than the Washington hurler, as has also Lyons of Chicago.

Lawrence Jumps On All-Nations Hurlers

LAWRENCE, Neb., Aug. 14.—The local baseball team defeated the Kansas City All-Nations here Friday afternoon by a score of 9 to 7. Lawrence poled 14 hits, while the All-Nations garnered but nine. The visiting team used four different pitchers in an effortto stop the hitting of the Lawrence players.

Coast Girl Drops Out of Tennis For Remainder of 1926 Season

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Aug. 14.—(INS)—Helen Wills today formally withdrew from the national women's tennis championship match to be held here this week, thus relinquishing her American title by default.

Miss Wills took this step, according to Jones W. Mersereau, president of the United States lawn tennis association, who made the announcement, upon the advice of physicians. They told the champion that further strenuous competition at the present time might endanger her health.

Consulted Mersereau.

"Helen came to me today and asked me what she should do," said Mersereau. "I told her that if she were my own daughter, I could not give her better advice than to retire from competition at this time. She said that she feared entering the tournament and then being forced to withdraw in the middle of it, and that she would rather not start at all than to face a default once the tournament was under way. She was examined by Dr. Kennedy, whose advice was to return home immediately as she was in no condition for further competition. I told Helen that if I were in her place I would go home immediately I understand she is leaving for California."

Out For Rest Of Season.

Miss Wills will be out of competition the rest of the season, it was understood. This verdict came at the end of six months of tournament play which she has undergone. She went abroad last winter to play Mlle. Lenglen and hasn't seen her native California since.

The climax of her trip abroad was an operation for appendicitis which kept her out of the Wimbledon championship. It was the after-effects of this operation that caused her withdrawal today.

Did Some Thinking.

Helen was about the stadium late today and appeared to be in fair health, in spite of her arduous experiences. She smiled faintly when questioned about Mr. Mersereau's statement and said:

"I'm not afraid to take a licking and would have been glad to go through with the championships, but when a physician told me he wouldn't answer for the consequences, nor would he promise that my competitive career wouldn't be ruined, it caused me to think twice, so I'm going home. I'm glad.

Approved By Parents.

BERKELEY, Calif., Aug. 14.—(INS)—"We think that Helen should withdraw from the strenuous campaign of a national woman's tennis championship," Dr. C. A. Wills, her father, said today when informed that his famous daughter had taken those steps.

"Helen has not sufficiently recovered her strength after her recent operation in France, and both Mrs. Wills and myself think that further strenuous activity at this time would jeopardize her health."

Dr. Wills declared his daughter would return home the latter part of this month to continue her studies at the University of California.

"Helen needs a long rest," he continued. "Next year she will be ready again to go on the courts."

should be a thriller. The Shogos are the 1926 city champions. They lost one of the neatest flingers in the loop in Johnny Betzer, a husky right-hander. The veteran John Sitzman will hold down Bag 1 while Gross, Zichek, Welderspan and Wintersteen are other local celebrities included on the roster. Price, a former Bennet catcher, will da the backstopping. Mankameier, Blum, Yost and D. Sitzman are listed in the Beanery lineup with Herzog, Atkins or Schmidt on the rubber.

The nightcap between Sipe's Varsity Cleaners and the Malcolm aggregation will settle an old argument, both teams claiming an early season win on the Malcolm lot. "Spike" Gilliand or Roth will do the throwing for the Cleaners, while Bernek has ben named to toss for the visiting club.

Cleaners Have Class.

The Cleaners have been picked by many of the local fans as tourney favorites. Yetter and Roper are as nifty a pair of infielders as are entered in the tourney. Runyan on first, Meyers in center and Gerlach behind the bat are all old heads and balance the Cleaner outfit so that it is a formidable aggregation. Frank Ullstrom, regular centerfielder, is out of the city and will be unable to complete with the Cleaner tribe. Lineup of the six teams:

Phils Turn Back New York Giants

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 14. — Two home runs gave the Phillies an 8-inning victory, 4 to 3, over the New York Giants here today in what was scheduled to be a doubleheader until rain set in. These two homers, executed by Leach in the first inning, with two on, and by Wrightstone in the second constituted the Phils' scoring. Scott and Davies held the visitors to six hits, while Carlson was being flicked for seven. The game was the occasion of the Giants' final appearance in Philadelphia this season. The score:

Brooklyn Stung For Two Defeats

BROOKLYN, Aug. 14.—The Braves achieved a double victory over the Dodgers here today, winning the regular contest from Petty, 4 to 3, and the second by a score of 5 to 2. O'Neil's two passed balls featured Petty's poor support, which cost the Dodgers the first affray. Fifteen hits off Grimes and McWeeney summarized the nightcap. Nine of these bingles were off Grimes and included five bunts. Genewich limited the Dodgers to three hits and no runs in six innings. J. Smith and Welsh got four blows each in the after-piece. Glory For the Girl Who Failed In Channel Swim Success Crowned Efforts of Gertrude Ederle, But Clara Belle Barrett, Who Didn't Get Across, Was Nine Hours Longer in Swirling Waters and Swam 40 Miles, Against Trudy's 16.

BY FRANK G. MENKE.

Gertrude Ederle swam to success and immortality through the surging water of the treacherous English channel; Clara Belle Barrett plunged through them to heart-breaking failure. Ederle's feat was the most magnificent success in the history of athletic womanhood; Barrett's failure was no less wonderful.

Victory, success, attainment of the goal—those are, in the way things of today are measured, the only things that matter. Ederle attained her end, swimming through to triumph and world fame; Barrett failed. Yet, without attempting to take from Ederle even the slightest iota of credit and glory which she so richly deserves, there comes the thought sometimes that all things considered, Barrett's failure was as glorious as Ederle's success.

Comparing the Record.

Compare their records: Ederle, in 1925, making her first swim through the channel, could remain in the water less than nine hours and negotiated only about 16 miles. Barret making her first effort in 1926, was in the water 21 hours and 45 minutes and covered more than 40 miles before she quit. In Ederle's second attempt, she was in the water 14 hours and some minutes and covered only about 25 miles, which was 12 miles less and seven hours less of fighting and battling than Barrett displayed in her failure.

Ederle is 19; Barrett is 32—a swing of 13 years in favor of Ederle. Ederle, on her swim, had a tugboat equipped with every convenience. A graphaphone played to perk her spirits; her friends sang to her to stay depression. She had the comfort of knowing that her father and her sister were there and every so often a radio message came to her from across the seas from her mother.

"Trudy" Had Company.

When she found swimming alone was a bit monotonous, Ishak Helmy dived into the water and kept her company, or her sister or Lillian Cannon stroked along with her for many miles. Mental depression, the terrible, fearful foe in such an epic struggle, was not permitted to enmesh her, for whenever there was noted a bit of sagging, or when her spirits seemed to be drooping the slightest bit, somebody sang, or somebody played a tune, or somebody swam with her, or a message was flashed from her mother, or her father encouraged her and verbally petted and cheered her.

For nearly two months she was in training. The most competent staff in the world was at her beck and call. She had the greatest trainer in the channel district. And when she started her swim, the boat that guided her route was piloted by men who knew every inch of those channel waters and never wasted so much as an inch in false steering.

Scarcity of Cash.

As to Clara Bell Barrett:

Early in the summer, without ostentation or the blare of trumpets, or the cheers from hero worshippers, she sailed for Europe—with a bankroll of only $300 after her one-way fare had been paid. To friends she simply explained that she thought she could swim the channel and was going over to make the try—"just to see if I can't get this honor for America."

When she arrived, she was, at first, appalled to learn that preparation for the effort meant expense. She needed a trainer; she needed quarters while prepping for the titanic struggle. And she needed a tugboat to sail alongside of her while the swim was in progress. Dipping into her slender purse, she extracted the last money she had, paid part of it to a trainer, part of it for training quarters and then not having enough left to hire a tug, she compromised on a little launch.

Chose Harder Crossing.

Long before she had "prepped" enough to really endure the shock of the icy waters, she made the swimming effort—because lack of funds made it impossible for her to train any longer. She had so little money left that she could not afford boat fare to cross over to France and make the swim toward the English shore. She was forced to plunge off England and try to gain the French side—a crossing regarded infinitely more difficult to swim than toward Dover (England), as Ederle did.

Clara Belle Barret jumped into the icy waters without cheering throngs to give her vocal courage. She swam out into the dark, into the surging waters, utterly alone—except for the motor boat that kept a dozen feet or so away. Often the fog blanketed her and the boat and only shouts kept the boat from drifting off and away and leaving her alone in the water. Jelly fish, hundreds of them, clung to her arms, stung her, brought her intense pain.

Narrow Escape In Fog.

Once a channel packet rushed out of the fog and nearly ran her down. So close was it that the suction of the boat nearly drew her under. Several times the motorboat was lost from the sound of her voice. The waves hammered her, pounded her, drove her back—but only temporarily. On she came again, and ever onward she went toward the distant French shore. Alone in the terrifying waters, chilled to the marrow, suffering from jelly fish bites, confronted by failure, she still fought on.

She swam into currents, and their mighty power nulled the beautiful strength in her body and the perfection of her onward stroke. She was carried miles and yet more miles out of the direct pathway. But as soon as the currents released her, she again headed in the original direction. When new currents fought her back, twisted her out of her pathway, she fought them, conquered them finally—and again she struggled on through fog and darkness.

Lacked a Searchlight.

The real tragedy and the real pity about the Barrett effort is that the lack of a searchlight alone halted this quiet, modest, unassuming girl from being the first girl in the world to make a ladies' swimming pool out of the most treacherous and tempestuous body of water in the world. For when darkness came and the fog had descended the boat, without a searchlight, steered off its course. The girl trailed the boat and the blunder cost her eight miles of effort and nearly six added hours in the water.

When the course had been relocated, the girl swam back along the false lane she had traversed, but it was too late. The hours lost were vital hours, for before she was back to the original point where the blunder had been made the mighty tide began to turn—and no human lives who can fight against that irresistible whirl of waters.

Tide Forces Her to Quit.

"I really wasn't tired when I gave up," she explained simply. "I felt I could go for several more hours But the men in the boat explained that the tide was just changing and that it would carry me back many miles and keep me in the water at least four more hours before I could swim back over the distance lost by tidal floating. So that meant four hours of drifting and perhaps five more hours of swimming to shore from where the tide carried me. I didn't feel equal to nine more hours of it. Especially because the fog was so thick I was likely to lose the boat in the tidal drift. So I just gave up. And I'm so sorry about it, too, for I felt sure I could make the swim."

Glory In Defeat.

Gertrude Ederle's name shall thunder down through to canyons of time because she succeeded in swimming the English channel. She has earned all the glory that is hers. But what of Clara Belle Barrett? Should there ever be forgetfulness of the girl who swam a far greater distance than Ederle covered, who endured seven hours more of torture, only to have fog come which made her pilots blunder out of her course and doomed her to heart-breaking failure as the only reward for her superlative effort, her sublime courage and her glorious athletic American womanhood?

SETS RECORD IN CAR SALES

Buick Disposes of 240,000 Cars In Past Fiscal Year.

E. T. Strong, general sales manager of the Buick Motor company, announces retail deliveries for the fiscal year 1926 ending July 31 of 240,424 cars, surpassing the best previous sales of any fiscal year by the remarkable total of 69,375 cars.

This sales total places Buick far in the lead of all manufacturers selling cars priced at more than $1,000, and exceeds the sales of all other makes but a few in the low priced, four cylinder group.

The remarkable feature of this sales record is the conservative manufacturing and selling plan under which it was made. Production for the same twelve months period was 240,512 cars, almost identically the same figure as sales.

Strong said in his statement that the sale of nearly a quarter of a million automobiles in the quality field indicated why Buick was able in its 1927 model to offer so many revolutionary improvements without an increase in price. The 1927 Buick, which was announced July 31, has already started to set new sales records, he said.

This car is powered by the same Buick valve-in-head engine as last year, but with improvements which have led the company to state without qualification that it is literally "vibrationless beyond belief." Chief among the features of construction which bring about this result are a counter-balanced crankshaft with torsion balancer, light cast iron pistons, heavy flywheel, rubber engine mountings at all three points of suspension and an improved valve operating mechanism. Paralleling the new engine in importance is the new Buick crankcase ventilator, a device without moving parts which holds crankcase dilution to such limits that the oil need be changed completely only four times a year.

Matching the excellence of the chassis are many features of line, color and finish which make the 1927 Buick a truly custom built car in every respect save price. All these improvements in construction and design are added to Buick features of the past with prices held at the same level. The huge sales volume of 1926, Strong says, has made this possible.

While the sale of 240,000 cars at a price averaging around $1500 has never been approached in a single year by any manufacturer, Buick is preparing for even larger sales totals in the future. The production capacity of the plant has been increased to 1,200 cars a day, so that if necessary the company can produce in excess of 300,000 cars per year. The $2,000,000 recently expended for expansion was partly utilized to effect manufacturing economies which have aided materially in keeping Buick prices at their present low level.

Derby "Jinx" To Winning Horses

"Win the Kentucky derby and ruin your horse" seems to be the racing rule of the past few years.

Morvich, which won in 1922, never was worth a dime as a racing tool thereafter and soon was retired to the stud although he had won 11 consecutive races before he was raced to his doom in the Derby triumph.

Black Gold won in 1924, ran a few races afterward and then this "iron horse" broke down—through with racing for all time. Flying Ebony was the victory in 1925, but the strain cracked him and soon afterward he was forced into retirement. Bubbling Over won the classic this year, broke down a few days later—and never may race again.

Since 1921 only one horse, Zev, has won the derby and been a consistent performer thereafter. Every other one has quickly paid the terrible toll of early season training of a strenuous nature, followed by the gruelling duel for the highest honors of turfdom.

It is reported in California that if the measure to legalize horseracing in the state is successful on the November ballot, at least three first-class tracks will be in operation—San Francisco, Los Angeles and San Diego.

Gertrude Ederle Steps Out of Channel Into Fortune, Tour of Country, Movies Call the Wonder Maid of Nineteen Emerging victorious from her swim of the English channel, Gertrude Ederle faces the pleasant prospect of collecting a fortune equalling that derived by Jack Dempsey from the boxing world and Babe Ruth from the baseball world. With her affair handled properly she may even surpass these fortunes.

Ruth stands out as the greatest baseball idol and drawing card in the world. Baseball is a game of men.

Jack Dempsey is high king of the boxing game. But it too is a game for men—and men of brawn at that.

But Gertrude Ederle stands out today, not merely as the greatest woman swimmer in the world—but the greatest of all swimmers in point of speed, endurance and pluck — to say nothing of actual achievement.

She surpassed the deeds of the greatest of men.

She has excelled the feats of men who sought and achieved the ultimate in swimming—the crossing of the English Channel. She invaded man's last domain in the aquatic world and bettered his performances.

There is but one possible barriers which will prevent her from acquiring a fortune ranking with that which fame has netted Ruth and Dempsey. That is the nature of her achievement. And in this age of high powered promotion work this will be overcome. She will draw unheard of sums for appearances at the bathing centers of the world. Vaudeville tours will net her a handsome weekly income over a period of months. The movies will call—and beg for her services.

The fact that she already was a professional swimmer when she achieved the channel swim left the way clear for her to make the most of these offers. Not only that, but it leaves her free to sell her services as a profession at a handsome figure.

All this at the age of nineteen, when most girls are content to loll upon the beach in natty suits and idolize the life guards.

One of the many exhibitions already considered for Miss Ederle is a swim down the Hudson or Schuylkill river, pitting her speed and endurance, perhaps, against two or three well known swimmers. While this would not present the conditions under which the channel swim is made — cold, choppy sea, fog, tide, etc.—it would give hundreds of thousands of persons a chance to see the way she handles herself in the water, the various strokes she uses.

Undoubtedly she will derive more from her achievement in a few months than all of the five men who swam the channel have derived together.

Capt. Webb, first successful aspirant, toured the world for years and undoubtedly made a snug little fortune—as fortunes were estimated then. Those who came later—Thomas Burgass, Henry Sullivan, S. Tiraboschi and Charley Toth, realized on their achievement but not to theextent Miss Ederle will, by many mints full.

Truly, the world lies before Miss Ederle.

Tunney Has Tart Way of Saying What He Thinks

BY FRANK G. MENKE.

A Philadelphia negro named White rcently ran amuck with a fountain pen—or maybe it was just a blunt, black lead pencil—and before he had been thrown for the loss of whatever little prestige he ever had, he was able to scribble the "amazing" fact that he had information to the effect that:

(1) Jack Dempsey is afraid of Harry Wills.

(2) The Dempsey-Tunney fight is going to be a fake.

(3) All that is rotten isn't in Denmark.

Not much attention would be paid to this were it not that the author happens to be Charles White, a member of the Pennsylvania state athletic commission, probably for no other reason than that, like most boxing commissioners, he controls a few votes.

"Protecting" the Public.

"I feel it is my duty to protect the public," is the alibi offered for the sending of his telegraphic "warning" to the New York state athletic commission.

This Philadelphia negro wired his warning of 'fake" to "protect the public," as he puts it. Maybe that was the purpose. But who shall say that it wasn't to secure a bit of revenge upon Gene Tunney, who beat Harry Wills to a championship match — and the very same Gene Tunney who sort of threatened to knock the Commissioner White loose from his brains two years ago in a fistic dressing room in Edensburg, Pa.

Took Cunning Revenge.

When White sent his warning of "fake," he perhaps forgot that there might be remembrance of that incident in 1924 when he accused Tunney of faking and came close to annihilation as his answer. Perhaps the Pennsylvania negro doesn't know that the incident is mildly public and that, therefore, he assumes that his warning never could be construed as cunning revenge upon Tunney, but merely as a "noble" action on his part to "protect the public."

The message White sent to James A. Farley, chairman of the New York state athletic commission and no friend of Tunney's, on July 29, and that was broadcast around the land, was:

Text of White's Message.

"Be careful of a fake Dempsey-Tunney fight. I am told by good authority Jack Dempsey said recently in private conversation that Tunney is no match for him and Harry Wills is the only man in the world who can give him a battle. Jack Kearns told one of our deputies that Dempsey fears Wills and that is why Dempsey broke with Kearns after the signing of the Dempsey-Wills contract. I feel it my duty to protect the public."

Dissecting the message, one finds that this negro apparently has the idea that the fight is going to be a phoney for the simple reason that Dempsey thinks he can plaster Tunney into a coma in a hurry. Dempsey also thinks he can whip Wills in a round or two—he thinks, and he so expressed himself, that Wills isn't game, that Wills can't take a punching and that Wills would be a pushover.

Dempsey Wants Wills.

Therefore, if the Dempsey-Tunney fight is to be viewed with suspicion and alarm as to its honesty because Dempsey thinks he can whip Tunney, will White explain why he espouses a Dempsey-Wills fight—with Dempsey thinking that he could whip Wills twice as rapidly as he can Tunney?

In answer to the allegation that Kearns told somebody that Dempsey broke with him because he wanted Dempsey to fight Wills, and Dempsey refused, I should like to advise this Pennsylvania commissioner that if Kearns said any such thing, than Kearns is frolicking around with the truth. Kearns knows why Dempsey broke with him—and the break had nothing to do with any black Wills, white Wills, pink or lavender Wills.

Concerning the Motive.

The statement by Mr. White, containing nothing but a drool of words, therefore might have been prompted by some motive beyond "protecting the public." For certainly the mere fact that Dempsey thinks he can knock Tunney into an undertaking parlor wouldn't given even an insane man reason to label the fight a fake. Yet Mr. White wrote the message, sent it and saw to it that copies arrived in newspaper shops. He wanted to get it written into the public prints —and have it sown into the public mind—that the fight was a potential fake.

Why did Mr. White do that? Why did he take his beezer out of Pennsylvania and shove it into the New York affair? Does he want to kill the fight—to stop Tunney, for instance, from making some money and getting a shot at the title? If so, why?

That Edenburg Incident.

Now can be cited the little incident of Sept. 27, 1924, which transpired in Edenburk, Pa., where Gene Tunney met up with Ray Neumann of New Jersey in a 10-round no-decision fight. Frank Flowindy, recently matchmaker of Madison Square Garden, New York, got up the show that night at the request of Charles Schwab, the steel magnate.

The Tunney-Neuman fight was a sad affair, but the fault was not Tunney's. For Neumann, notorious as a maule rand a clincher, simply wouldn't come out of his shell that night and Tunney never could get a good shot at him. As a result, the affair went the limit.

White Made His Squawk.

As Tunney was climbing through the ropes on his way back to the dressing room, White, as one of the commissioners of the occasion, rushed up to Tunney and bellowed:

"You faked that fight; you faked it."

Tunney said nothing, but white-faced, burning with rage, he proceeded to the dressing room. The negro then made the slight error of thinking he had cowed Tunney. He followed him into the dressing room, he rushed at Tunney again and said:

"You faked that fight," and as did so, he bumped his arm against Tunney's back. Tunney whirled, purple with rage, He crouched a bit toward White and said:

"Say that again."

Suddenly Silent.

White thought better of it. He remained silent. Then Gene Tunney spoke. Gene Tunney called White a lot of names—and they weren't nice little white words he spoke. He told White just exactly what he'd do if the word "fake" were uttered in that room just once more. Having informed White just how he felt about him, Gene Tunney told him to "get out of here and do it fast," which request was granted in almost hurricanic fashion.

No one heard White utter any remarks about revenge. Perhaps because he had lost his voice. But White did get what you might term official revenge. For he, as commissioner, slapped a fine of $100 upon the Gene Tunney-Billy Gibson entourage because they had dared to invade the sacred precints of Pennsylvania without having some trick passport photos or something like that, as provided for in the rules and regulations laid down in the aforementioned precincts.

Was It "Protection" Only.

After which White remained dormant until Tunney was matched to fight Dempsey, whereupon he got the word "fake" into the newspapers in connection with Gene Tunney's name.

Do you think that White sent his message solely and simply for the purpose of "protecting the public?"

SARAZEN IN LINE FOR RICH PROFITS

Hirsch's Gelding Has Chance To Rank Next to Zev As Money-Getter.

The chief ambition in the life of Max Hirsch is to race Sa azen until the gelding has eclipsed the mighty earning record of approximately $250,000 hung up by Man O' War.

Zev tops all turf performers of this generation—or any other—with money gains of well over the $300,000 mark. Second place is held by the gallant old Exterminator, who tops Man O'War by a slight margin. And just back of the "Miracle Horse" thunders Sarazen with a total of around $225,000.

Sulky and Vicious.

Sarazen is 5 years old—and Sarazen, at one and the same time, is one of the fastest horses in the world, as well as the sulkiest and most vicious and temperamental. If he had run kindly all during his career, if he had been as responsive as Man O'War and Exterminator, Sarazen's mark might now be just a notch or two back of Zev's. For Sarazen has "booted' away at least eight races during his career by the simple process of sulking.

When he is in a running mood, Sarazen is unbeatable. When he's in a bad frame of mind, he fights his rider, he runs out, he balks and does everything but run the other way.

In Superb Condition.

Sarazen is sound and in splendid condition today. He ought to be able to stand two more seasons of campaigning. If he would run as he can run through the remainder of this season—and two more beyond—he ought not merely eclipse Man O'War, but Exterminator as well, tand take second rank among the winners of the American turf.

The red gelding, prior to going to Saratoga, had been to the post 39 times in his career. He had won 27 races, was second once, third twice and unplaced nine times—a mighty record that could have been far mightier if Sarazen weren't the worst sulker among the handicap horses of American racing history.

BLAKESLEY IN HITTING SLUMP

Omaha Swatter Still Leads League, But His Average Takes Tumble.

Oklahoma City conducted a furious campaign with the bat during the past week in the Western league, which incidentally furnished an illustration of consistent hitting among those who do not class with the topnotchers. As a team, the Oklahomans made an advance of five points, but the first player to be reached down the line is Funk with an average of a little over .340.

The general trend of s'ugging under the tepees of the Omahas was downward, although the loss for the team was not great. Blakesley conducted a defensive campaign, with his percentage approaching the .400 mark. The chief slugger i the Western lost six points, but there were others below him in the same fix. O'Brien of Denver found the going rough, as did his teammate, Ginglardi. Brickell of Wichita registered one of the biggest losses.

Purdy Holds His Own.

Henry of Omaha kept up the reputation of the team by adding to his previous average. Patterson and Sturdy of Tulsa were two more to improve in the batting, but the changes were not important. Purdy of Lincoln and Wetzel of Des Moines were two other no worse off then they were.

There was considerable action in the home run section of the past time, with Sturdy setting the pace for other home run hitters in the country to follow. The Tulsa walloper pounded out five four-base drives, which give him a total of 39, which is rated as the most ambitious figure on the baseball map.

No Homers for Blakesley.

Blakesley had trouble of his own in getting regular base hits without troubling to get the bal in unoccupied territory and did nothing. Henry Clouted one, while Meyers also tacked on one. Collins of Des Moines made it two.

Sturdy took the lead in runs away from Henry by crossing the plate eleven times. It is now a battle between Brown of Omaha and Wetzel for most two baggers.

Funk is right on the heels of Hughes of Des Moines in st l n bases. Tulsa wrested the lead in team hitting from Omaha. Most of the teams receded. Hall of Denver with 24 victories and Blaeholder of Tulsa with 23 are the leaders among the hurlers.

Little Rock Club May Go to Florida

ATLANTA, Ga., Aug. 14.—(I. N. S.)—A deal for the purchase of the Little Rock franchise of the Southern league by baseball interests in Jacksonville, Fla., and the transfer of the club to the Florida metropolis is being negotiated, it was learned here tonight. The names of Charles Griner, president of the Jacksonville Southeastern league club, was mentioned as having launched negotiations with Bob Allen, long the owner of the Little Rock franchise.

Huggins Takes Rating As Miracle Man.

Conceding that the New York Yankees have won the 1926 pennant in the American league, Miller Huggins must be classed as the outstanding figure in that league—if not in baseball—today.

Looking at his case without any feeling of hysteria Huggins must be given a world of credit for transforming a disorganized seventh-place team into a flag winning combination in one season.

Several conditions have helped him of course. The remarkable comeback of Babe Ruth is the outstanding one. Ruth, after apparently facing the end of his career last fall, became once more the mainspring the inspiration of the ball club—and in addition began to shine again as a home run hitter. His circuit clouts have won the ball games Huggins had prayed for while Ruth was hitting the high road to pleasure.

Ruth's success in holding to the path of rectitude has helped Huggins hold up the morale of the ball club.

The reversal of form shown by Urban Shocker—a dismal failure last year—has been more than a mere contributing factor. His comeback has been a brilliant one.

Herb Pennock's defiance of time—concerning which no one could even hazard a guess last spring—has helped.

But subtracting these factors from the discussion Huggins still belongs to the Miracle Man class because of his success in:

Rebuilding his infield at three points.

Plugging the gaps in that infield when Mark Koenig's slump and injuries to Joe Dugan forced changes

The development of Lou Gehrig into a good first-baseman.

The molding of Tony Lazzeri, Pacific Coast home run star into a good second baseman.

That of Koenig, St. Paul infielder, into a brilliant shortstop.

The development of Earl Combs into a great outfielder.

The molding of Garland Braxton, rookie hurler, into a wonderful relief pitcher.

The molding of Pat Collins into a good catcher, after he had been shunted to the minors for a couple of years.

And most of all, the instilling in the team the spirit to win. Huggins stated frankly last spring that one of his reasons for wrecking his old ball club and rebuilding it was because the old combination had lost the desire to "fight it out" for every game.

Huggins' defeat in winning three American league pennants in a row doesn't stand out as brilliantly as does his work of 1926. He had a team well constructed, with plenty of power and defensive strength to start that run. Babe Ruth might have furnished the necessary punch with any team that year—driving out the record breaking number of 59 home runs as he did.

The rise of the Hugmen to the top at the start of Huggins' regime coincided too closely with Ruth's rise to fame to permit giving Huggins the maximum amount of credit there. This season, however, Mr. Huggins began his labors with Ruth an unknown quantity. Drastic methods invoked last season to enforce discipline in Ruth's case had shown the slugger his place in the scheme of things. To the list of Huggins' achievements then might be added his successful fight to bring Ruth to time by fair means or fines.

Weighing Miller Huggins as coldly as you will—and the public seems to prone to do so—he must be ranked with George Stllings, John McGraw, Connie Mack and the others who have been classed as Miracle Men, Master Minders and just plain honest-to-goodness great managers.

Tip O'Neil Earned Crown As King of All Sluggers

The batsman who holds the highest percentage in batting for a season in major league baseball began his career on the diamond at a salary of $1.50 a week and board. Back in the late seventies, James E. O'Neil and Bob Emslie were hired by the Harriston Browns, one of the best ball teams in Canada, at the terms mentioned. When not playing ball they were supposed to do duty in the office of the hotel. Emslie, who was a hurler and the greatest in Canada, after starring in major league circles for a number of years, became an umpire of national reputation and today, although not doing active duty, is on the list of National league umpires. Tip O'Neill, wsa passed away a number of years ago, began his career as a hurler, but was a clever batsman and all-around player.

Made His Record In '87.

It was in 1887, with the original St. Louis Browns, that the batting eye of Tip O'Neil hone the brightest. In that season he missed only 16 games out of the 123 he played in which he didn't make a safe hit. A total of 277 hits, made in the 563 times he stepped to the plate, gave him the remarkable batting average of .492, the highest ever made in major league baseball.

The season of 1887 is jotted down in baseball history as a freak one. In an effort to subduethe dominance of hurlers, some queer rulings were resorted to, among which the strikes were changed from three to four This ruling gave the batsman some advantage, but, at that, there were some records made in whiffing batsmen. Tom Ramsey created a world's record when on June 21 he fanned 17 of the Cleveland team in a nine-inning game. So the hurlers who mastered the new rules and survived were just as difficult to garner hits off as in any other season.

Slugger of Hornsby Type.

Tip O'Neil wa a hitter of the Hornsby type—a clean, hard and consistent hitter who touched right and left-handed hurling with ease and confidence. A player of these days possessing the natural ability to hit a ball with a batting eye equal to this former marvel would shine in baseball. Over six feet in height and weighing 190 pounds, O'Neil was the personification of the perfect type of batsman and ball player.

A base on balls was counted as a hit that season and also was charged up as a time at bat. O'Neill received 47 passes, which would leave him 230 actual hits. At bat 563 times less 47 would be 516, which would mean a batting average of .444.

No Chance for Quibbling.

This record created by Tip O'Neil has been the subject of attack by various writers, but it is genuine and either with or without bases on balls being counted the record stands as the best ever made in the major leagues. The pitching was more effective that season than it has been during the last five seasons of present times, which wouldn't be saying much. The hurlers were still shooting the ball from the 50-foot line and this alone made it more difficult for the batsmen to get hits.

Hugh Duffy in 1894, with the hurlers working from the 60-foot line, stacked up a batting average of .438. This extension of the pitching distance helped batsmen more than the several handicaps placed on hurleds in 1887 helped the batsmen of that year.

Help to the Hitters.

The lengthening of the pitching distance in 1893 created more .300 hitters than did the rules of 1887. Batsmen in 1893 and 1894, who never touched the .300 mark in hitting hopped into the charmed circle by the dozen. The first three seasons of the lively ball, or from 1921 to 1924, transformed scores of mediocre batsmen into demon hitters. So, looking at it from all angles, the record established by James E. O'Neil 39 years ago should hold as the greatest.

Greatest In His Day.

Tip O'Neil was the king of the sluggers of that period. His record in total bases exceeds the best and even to this day only Rogers Hornsby of the St. Louis Cardinals and Babe Ruth of the Yanks have records in hitting total bases that exceed the one created by the slugging king of the St. Louis Browns in 1887.

O'Neill played 10 seasons in the major leagues and finished with a lifetime batting average of .348, which is the eighth best among the batsmen of major leagues for all time.

Iowa's Champion Defeats Powell

OMAHA, Neb., Aug. 14.—(U.P.)—Harris Coggeshall, 19-year-old Iowa state tennis champion, conquered Ralph Powell, Omaha, Nebraska title-holder, in a four-set match in the finals of the Nebraska open tennis tournament here today. The scores were 4-6, 6-2, 5-3, 8-6.

The Nebraska ace fell before the more certain placements and more accurate drives of the Des Moines youngster. The pace set by the Iowan proved a strain on Powell and he weakened as the play went on.

McCormack Plays Tennis.

DEL MONTE, Cal., Aug. 14.—John A. McCormack, famed Irish tenor, made his debut in tennis playing today and won his first round match. Paired with him was Maurice McLoughlin, one of the games' greatest players of a few years ago, who was staging a comeback.

The tenor and the former court wizard were entered in the annual Del Monte doubles championship.

In a three-set match, McCormack and McLoughlin defeated M. W. Rick and A. M. Caslan of Sacramento, 4-6, 6-4, 6-3.

Peery Does Neat Job of Twirling; Shuts Out Omaha

ST. JOSEPH, Aug. 14.—"Red" Peery applied a generous coat of whitewash to the Burch Rods here today, shutting them out, 5 to 0, in the final game of the series. Peery gave the visitors just three hit and allowed only thirty batsmen to face him. Not a Rod batsman passed second base. The score:

TELLS WHY MAILS FAILS IN MAJOR

Great Pitcher In the Minors; Cuts Up Too Much To Stick in Big Time.

Walter "Duster" Mails, the "queerest duck in baseball," again is setting the Coast league ablaze with the brilliance of his twirling deeds. And finally, it seems, the mystery of him has been solved.

The eccentric southpaw pitched amazing baseball some years ago and was picked up by Brooklyn. After a trial, he was let loose. He went back to the minors and quickly flashed all of his miracle stuff. The Indians of 1920 grabbed him and Mails slung them into a pennant and a world's championship. But soon he flivvered once more in the majors and was returned to the minors.

Cards Tried Him This Year.

Then in 1925 he pitched so wonderfully that the Cards speared him. But Mails didn't stay The Cards chased him into the bushes and no sooner had he arrived when he was back doing his spectacular deeds on the mound.

Why has Mails failed in the majors and been a phenom in the minors is the unanswered quiz. Now comes the reply from a man who understands—or claims to understand—the southpaw.

"Mails is a wise-cracker. He likes to chatter, likes to play jokes and kid everybody. Let him do it and he's happy and a great pitcher. Stop him, and you break his spirit.

Likes to be Cut-up.

"In the minors, Mails gets away with that stuff. They don't resent it there, so long as he pitches good ball. But when he gets to the majors, the high-hatting managers or players resent the pranks of this comedian. They won't stand for his tricks and his chatter. They want him to be serious and dignified. That lack of vocal freedom is like dropping ice water on Mails. It just about breaks him up. He can't be light-hearted and when he isn't that, he can't pitch good ball. He's a bust—a failure.

"So back he goes to the minors and just as soon as he returns and can pull his comedy to his heart's content, why he at once perks up and pitches the game of which he is capable. And when Mails is at his best, there's no pitcher in the world who is in his class."

TY COBB FELL FOR LINE OF CHATTER

McInnis Tried Flattery; Star Of Tigers Forgot to Steal Bases.

Flattery cannot soothe the "dull cold ear of death," but it has considerable effect upon Ty Cobb.

The story goes like this: Some years ago, when "Stuffy" McInnis was first-basing in behalf of the phia cmfwyp mSHRDLU CHMR S Athletics, Ty arrived in Philadelphia, was razzed by the opposition players while in action and the more they "rode" him the worse Ty got—from the Quakertown viewpoint. Each new time Ty arrived on the bases during that series, he'd wait for the Athletics to jeer him, whereupon he'd steal two or three or four or five bases in a row, just as the mood pleased him.

Stuffy Tried New Stuff.

At about the time that Ty had stolen about everything but the grandstand and Connie Mack's hair ointment, McInnis called his mates and said:

Leave this bird to me. I'll stop him from stealing if you fellows promise not to ride or hoot Cobb or tell him a bum and a false alarm."

The next inning Cobb singled. When he arrived at first McInnis sidled up and said:

"Cobb, you're a wonder—just a wonder. The way you keep hitting that ball and the way you play the game—well, old fellow, it's marvelous. My hat's off to you. They can talk about great players, about super-players, but I'll tell you, old fellow, you're the king of them all."

Fell for Stuffy's Praise.

Cobb, who had made an effort to steal every time he had been on up to that time, clung to first base. McInnis kept up his conversation. Cobb remained at first, bouncing around a bit, but never getting out of earshot of McInnis' voice. The next time up, Ty again got to first but didn't try to steal. Finally the mystified mates of McInnis, asked the reason why.

"Well, I just figured out that bird," said McInnis. "Tell him he's a bum and he'll burn down the ball park, if necessary, to prove you're a liar. But tell him he's good—slip it to him that he's a great one, and you almost have to chase him out of earshot. I stopped him at first just by telling him how good he was and I think if I was a catcher and gave him that line of talk, that bird would be willing to strike out every time he came up."

Seward Legion Sponsors Bouts

SEWARD, Neb., Aug. 14.—Frankie Lurrabee Lincoln and Mickey Durane, Omaha, lightweights, will mix in a 10-round fracas in the main event of the Seward American Legion boxing show to be staged in the new ampitheater here Tuesday Aug. 24.

Hermie Joice, Omaha, and Red Siders, Fremont, together with and Kid Worley, Hastings, will perform in a pair of six-round semi-windups. Hookey Meyers and Skeezix Gragg will exchange bunches in the only prelim, a four-round go. A bumper crowd is expected to be on deck for the bouts.

BRESSLER ON TOP IN POUNDING PILL

Cincy Reds' Slugger Takes Pace Away From Grantham Of Pittsburgh.

Although there was a tendency of some of the leading hitters in the National league to "dig in" for a more or less protracted stay during the week, there was no great outburst of slugging and there were more losses than gains.

Cincinnati, through its shower of base hits in Wednesday's game with the Phillies, finished the week higher than it started, being one of the few teams which got better than an even break. Bressler of the Reds apparently cut in on the batting jamboree, as he is better off than he was, besides cutting loose from Grantham of Pittsburgh, his most prominent rival last week.

Grantham Takes Tumble.

Grantham, in the general rout of the Pirates, registered one of the biggest setbacks, dropping sixteen points. Lester Bell of St. Louis, another prominent individual last week, hit the toboggan with almost equal speed, which fact gave Herman of Brooklyn and Traynor of Pittsburgh a chance to become more prominent among the leaders.

Stephenson of Chicago, who tops all, wilted just a trifle. Jackson of the Giants was the hitting sensation of the week, gaining 17 points for a first place in hitting on the team. Lindstrom also gained, but was passed by his mate in the rush towards the top.

Cuyler of Pittsburgh took the count for eleven points, while Christiansen of Cincinnati, and Roush of the same team also fell back. Incidentally, Wilson and Stephenson are the only ones in the .300 class among the Cubs.

Wilson and Bottomley.

Long distance hitting also was of a pale hue, Wilson and Bottomley of St. Louis still being tied for the most home runs.

Pittsburgh, Chicago, Boston and Brooklyn were the heaviest losers in team hitting, with Cincinnati the only one to gain. Chicago went to the top in fielding.

By adding two victories to his string, Carl Mays of Cincinnati ran up his total to 15 victories, the same number being credited to his fellow moundsman, Donohue, and Meadows of Pittsburgh.

Bounced Players Loading Guns To Fire Broadside

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 14.—(UP)—A certain element of mystery still surrounds the star council action of the Buccanners' rulers, which released three players of the Pirate crew.

The three mutineers involved—Max Carey, former captain of the team; Charles "Babe" Adams and Carson Bigbee—spent the entire day in seclusion preparing a formal statement which would set forth their story of the dismissal. At the end of their conferences, however, they decided the time was not yet ripe for their move, for, as Carey explained it, "we don't want to go off half-cocked in a matter of this sort."

Statement on the Way.

The trio intimated that the statement would not be forthcoming before Monday and probably be later than that.

The players were dismissed for having made a request that Fred Clarke, vice-president of the Pittsburgh club, be kept off the bench on the theory that his work was interfering with the tactics of Bill McKechnie, the club manager.

Their "firing" was accomplished in a conference participated in by Clarke, Sam Dreyfuss, treasurer of the club, and McKechnie.

An Important Tip.

Few drivers consider it important to put out the clutch when starting the engine in their car. They figure that as long as the shift lever is in neutral there is no load on the engine. This is a mistaken idea and the sooner one knows the facts and puts them into practice, the better it will be for the battery in his car. There are gears that must be turned over when the clutch is not thrown out, and when the grease is cold and heavy this places an unnecessary strain on the starting motor, causing the brushes to arc and burn the commutator.

Retard Spark When Starting.

To avoid the motor from becoming struck, retard the spark as much as possible when starting. This will prevent a sudden start of the motor with the usual result of a broken or nicked tooth on the flywheel gear.

Blood Tells; Son of Man O' War Wins

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Aug. 14.—(U. P.)—The breed of Man O'War is not to be denied.

When the champion Crusader was left at the post in the 57th running of the old Traverse stakes this afternoon, the little considered Mars upheld the tradition of the family by running a fine mile and a quarter to beat easily a high class field of 3-year-olds. He did it in the fast time of 2:04 3-5 and paid 8 to 1.

W. R. Coe's Pompey, last year's juvenile champion, was second and Walter J. Salmon's Preakness winner, Display, third. Crusader was fourth after his bad start.

GUARDSMEN MIX IN TRACK SPORT

Ambulance Company Walks Off With Laurels; Alf High Point Man.

ASHLAND, Neb., Aug. 14.—Ambulance company 130, 110th Medical regiment, captured the annual National Guard track meet at Ashland Saturday afternoon with 31 points. The meet was closely contested with Company H, 134th infantry, having 30 and the Service company, 110th Medical regiment, 28 points. Ray Alf, Doane college star and record holder in the 220, was high point man with twenty-one of the Service company's 28 points. Governor McMullen presented to the winning company, Alf as high point winner, and the Service company relay team the various cups offered by Omaha, Lincoln and Ashland clubs and firms. Event winners received appropriate medals.

College Stars Did It.

The Ambulance company collected its points through several Hastings college and Nebraska university stars. Whitaker, Hastings college athlete, collected a first in the pole vault and a second in the hop, step and jump. Greenslit, former Hastings man, took first in the quarter-mile and second in the broad jump. "Lonnie" Stiner, Cornhusker football captain for 1926, took second in the shot put and thereby added several points to the Ambulance company total. Lt. "Hobb" Turner, former Cornhusker star and Valley title holder in the high jump, coached the winning team.

Alf Won Four Firsts.

Alf, in collecting the twenty-one points which won him four gold medals and a bronze decoration, took firsts in the 50, 100, and 220 and the hop,step and jump as well as third in the broad jump. On a rough turf track, he was able to step the 50 in 5.6, the 100 in 10.6 and the 220 in 23.2. As finish man in the 880 relay, he coasted his entire distance to give a first to the Service company in this event.

Keiss, Grand Island high school athlete, representing Company H, took first in the broad jump, third in the 100 and second in the javelin throw. Hann, another Grand Island high school man, scored a first in the javelin and second in the 220.

Capt. "Bill" Kline, camp athletic officer and Hastings college coach, supervised the meet. Coach Schulte of the University of Nebraska, assisted by Carl Peterson and Jimmie Lewis, came down to act as starters and timekepers. About seventy-five men from the various companies of the Infantry, Medical regiment and 35th Division Train participated in the various events.

Hagen Pleased To Clash With Duncan

NEW YORK, Aug. 14.—(I. N. S.)—Walter Hagen is cruising on the Great Lakes in the vicinity of Detroit or Chicago and has not received any challenge from George Duncan, British golfer, it was announced today at the offices of his manager here.

Hagen will be gad to arrange a match with Duncan, it was said, if Duncan forwards a formal challenge.

This statement was made in answer to queries in Lindon newspapers.

"Does Hagen fear Duncan?" the London Evening Standard queried, pointing out that Walter Hagen has not yet replied to a challenge from George Duncan for a 72-hole match for $2,500 over the Pine Valley course in Philadelphia.

"After his atatck on British golfers, it is obvious that he can't afford to be beaten by one, or he would be the laughing stock of the whole golfing world," said the Standard.

Leader of Giants To Bid for Carey

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 14.—(I. N. S.)—Manager John J. McGraw of the New York Giants intimated this afternoon he would try and bring Max Carey, deposed captain of the Pittsburgh Pirates, to the Giants.

Waivers have been asked on Carey, following a drastic shake-up of the Pittsburgh team.

GRAIN MARKETS.

CHICAGO, Ill., Aug. 14.

Grains closed irregular today with wheat up 1¼c, corn off ¼ to ¾c, oats unchanged to ¼c lower.

WHEAT—Wheat started ¼c lower to 1c higher. The late deliveries showed the gain. There was good buying of December by commission houses and shorts and September followed. Reports of an increase in export business was the strengthening factor. The Liverpool market came about as expected. On the advance there was selling by professionals and some of the advance was lost. Receipts were estimated at 446 cars.

CORN—Corn was ¼ to ¾c lower early. There was scattered selling on the continued favorable weather over belt and a light buying power. Later there was buying by shorts on strength in wheat and prices rallied. Receipts were estimated at 75 cars.

OATS—Oats opened steady to ¼c down but later went higher with wheat. Locals and commission houses bought. Estimated receipts were 202 cars.

PROVISIONS—Closed lower.

Changing the Definition of "Lost"

Noah Webster says it means "gone from one's possession."

We say it means "Not advertised for in the Star's Lost and Found Column."

And—judging from the results that these little Classified Ads are getting every day—it looks as though we were right!

It's not hard to account for the success of the Star's Lost and Found Classification. It's based on the simple facts that nearly every finder is honest and that his first move will be to loog through these ads to find out who lost the article he has just found.

The real proof of this is in the trying—next time you lose something of value, call B1234 and ask for an ad-taker.

THE LINCOLN STAR

Classified Advertising

The Lincoln Star is a member of The Association of Newspaper Classified Advertising Managers, which includes leading newspapers throughout the country, and has for its aim the elimination of fraudulent and misleading classified advertising. The Lincoln Star as well as every other member of the Association, endeavors to print only truthful Want Ads and will appreciate having its attention called to any advertisement not conforming to the highest standard of honesty.

Ads ordered for seven times and stopped before expiration will be charged for only the number of times the ad appeared and adjustment made at the rate earned.

Special rates for yearly advertising upon request.

Careful attention given to mail orders. Cash in full must accompany out-of-town advertisement.

Advertising for irregular insertions to take the one time rate. No ad is taken for less than a basis of three lines, and ads are restricted to their proper classifications and to the regular Lincoln Star style of type. The publisher reserve the right to edit or reject any classified advertising copy.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING INFORMATION.

Errors in advertisement should be reported immediately. The Star will not be responsible for more than one incorrect insertion.

The individual advertisements under the various classifications are arranged in ALPHABETICAL order for quick references.

Charming Combination of French and English

SIX ROOMS AND SLEEPING PORCH

Home builders who want as much as possible for their money will find the attractive house pictured above an excellent example to follow.

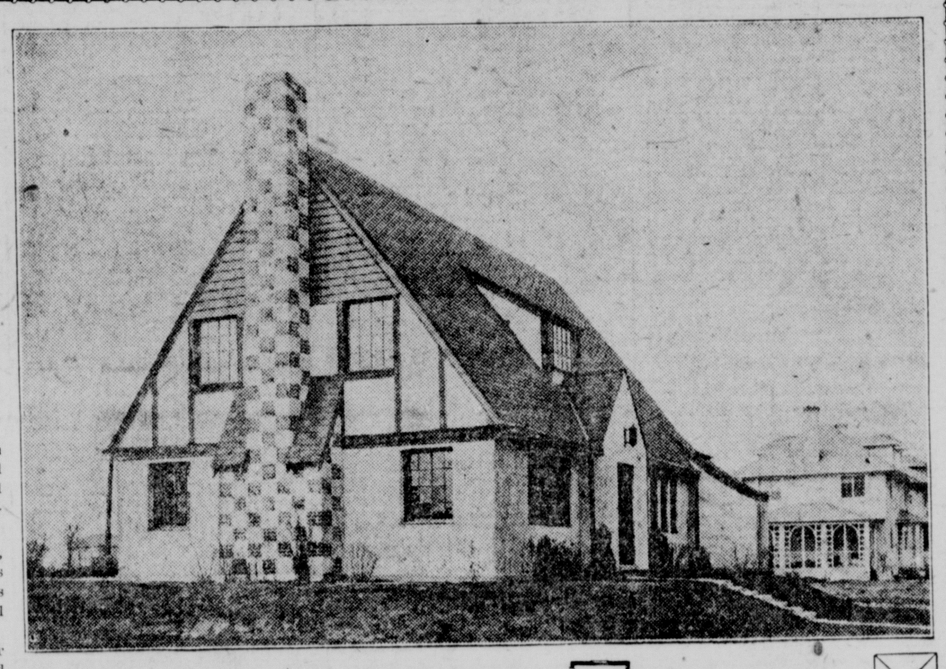

Erected at La Grange, Illinois, this "homey" dwelling combines both French and English features with sturdy construction that will endure throughout the years.

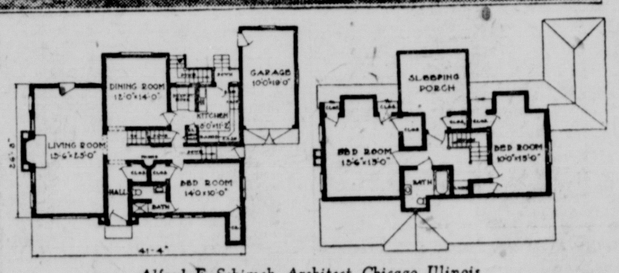

Concrete masonry was chosen for the outer wall construction and covered with a pleasing texture of portland cement stucco. Much care and attention was given to the finish of the stucco, because it is through this medium that the house achieves an individuality rarely found.

In the interior, the living room commands attention because of its size, 13½ feet by 25 feet. It extends entirely across one end of the first floor. Of easy access in the rear are found the dining room, breakfast nook and kitchen. The latter, with its built-in conveniences that save so many steps during the busy day, will delight any housekeeper. To the front of the first floor is a large bedroom adjoined by a bath and two roomy closets.

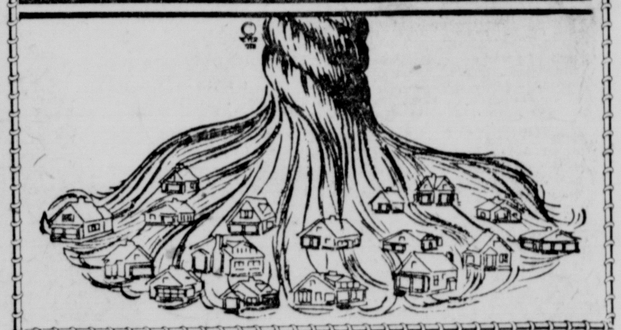

Two additional bedrooms, sleeping porch and another bath are located on the second floor. These, with six convenient closets, complete a room arrangement that is ideal from any point of view.

Both inside and outside, this compact, and yet roomy, house possesses an individuality that makes it outstanding wherever built.

Alfred F. Schimek, Architect, Chicago, Illinois

"Down Through the Ages"

From the time of primitive man when HOME was nothing more than the crudest of hovels, it has been the sanctum of family life. Where the joys and sorrows of countless humans have found expression and comfort.

Home has held the world together

As the HEARTHSTONE of human interest the home has interwoven the hearts of men of all Nations. Thousands of prospective home-owners have accepted this institution as the means by which to save toward the building or purchase of a home. It is the combined power of their savings that enables us to finance YOUR home. And you have months in which to pay us.

University Club Preparing For Fall Activity

The whir of the vacuum and the odors of paint are taking the place of the hum of conversation and the perfume of flowers at the University club these days. Curtains are coming down and ladders are going up; workmen are going in and guests are staying out.

Yes—fall housecleaning comes early to the University club, for cool days bring back popularity to its lounging and dining rooms. Social activity will be unknown from now until September 1, but renovation and refurnishing will be going on apace.

Lincoln Girls Plan to Hike In Black Hills

Miss Erna Bunke, director of recreation on the city playgrounds in Lincoln, accompanied by Miss Dorothy Smedley, also of Lincoln, left last evening for Hot Springs, S. D., from where they will begin a hike

Autumn Months Rivalling June For Number of Brides

In spite of his heavy season in June, D. Cupid has recovered to the extent of polishing up another quiver of arrows and has started once more about his business of brides and so forth. June it would seem, although by far the greatest wedding month of the year, has a close rival in the autumn, when September and October do their bit toward the establishing of new homes, and the wedding bells will ring merrily the rest of August and all through September and the month to follow. There have even been a few weddings scheduled for November this far ahead.

Autumn Months Rivalling June For Weddings

October, so we hear, is to have one of the largest and smartest weddings of the season, when a certain popular and attractive Lincoln miss, daughter of one of Lincoln's prominent families, is to don the bridal veil.

This week will have its quota of weddings, large and small, although some of them will be out of town.

The marriage of Miss Laura Whelpley and Wendell Berge will take place Wednesday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock at the bride's home in Fremont. Both Miss Whelpley and Mr. Berge have had prominent roles in campus activities at the University of Nebraska.

On Wednesday evening at 8 p. m. in Chester, will take place the marriage of Miss Grace Duey and Herman H. Thomas. Mr. Thomas is a graduate of the University of Nebraska and was especially prominent in activities while in the University of Nebraska. He is a member of Delta Tau Delta.

AVERY-FLETCHER

Miss Gladys Avery, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles O. Avery of Humboldt, Neb. became the bride of Ralph Fletcher, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Hugh Fletcher of Schuyler, at the home of the bride's parents, August 4 at high nuon. Rev. W. H. E. Strate, pastor of the Presbyterian church of Humboldt performed the double ring ceremony. Preceding the marriage service, Rev. Strate sang "Oh, Promise Me" and Mrs. R. R. Johnson of University Place sang "I Love You Truly" and "At Dawning," accompanied by Miss Lillian Mason of Salem, who also played the Lohengrin wedding march. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Lola Avery and Beth Fletcher, sister of the groom. Arnold Boettcher of Millard attended the groom. Immediately after the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served, after which Mr. and Mrs. Fletcher left for their wedding trip. They will be at home in Lynch, Neb. where Mr. Fletcher is principal of the Lynch high school. The bride is a graduate of Stephens college, Columbia, Mo., and has attended Wesleyan university and the University of Nebraska. The groom is a graduate of the University of Nebraska and is a member of Theta Chi and Delta Theta Phi fraternities. The bride is a member of Sigma Iota Chi and Gamma Mu Upsnlon sororities.

Out of town guests attending the wedding were: Miss Ione Hosman, Omaha; Mr. Arnold Boettcher, Millard; Mrs. R. R. Johnson, University Place; Mr. and Mrs. W. Hugh Fletcher, Beth Fletcher, Aubrey Fletcher, Margaret Fletcher, Miss Naomi Himes, of Schuyler; Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Mason, Lillian Mason, Mildred and Mrs. H. W. Glasgow and daughter Lois Winifred, Lyons; Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Dalby, Omaha; Mrs. Lois Sterner, Nellie Gridley, Endicott; Miss Thelma Olson, Hastings.

BENDER-PIDERIT

The home of Mr. and Mrs. M. R. Bender, 628 South Eighteenth street was the scene of a pretty wedding Saturday evening, when Miss Geneva Bender, their daughter, was united in marriage to Bartlet Piderit at 8 o'clock. The Rev. Jack Leonard officiated before an improvised altar of tall baskets of ferns and yellow chrysanthemums, with a background of palms and greenery.

Miss Vera Robertson sang "At Dawning," Cadman, and "I Love you Truly, Bond, before the entrance of the bridal party. Miss Edna Frick played the processional music.

Miss Nola Empson entered first, frocked in green geogrette, made with a large bertha of lace. Lace and flat silk flowers in pastel shades were used on the dress. She carried tea roses for her flowers. The little ring bearer, Beulah Schellenberger of Ravenna, carried the ring in a lily. Her frock was of yellow organdy. Russell Robertson served Mr. Piderit as groomsman.

The bride's gown was of yellow georgette, fashioned with a tight waist and a very full skirt, ending in the uneven hem line. Gold lace medallions were inset in the skirt, and she wore gold slippers. Mrs. Piderit carried yellow roses and swansonia.

At the informal reception after the ceremony, Mrs. Frank Hoon received the guests at the door. Misses Lora Clark and Dorothy Van Dyle served cakes and ices. Mrs. Harold North of Broken Bow was in charge of the gift room.

After a short wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Piderit will be at home in Lincoln.

The out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Piderit of Ravenna, parents of the groom, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Bender of Milford, and Mrs. Harold North, Broken Bow.

HEDGES-GATES

Miss Nellie Hedges, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John G. Hedges, and Folsom Gates of Gordon will be married Wednesday evening, August 18, at the Methodist church in University Place. Rev. Roscoe Chenoweth will read the lines. Miss Hedges has chosen Miss Beth Cook as her maid of honor and Mrs. Paul Swearinger of Chicago, Mrs. Kaho Daley, Miss Olive Veile and Miss Bernice Ough for her bridesmaids. Myron Gates, brother of the bridegroom, will serve as best man. George Hedges, brother of the bride, Francis Hedges, Mark Hedges and Charles Hedges, cousins of the bride, will serve as ushers. Little Doris Johnson will be the flower girl. Mrs. George Hedges, accompanied by Miss Anne Young will sing a group of nuptial numbers preceding the ceremony. Miss Irene Taylor at the organ, will play the Mendelssohn wedding march. During the ceremony Miss Adeline Voss, accompanied by Miss Mariam Leigh, will play softly on the violin. Following a reception which will be held at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. Gates and his bride will leave for a short honeymoon trip to the Black Hills, after which they will be at home in Gordon, Neb.

Autumn Bride

The engagement and approaching marriage of Miss Helen Mae Vogt to James Kitchen is announced today by her mother, Mrs. Oscar Voght, 1007 J street. The wedding will take place in September.

WHELPLEY-BERGE

The marriage of Miss Laura Whelpley and Wendell Berge will take place at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Laura Whelpley, in Fremont, at 1:30 o'clock in the afternoon, August 18. Miss Whepley has chosen Miss Eleanor Berge for her only attendant and Welch Pogue will serve Mr. Berge as best man. The officiating clergyman will be Rev. Jacob Wirth of Wilton, Ia., a great uncle of Mr. Berge, who officiated at the wedding of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Berge about thirty years ago. Elizabeth Coleman will sing "Oh, Promise Me" and Mary Ellen Edgerton of Aurora will play the violin. Following the ceremony Mr. Berge and his bride will motor through the north and arrive in Ann Arbor, Mich., where they will make their home after Oct. 1. Mr. Berge will finish his law course at Ann Arbor this year and Miss Whelpley will take work on her degree there also. Guests from out of town for the wedding will be Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Lord, Omaha; Mrs. H. M. Grimes, North Platte; Miss Lillian McCracken, Boulder, Colo.; Mrs. Josephine Berge, Lincoln; Mr. and Mrs. Adrian Newens, Lincoln; Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Woodcox, Lisco, Neb.

Lindsay, Miss Annie Smith.

LEGION AUXILIARY STATE CONVENTIAN.

The sixth annual state convention of the American Legion auxiliary will be held at Chadron August 22 to 25. It is expected that about four hundred women will be in attendance. The main sessions will be held in the new high school building.

This convention is held at the same time and place each year, as that of the American Legion, but is an entirely separate convention.

Six popular young members have entered the contest for national page which is being conducted by the state department. The award will b emade to the unit having done the best work in membership this year. The prize is a trip to the national convention which meets at Philadelphia in October. The contestants are: Madge Anderson, York; Alice Jones, Madison; Bertha Reese, Pleasanton; Orpha Nichols, Valley; Anne Gibson, Chadron; Phyllis LaFollette, Lincoln.

BUSINESS WOMENS LEAGUE.

"Studying ourselves" or personnel research, was the subject of the talk given by Mrs. Edith B. Rickard on Thursday evening to the Business Women's league and its guests. Mrs. Rickard brought back many valuable thoughts on the subject from the national convention at Des Moines. "Personnel Research" is a comparatively new term, and has not yet found its "place in the story." People find it bordering, as they think, too much on the "personal," which all guard too carefully to want any probing, and "research" sounds too much like technicalities and searching for small germs. It does not seem like a workable feature of a business women's organization. Yet it has been found to contain features that can be made valuable. Mrs. Rickard quoted from an article in "Harpers," written by a woman, who closed by saying "We have to admit in our creed of success that it is more important to be a lovely, brave, beautiful human being than it is to hold the biggest job or make the most money in all the world." The speaker stressed the importance of a national effort, co-operation of the locals with the national organization, in this as in all other efforts. Questionaires sent by the national have disclosed many important facts, which will lead with proper direction to much that is valuable. The Northwestern district replies showed that about two-thirds of the business women there are supporting others, wholly or in part; vocational guidance is a part of the vision held by this department; many clubs have employment bureaus, and these include, in their effort, something along that line; surveys of business groups, salaries, living expenses and special training are some of the subjects studied. All studies and questionaires carefully avoid any personal or individual information. The business woman is of recent origin and has grown so fast that she must find herself before she can realize her own abilities—and this ,says Mrs. Rickard, is the work laid out for the personnel research department.

The dinner on Thursday evening was held at the home of Mrs. Maude Hammond Fling, as a porch party.

The next and final out-door meeting, for this season, will be held August 27, in charge of Mrs. J. Rosenkrans.

Fine Painting By Nebraska Club Woman To Hang In National Home at Washington

(Special to The Star.)

HASTINGS, Neb., Aug. 14.—In response to a request from the president of the General Federation of Women's clubs, and oil painting—probably the masterpiece of the late Anna R. Morey of this city—is to hang in the Woman's club home at Washington, D. C., where club women from all the world are welcomed while in the nation's capital.

Mrs. Morey, pioneer club woman and artist of marked ability, died here about six months ago, and from all parts of the country came expressions of sorrow in her passing.

She was a woman who made many friends and held them. She was an artist who gave generously of her talent to the club world and to her home community. For many years she served, as chairman of fine arts in the Nebraska Federation of Women's clubs. She was a well known figure at national club meetings. She filled many speaking engagements throughout this section of the country on artists and their paintings.

Her original pictures both in oil and water colors won numerous prizes at art exhibits.

The picture, shown herewith, was painted by Mrs. Morey some years ago from real life, and its frame was made of heavy oak by the artist's husband, one of the pioneer lawyers of Hastings and until his death one of the most outstanding members of the Adams County Bar association.

Mr. Morey was so fond of the painting that it always hung in his private room. He never tired of studying the face his wife's art had pictured.

In selecting the gift, Clive Morey chose this picture as perhaps the finest bit of work from his mother's brush. To yield the painting was a sacrifice, but in giving it to the women who were his mother's friends, Mr. Morey knew that it will stand for years to come as a memorial of the mother whose talent, appreciation of art, and sweetness of character won for her friends wherever she went.

A silver plate bearing Mrs. Morey's name, the name of her home club, and the dates of her life, will be fastened to the frame by the Hastings Woman's club before the picture is sent to Washington.

The old man of the painting presents a character study worthy of more than passing attention.

His clothes are ragged. His shirt is torn and his knees are all but exposed to the chill wind one can almost feel sweeping by the corner on which he stands, hesitating.

His face is lined, and there is sorrow written strong about his eyes. His hand is extended but not in the position of one asking alms, but rather as one who, having seen much of life and having come to measure things by their true values, would give to those who pass, the key to his experience.

When you study him carefully you see with Robert Burns—

"—a man whose aged step
Seem'd weary, worn with care;
His face was furrowed o'er with years,
And hoary was his hair."

And you can almost hear him say:

"I've seen yon weary winter-sun
Twice forty times return;
And ev'ry time has added proofs
That man was made to mourn."

CHADRON NORMAL.

Graduation exercises were held at the college Friday morning at 10 o'clock. The commencement address was delivered by Dr. J. O. Marberry, formerly of Rockford, Ill., and now instructing in the department of education, his subject being: "Education—A Patriotic Duty."

Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Robinson and Dessalee Robinson of Norfolk, Neb., were recent visitors at the college. They will visit the Black Hills before their return.

Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Liebendorfer and family were at Sylvan Lake last weekend.

Masons Entertain Children At Antelope Park

One hundred and thirty-eight youngsters from the Orthopedic hospital and the Home for Dependent Children were entertained at the annual picnic of East Lincoln Lodge No. 210 and Lincoln chapter No. 148, O. E. S. Friday evening at Antelope park.

The picnic lunch was prepared by the Eastern Stars at their lodge room and the orangeade and ice cream were furnished by the Masons. The children were taken to the park in cars furnished by their hostesses and hosts and for those who came in chairs and cots a truck was furnished.

Playground Notes

Eleven supervised playgrounds held their closing day program Friday evening, August 13, with the largest attendance of the summer. Many parents came out to witness the last demonstrations. This year has been a most successful year. There have been no serious accident the program has been bigger and more varied, and the attendance this year was 46,909, which is an increase of 6,178 over last year. As to the popularity of the playgrounds everywhere—the children were saying—"Why can't we have them next week?" "Please come just one night a week!" and "Why don't we have playgrounds until school starts?"

The type of program presented the closing night was left to the choice of the children on each ground.

Willard, 31st and W and Belmont—under the supervision of Mr. Paul Oberhauser, had baseball games, volley ball games and a new game (which is a very old game) called Pig, which has met with great favor Ruby Gage of Willard is the honor girl in handcraft.

Bancroft—under the supervision of Everett Crites, had an evening of athletic events.

Bryant—had a playground carnival, the children dressing in costume. Prizes were awarded for the most original costume. William Kulper, won an indoor baseball as first prize and Alice Schlessinger won first prize for the girls, a crepe paper outfit for making dolls and costumes. The honor boy for Bryant is Verne Finley. He won the highest number of honors and athletic points. This playground is under the supervision of Carroll Coffman.

Pentzer was the scene of much bustling activity, stunts, an impromptu play made up by the children, a minstrel show, and community singing. Many of the parents were present. They also had a big bonfire, toasted marshmallows and weiners, and one of the features was a dance—"The Spirit of childhood" Prizes were given to the honor children.

The activities at Whittier were many and varied. Horseshoe pitching, which is always popular here—a baseball game—the Gypsy story tellers, Helen McAnulty, Olive Finke and Carol Wilder and Jack Englefield, Iowa's champion harmonica player, played for the group. The playground director was Ted Page.

The playground at Elliott is in charge of two teachers, Altabelle Blake and C. E. Thomas. During the day Miss Blake had a hike to Antelope park, a picnic supper, and a swim at the Muny pool. Nadine Campbell won all the girls races. Leon Bernstein won the frog race. The honor people are Glen Kratzer, whose score was 1100 and Irene Sanders scored 1250 points. This included honor and thletic points.

In the evening, Mr. Thomas had baseball games and other athletic events, with an impromptu stunt program conducted by one of the older boys, William McKee.

At the Capitol school playground under Miss Blake's direction, there were relays and novelty races. Dean Perry is the honor boy, score 825. Marjory Jackson, high honor girl, score, 1125.

An interesting feature of this play ground is a boys club, organized by the boys themselves, controlled entirely by them. Their slogan was chosen from a playground magazine "Idleness mean Mischief." Their rules:

No smoking, no swearing, no unnecessary noise to distrub the neighbors, no matches, home at nine, sweep cabin twice a day.

Their meeting place is a vacant she don a nearby lot. Parents have contributed rugs, chairs, flashlights, etc. to make the place attractive.

The boys read Treasure Island, Robinson Crusoe and Kipling's stories. They have all sorts of games, flinch, authors, checkers, etc. They said they wanted to have some place to go where they could play without distrubing people. Dean Perry is president of the club. The boys are about 11 to 13 years old.

Saratoga's closing program was really held last Monday evening, with a big picnic at Van Dorn park. Prizes were then given to the honor people, and the horseshoe croquet and baseball teams were awarded prizes. Their closing night on the grounds meant games, all their favorites, folk dances and stories. The children wanted to have the ground open for another week that the playground teacher, Miss Martha Ostoff, has arranged for a fishing party next week. The highest honors went to Pansy and Allen Brinkman, 1505 honor points Eldon Ferris, 1215, for the boys. Eldon started in three weeks later than the other and ended second on the list. Allen Brinkman has the highest honor and athletic score in the city.

Baseball, volley ball, paddle tennis, games, stories and many other varied activities were held on F street playground last Friday night. This playground has had a wonderful attendance throughout the entire summer and the Recreation board has decided to keep this playground open for two more weeks. This decision seems to be justified since over a hundred children were present on the ground Saturday morning. Clarence Porter is the director.

Study," and a study of the responsibility of the parent to the child and the great need of parent training.

A large per cent of the locals last year studied Doctor O'Shea's child study. Through this study of parent and teacher of the child, there has been brought about a demand for a program that will include a study of the responsibility of the parent to the child and the great need of parent training in this greatest of all professions, that of being a parent.

Consequently the suggested program for the coming year and for the state convention will be built around these two subjects, "Know the Child" and "Parent Training." The monthly programs will include such topics as health, mental hygiene, child hygiene, physical education, standards in literature, home education, thrift, recreation, school education, illiteracy, legislation, American citizenship, study circles, child development, spiritual training, etc.

Material will be furnished the local associations making it possible for them to realize the very best of results. It is the hope of Mrs. Wentz, state chairman, and her co-workers, that they may be able to interest each one of their 15,000 members in this study.

The following state officers and committee chairmen will assist in the convention program which is to be held in Lincoln, October 12 to 15 at the Cornhusker hotel, at which a number of national officers will be present:

One hundred and thirty-eight children from the Orthopedic hospital and the home for dependent children were the guests of East Lincoln lodge No. 210, A. F. and A. M. and Lincoln chapter No. 148, O. E. S. at the annual picnic given by the two bodies for these children Friday afternoon at Antelope park.

Those children who could walk were taken out in cars of the Masons and the Eastern Stars and for those who went in wheel chairs and on cots, a truck was hired to take the mto the park.

The little guests were entertained with the swings, looking at the animals and games under the supervision of Miss Mary Field and Miss Beth Field. Robert L. Johnson and Miss Jessie Keller were in charge of the arrangements assisted by Harry Griffin, worshipful master, Morris Adams, Mrs. Florence Field and Mrs. Maud B. Watson, worthy matron.

A picnic lunch prepared by the members of the O. E. S. at their chapter room in the temple, was served at the close of the afternoon with orangeade and ice cream furnished by the Masons.

The degree staff of Charity Rebekah lodge No. 2, with Mrs. Gertrude Carver, captain, went to Crete Wednesday evening to put on the initiatory work for a class of six candidates. The assembly marshall, Mrs. Pearle Sharpe, accompanied the staff and took part in the work. At the close of the meeting the Crete Rebekah lodge served refreshments followed by a social hour.

Chadron Normal

Miss Harriett M. Meader, Rapid City, South Dakota, and Earl Buckingham, Sterling, Colorado, popular former students of the college, were quietly married at the latter place the morning of August 2. The bride was a cum laude student and graduated June, 1926. The groom is established in business at Sterling, where the young couple will make their future home.

Mrs. Mildred Nichols, soprano, and Miss Reva Denslow mezzo-soprano, pupils of Richard E. Yarndley, head of the department of music appeared in recital Saturday afternoon in assembly hall. Miss Susan Bell acted as accompanist. A reception was held in Mr. Yarndley's studio following the recital, at which faculty and students were present and light refreshments were served.

H. H. Engleman, superintendent of schools at Crawford, Neb., visited the college Monday.

A visit of several weeks has been terminated by the return home of Mrs. Robert I. Elliott and son Bobby from Cambridge, Neb.

Miss Edna E. Work and Miss Elizabeth Tohill were hostesses to the unmarried faculty women Saturday at a luncheon, given in the home of Mrs. Roy Work. There were fourteen guests present.

Miss Hazel Robinson, commercial instructor at Wesleyan university, Mitchell, South Dakota, was a guest of Miss Genevieve Williams Friday. Miss Williams visited relatives at Gordon, Neb., the two days following.

A heavy rainfall visited Dawes county Monday and Tuesday of this week, amounting to two inches. The college slogan of "summer school where summer's cool" has been strongly upheld by the season's temperature.

Miss Doris Lane was a recent visitor at the college. She is taking a course in nursing at the Methodist Deaconess hospital, Rapid City, South Dakota.

E. L. Rouse, superintendent of schools, Scottsbluff, Neb., delivered a series of lectures at the college last week. His subjects were, "A backward look," "Loyalty," and "Recruiting for the profession."

The number of high school graduates who have already forwarded their credentials to the registrar's office indicates a fine attendance for the fall quarter of 1926.

Miss Bess Smennir of the home economics department, Evelyne Currie, Mavis Rotzin, and Dorothy Clark, Chadron, and Annette Adams, Gordon, camped in cabins at the state park near Chadron Friday night. Many hundreds of tourists visit this woodsy spot throughout the summer months.

The Rotary club of Chadron held a party in the gymnasium Wednesday evening, which the Rotary clubs of Alliance and Sidney attended. There were also guests present from Scottsbluff, Neb., and Rapid City, S. D. After a banquet supper entertainment was provided in the form of music and speeches.

A pageant entailing brilliant music and colorful costumes was presented in the gymnasium to a large audience Tuesday evening. Music was furnished by the college orchestra, the Scran Iron quartet, and a festival chorus under the direction of Richard E. Yarndley. A fairy pantomime was enacted by Maybelle McCormick, Valentine; Mildred Cerny, Chadron; Phyllis Steward, Walthill; Norma Brandenburg, Chadron; Wilma Ehlers, Nenzel; Mary McCarthy, Ogallala; Frances Holyoke, Chadron; Mary Bourne, Rushville; Helen McGaughey, Gordon; Grace Wherrit, Hot Springs, South Dakota; Anna Kocher, Mitchell; Mary Meer, Chadron; Elvina Dean, Chadron; Lila Mae York, Chadron; Marian Gibson, Chadron; Eleanor Nylan, Chadron; Peggy Parsons, Chadron; Jean Oltmanns, Chadron; Junior Oltmanns, Chadron; Evelyn Chitty, Chadron; Rosemary McVey, Spalding; Ruby Attebury, Atkinson; Bertha Jacobson, Chappell, and Floy Hopkins, Hull, under the auspices of Miss Elizabeth Tohill of the speech department, with Mary McCarthy as student director. Many of these students, pupils of Miss Marion MacCallum of the department of physical education, appeared in various graceful dances. The lighting geffects were well handled.

Wesleyan Notes

Dr. Walter Heffman, '19, until recently associate professor of agriculture biochemistry at the University of Minnesota, has become the director of research in the Northwestern Paper company at Cloquet, Minn. He was graduated from Wesleyan in 1919 and received his Ph. D. from the University of Minnesota in 1925.

Roy J. W. Ely of the University of Nebraska has been secured as assistant professor in the department of economics. His particular work is business administration. He is a former student of the Peru Normal school and has received his A. B. and M. A. degrees from the University of Nebraska. He takes the position formerly occupied by W. F. Gibbs, who resigned to accept a position at William and Mary college.

Miss Hazel Furman of Fairbury was a recent visitor in University Place. She will teach next year at Salem. She is the daughter of Rev. E. M. Furman, a trustee and graduate of Wesleyan. Miss Furman received her A. B. from Wesleyan in 1926.

Chancellor L. B. Schmidt is addressing the Epworth League institute at Stanton this morning.

Rev. Oscar W. Law, '17, is the pastor of the Grant avenue Methodist church at Denver.

G. W. Hildreth will go to Oakland, Neb., this fall as superintendent of the public schools. He was graduated from Wesleyan in 1926.

NEW INSTRUCTOR

Miss Marietta Stevenson, who received her Ph. D. degree last spring fro the University of Chicago, will be an instructor in the department of political science of the University of Nebraska next year. Miss Stevenson is taking an extensive western tour this summer, and will arrive in Lincoln early in September.

Crawford To Celebrate Signing of Treaty Selling Black Hills

White men were officially permitted to go into the Black Hills in search of gold fifty years ago, after the signing of the Black Hills treaty with the Indians. The photograph shows a monument erected several years ago by the D. A. R. in Crawford, commemorating the Hills treaty, whose signing is to be celebrated by Crawford, and the Red Cloud treaty.

When the long transcontinental train winds its sinuous way through western Nebraska, bored and indifferent passengers seldom recall that the ground upon which the shining rails are laid was once the country of the Indians.

It doesn't seem Indian country, with its straight-sided buttes and rocky canyons. To us, somehow, they have always seemed plains and prairie people, not dwellers in low mountains and winding gorges. An erroneous thought, yes, but one oftentimes harbored.

Western Nebraska in its steepest and rockiest parts was the home of the largest tribe of western Indians, the Sioux. Some of them were friendly to the government. Some had their greatest delight in harassing the white people and carrying out all kinds of depradations.

Crawford, in the extreme west portion of Dawes county, was not incorporated in the stirring days of the Sioux, but fame has come to it from half a century ago. Nearby, Indians and white men made possible the Black Hills gold for the white man and opened the road to the hills to him. Within the month, Crawford is celebrating those days.

Claim Territory.

The Sioux nation had part of its habitat in Nebraska according to A. E. Sheldon, secretary of the state historical society, and the Sioux Indians were prominent in the annals of early Nebraska. Their hunting and camping grounds extended from North Dakota to Kansas, and they hunted and camped across the western part of Nebraska in the Niobrara, Loup, Platte, and Republican valleys. The Pine Ridge or Oglalla Sioux formerly occupied the North Platte, Niobrara, and Pine Ridge section as their home.

The Sioux claimed the northwestern part of Nebraska through early treaties, and in 1874,1875 and 1876, when word of gold in the Black Hills was filtering through to the settlements and when the first rush began, part of the tribes began bothering the white settlers and the travelers bound for the northwest. Actual war broke out in 1876 on the Nebraska border, caused by the rush of white men to the Black Hills which belonged to the Sioux by a treaty of 1868. The Indians believed the gold there was their gold, because the white men were to be kept out by the treaty. However, the white men refused to remain on the outside.

The Sioux under Red Cloud and Spotted Tail, the two outstanding figures in the history of the Sioux nation, were at peace with the government. After the treaty of '68, which brought some money, food, cattle, and clothes annually to the followers of the two chiefs, and education and hunting rights, as well, there were no more Sioux wars for Red Cloud and Spotted Tail. Red Cloud's agency was about one and one-half miles west of Crawford and Spotted Tail's was fourteen miles northeast of Chadron. The two agencies were the rendez-vous of the reservation Sioux.

Followers of lesser chiefs, hostile to the government, seldom came to the reservation. They were on the war path all the time, even though related by blood and marriage to the peaceable tribes. In the winter, the young warriors came in to get rations, but as soon as spring came they took the trail again, and joined the warring Sioux.

After Custer's last fight and death, the government started out against the hostile Sioux and Cheyenne, to force them to yield the possession of the Black Hills. The roads most frequently traveled into the Black Hills led from the Union Pacific railroad across northwestern Nebraska crossing the North Platte at Camp Clarke bridge. Fights with the Sioux were frequent.

These troubles were brought to an end with the signing of the Black Hills treaty, in which the Sioux agreed to the sale of the Black Hills. The treaty was negotiated in the autumn by several commissioners from the government and the headmen of the different agencies. The treaty was formulated in Omaha, and taken to the western part of the state for signing. In return for the sale of the hills and the permission to build roads through the reservations, the government agreed to care for the Sioux until they became self-supporting.

Fifty years have gone by since that treaty was signed, and Crawford is planning to celebrate the anniversary late in August. It has been established that the treaty was signed under a tree located about three miles northest of Crawford, near the junction of the Cottonwood and White river. According to W. A. Luke, who has just returned from that part of the country, plans for the semi-centennial are being made, and will include, among other things a ceremony to mark the tree under which the commissioners and the Sioux representatives met to conclude the treaty, giving the Black Hills to the white man, and a western rodeo.

Secret of a Prehistoric Race May Be Locked In Hills Along Missouri River

Sixty thousand years ago the limb of the tree was a sturdy young branch, perhaps doing its part in shading some aboriginal peoples along the present Missouri river. E. E. Blackman found this prehistoric specimen during a little tour of exploration up and down the banks of the Missouri last week end. The two thin knives, the uneven little piece used for stripping sinew, and the portion of a pipe are flint pieces that were found in the mounds on the Iowa side of the river, and they may be the work of pre-Indian peoples.

Long, long ago when mastodons big as ships and dinosaurs tall as trees frolicked in the Nebraska Jungles, was it an animals' paradise alone—or was there human life here, strange, barbaric peoples since lost?

In ages before the Red Man sent his challenging cries across the plain and danced his somber steps in the rough, uneven firelight—were there other races here who cut and smoothed implements of warfare and of peace—and died when the world was very young

Were there races, people, individuals who knew all that we are learning, whose arts and sciences were greater than ours—and were they obliterated in the dawn of the ages, here on these prairies lying on either side of the Missouri?

Perhaps.

The Red Man and the white men have been found to be but infinitesimal patterns in the great scheme of things.

E. E. Blackman, curator of the Nebraska State Historical society, doubts, even as he admits the possibility. He who recently established the site of the Spanish massacre in Nebraska knows that there was an aboriginal people in this vicinity, but until further investigation he hesitates to say definitely that a pre-Indian people lived here.

Dr. Clifton B. Knowles, a member of the academy of science at Sioux City, who is acquainted with the territory across the Missouri from earlier residence there, has studied it with the thought that people did live hereabouts who were destroyed before the Indians came. He is convinced that the mounds appearing along the river denote a very early habitation in the vicinity.

Mr. Blackman and Dr. Knowles returned Tuesday afternoon from a trip of several days at Glenwood and Tabor, Ia., where they visited the sites of these Mound builders. At Tabor they saw the grave of Alvina G. Platt, a missionary among the Pawnees of the Loup valley, where Mr. Blackman has been exploring for the past month.

Collecting Relics.

The area in the vicinity of Glenwood and Tabor, known as the Waubonsie hills, was once occupied by an aboriginal population of considerable extent. They left in this area many artistically chipped flint implements, according to Mr. Blackman. These implements are being collected and preserved by two bright young men living there, who wandered these hills in company with Dr. Knowles a number of years ago. These boys, Mr. Blackman says, are continuing the work, started and inspired by Dr. Knowles.

The implements are similar in individuality of chipping, shape, and workmanship to those found by Mr. Blackman last summer in the southeast corner of Nebraska on the "Leary site," and which Mr. Blackman has classified as a probable Cherokee site. Only a part of the implements found falls in this class.

This area was occupied during historic days by the Pottawattamie Indians, of which "Old Waubonsie" was chief. Mr. Blackman and Dr. Knowles saw the stump of the tree in which his remains were placed upon his death.

The history of Nebraska is so closely linked with the early settlements of Tabor and "Spoonville" (Glenwood) that Nebraska can not afford to ignore this area, in Mr. Blackman's opinion. The two are not isolated bits of interests, but rather do they have much in common.

"Twenty-five years ago Dr. Knowles lived in that area and observed and studied the pre-historic remains which are fast being obliterated.

"I was very fortunate in being able to visit this area with the man who still has in memory the original appearance of the mounds and house circles found there," Mr. Blackman stated.

Mysterious Mounds.

Upon the tops of the highest hills are numerous mounds from 40 to 100 feet in diameter and from 5 to 10 feet in elevation. These mounds extend in a continuous line from Council Bluffs south as far as the explorers went, Mr. Blackman said. The use, whether for signals, burial, or residence, is problematical. That the population was extensive is evidenced from the abundance of flint implements found.

Paul Roe has erected a fireproof building and arranged a museum, well worth visiting, in Mr. Blackman's opinion. Fred W. Delavan, his coworker, has a more extensive collection, housed in his own home.

In these collections will be found some of the finest flint implements picked up any where in the plains region. They are doing a great deal to preserve the rapidly disappearing evidences on the Waubonsie hills.

"I want to emphasize that this condition was brought about by the early exploration work and training which Dr. Knowles commenced years ago. The state of Iowa should look after this phase of its history before it is everlastingly too late," the speaker emphasized.

This area was once traversed by the tribe of Indians, which eventually occupied the very southern part of Nebraska. In these hills, erosion reveals the original blue clay in which grew native cedars prior to the days when the drift was laid down.

Buried beneath thousands of feet of loess soil are the logs of these prehistoric cedars, some of them 60,000 years old. Mr. Blackman brought back a number of specimens of these cedar logs, which grew in this blue clay before the days of the drift. These logs are still in perfect preservation. The wood is black, emits a strong cedar odor, and takes a high polish when thoroughly seasoned.

The blue clay from the upper end of the gullies, when released by the action of water, formed into perfectly round balls, Mr. Blackman said, similar to the evidences found in the Cannon Ball river of the Rockies. These eventually became solid stone, after they crystallized.

Mob Quieted By Promise of Quick Trial For Pair Held In Killing of Town Officer

EAGLE RIVER, Wis., Aug. 14.—(I.N.S.)—Citizens of this little town congregated around the county jail here today, whispering, talking and looking at the iron bars. Behind those bars are two men, alleged slayers of George Rutherford, a deputy sheriff and one of the kindliest and best loved old men in the town.

The men are George Boling and George Brandenburg, said to be moonshiners. They were arrested by a posse last night after Frank Stanley another of their number had shot and killed Rutherford, when the officer had appeared at their camp in the heart of the north woods, with a warrant.

Both Boling and Bradenburg were wounded in the battle, staged in the medieval fastness of mammoth pines.

Violence, even to the point of storming the jail, threatened last night, but the sheriff, another kindly old man promised the citizens that the men should be given a quick trial. This statement was echoed by the state's attorney, so today the mob was quiet, but ready for action.

Stanley was wanted in Floyd county, Kentucky, for murder. It is believed he shot Rutherford when the latter said he had a warrant, believing the warrant was for his arrest. In reality the warrant was for Boling wanted on a charge of wife desertion. Rutherford did not even know the men were operating a still, it was said.

Mrs. Rutherford was in a state of nervous prostration today.

Andrews Takes Fancy to a Rum-Sprinkled Cake

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14.—(I.N.S.)—General L. C. Andrews, dry chief, frankly admitted today that he was "very fond" of Crepe Suzette-French pancakes steeped in rum.

On his return voyage from London on the French liner France this food was served.

"I tasted it, and it was very good," Andrews said. "I asked for a second and third helping, excellent.

"As prohibition director I oppose the use of alcohol beverages of course. These pancakes, as prepared however, a bit of rum being dashed over them, were quite harmless."

Andrews said Edna Ferber, the writer who observed his liking for crepe suzette, and other passengers, had a 'good laugh' over the incident.

MODERN EVE

The Shopper

Let me help you with your fall shopping.
—MODERN EVE.

Fall Frocks!

What a fascinating subject to contemplate—particularly in the Dress section at Gold and Co! Looking at hundreds of clever new modes I deduced:

That—There's a bit of a blouse below the waist where all was straight before—where summer fluttered, fall sways, for circular movements have a way of being flung to the side—that ruffles are having a fling—that satin crepes are favorites—that Chanel red and Jungle green are exceedingly smart colors.

But see these frocks and enthuse over them first hand. Enthuse too, over their modest pricing of $16.95. At Gold's!

Clothes grow like buildings, from a Foundation of your needs, and taper up to Beauty.

Creating a College Wardrobe—is a positive pastime with the aid of new fall Excella patterns to be found at Mayer Bros. Co.! One of these patterns, a few pins a pair of shears, a length or two of this or that, and an ambition to look like a Paris model; THESE are the chief requisites of successful home sewing.

The new two piece campus frocks; draped effects, tailored touches—all are easy for even the novice to achieve with Excella patterns. Like voices at your side, they direct you at every step in your cutting, your assembling and finishing.

Your copy of Fall Fashions is waiting to inspire your new-season wardrobe; clothes that in classroom and ball room will change glances of appraisal into glances of approval!

Remember also that at Mayer Bros., are to be found the cleverest new silks and woolen fabrics for fall—materials that give you every chance to be a successful modiste!

A Luxurious Economy

—is a fur coat bought at Cadwallader's during their August Fur Sale. Coats of the highest character are both manufactured and sold by them—thus saving you several middlemen's profits. Add to this the fact that you can deduct an additional 20 to 25 per cent during August from prices already low, and you'll hurry to 1010 Q street. Every fur garment is unconditionally guaranteed of course at Cadwallader's!

When Your Permanent

begins to stage its "coming out" party, and you wonder what to do about it, see Giffen's! They have the perfect remedy when your hair has grown to such an extent that the wave has forsaken the top of your head. It's a Giffen marcel given with typical Giffen skill; put in so artistically that it is impossible to tell where the marcel ends and the permanent begins. Consult Giffen's Beaute Shoppe also about any abnormal condition in your hair-health. They can remedy it! And you'll enjoy Giffen service, no matter what particular beauty problem they may solve for you.

Fall! When all the feminine world begins to think in terms of new clothes—when merchants strive to gather up the smartest fashions from the four corners of the style world. Just now Lincoln stores abound with all that's utterly fascinating in new-season modes. Start your shopping!

Across From the Library is a shop that takes a keen personal interest in the appearance of your hair: Mrs. Tripp's Permanent Wave Shop. If you want a permanent, or a marcel that makes you better looking, call B3653 for an appointment. Careful, Courteous and Competent are Mrs. Tripp and her workers. Now you "C" why the shop is a success!

Earn a Copeland Prize!

You've all heard of Copeland electrical refrigeration, the wonderful frozen desserts you can make with its help, etc. So why not capitalize on your knowledge? The Heat Equipment Corporation will pay three cash prizes—first $50, second $35 and third $15—for the best 200-word essay on electrical refrigeration. In the first half, tell why you believe every home should have electrical refrigeration; in the second, why Copeland refrigeration is the best.

Go to your Copeland dealer for information or send the name of your leading hardware or electrical appliance dealer to Woods Bros. Co., Lincoln. Information regarding the contest will be sent to you through him.

Send your essay so that it will arrive before midnight, August 21st, to Contest Dept. Heat Equipment Corporation, 131 So. 12th street, Lincoln. Prize dollars may jingle in your pockets!

Effortless Meals

are those you enjoy at the Grand Cafe. There's no tiresome preparation in hot kitchens, no dish washing; nothing in fact but the keen pleasure of eating their wholesome, well-cooked food in a cool restful environment. And it costs no more! Bring the family down one of these hot nights and be convinced.

Paris Sees Red—

As the hallmark of the very smart!

Reds for dresses — reds for hats — red boutonnieres, red wraps—red handbags—dot the fashionable Parisian landscapes —interfering with all traffic regulations and enveloping Paris in a roseate glow. And that is the very smartest and very newest note in Paris—not the flashing, daring, lipstick red of recent days—but the rich, sparkling tones that are found in old wines the ruby or the heart of a black cherry. One red at least, is the Paris decree for chic—and it is very, very smart to wear several different tones of red in the one costume.

Claret, Chanel and Rubra — the new reds!

Crowns! Crowns!

By their crowns shall ye know them—these clever new hats of velvet, felt and velour at Gold and Co. Soft collapsible crowns, crowns that may be shaped becomingly by the wearers; crowns that may be manipulated to make snub noses but pleasingly retrousse and those of downward curve more Grecian.

THE WRONG DOOR!

When forth he fared upon life's tide,
He sought a motto for his guide.
And so took from a shop's neat door
The single sharp request it bore.
"PUSH!"
But after futile years had flown,
He found that little could atone
For lack of what was plainly writ
Upon the other side, to-wit—
"PULL!"
—Princeton Tiger.

Those Expressive Feet!

Not only is every walk charged with the personality of that person, but moods are also reflected. Great grief changes a walk into the mere heavy dragging of a body about. Joy radiates its way all through one's carriage-head up high and riding, feet spurning the ground. Fear causes stumbling. The consciousness of poorly-dressed feet promotes a hesitant step. Take heed and profit!

Collegiate Feet

are beating a path to Mayer Bros. shoe section—at least those of them who feel it quite as important to walk in the path of style as in the path of knowledge. Here have already been assembled the models that degree-pursuers will approve. Patent leather appears in great diversity of style; leathers in the wood tones fashion other striking models. All are shoes that will draw forth the latest collegiate expression of approval (whatever it is.)

Here's to Holeproof Hose!

May its clientele of satisfied wearers increase! As one bard expressed it:

"These hose of silk are hard to beat,
With narrow heels and sandal feet.
With silk or lisle tops they're made
Full fashioned, and in every shade."

Moreover, you may buy them in the hosiery section at Ben Simon and Sons in three styles; all silk chiffon at $2; all silk service weight at $2; service weight with lisle top at $1.75.

It's Pickling Time

Remember the mustard pickles —the oil pickles, the celery pickles—that the family consumed with such relish and speed last year? Put up more of them this season, and do it this week while pickling cucumbers are at their best at Beachly Brothers. They are arriving daily from Colorado and are priced at 60c a hundred.

Monday Bargain!

A one day opportunity girls, at Haas Bros. to buy a clever fall hat for only three dollars! Of genuine French felt are they in the new "Wanderer" and the other fall shapes—both wide and narrow of brim. In black and high colors. Genuine $5 values, Monday only at $3.

Like a Perfect Marcel—is a La Zare permanent wave! One young woman about to go on a belated vacation—decided, after seeing a friends La Zare wave—that she simply must indulge herself. Wise girl—to look her best at the time when great trees of romance from little acorns often grow! Quality is inexpensive too, at La Zare's for they are making for a limited time, a special price of $8.50 for a permanent and of 75c for a marcel. Consult them at 335 National Bank of Commerce. Call B4690.

Little Bare Knees—little bare arms, even the freckle or two on the tip of a diminuitive nose; wouldn't you like to preserve the memory of this summer child of yours? Mr. Skoglund at Hauck's can do it for you. You'll find in the finished photographs of your Betty or Bob, that even their cunning expression and the light in their bright eyes has been miraculously caught by the Hauck camera.

Putting Your Best Foot Forward

is a simple matter in pedal attire from Ben Simon and Sons shoe section. In fact it is just as easy to be a step or two ahead of things in the new novelty shoes which are arriving daily. Oxfords — forgetting the days when they were oh—so sensible —appear in many fascinating models. Pumps and strap slippers prove that Ben Simon and Sons CAN get shoes that are different yet always in the best of taste. $4.85 to $6.85.

Sandwiches!

The old standby—whether for "dainty refreshments" at the Tuesday kensington, or for the kiddies' 'tween meal snack, or out on the picnic grounds.

Here are several kinds I have found to be delicious at this time of year—particularly so when they are made with Gooch's Best Bread. Not only do they taste much better, but your slicing troubles are o'er. Gooch's Bread has such a fine even texture, you know.

Cheese and Green Pepper Sandwiches.

One square of Philadelphia cream cheese creamed with one tablespoon of lemon juice, a pinch of salt and enough boiled mayonnaise to make it of the right consistency. Add one small green pepper, finely chopped and spread between thin slices of Gooch's Best Bread.

Pineapple-Pecan Sandwiches.

Thoroughly drain a small can of crushed pineapple, add finely chopped pecans and a little chopped pimento. Moisten with mayonnaise and spread between thin slices of Gooch's Best Bread.

Looks or Nothing

A very "practical" man and a very contrary woman were talking ("Godforbid") about the weather.

Said the P. M.:
"Just be comfortable—
Looks don't amount to anything at all—
What DO looks amount to?"

And the C. W. pondered and then replied:
"Looks are everything in this world that you can see.

"But for the looks of things we'd never know what was around.
That's how important looks are.

'If you wipe out 'looks'
It would mean that we should all become blind.
'Looks' amount to that."

And she is right.
For wherever our eyes rest upon anything the looks of it become its visibility.

When people think about a problem and get an idea
they just say,
"I see it."
"I can't see it at all,"
has become the expression that a claim is undesirable.
It really behooves us to consider "Looks."

THE HOME OF THE HEINZ WHOLESALE GROCERY CO.

Announcement---

We have an important announcement that will be of great interest to the grocers of Lincoln and the consuming trade as well. We have secured the exclusive distribution for the market of famous line of JACK SPRAT FOOD PRODUCTS, CHOCOLATE CREAM COFFEE and the manufactured lines of coffees, teas, spices, extracts, etc. of the WESTERN GROCER MILLS.

JACK SPRAT.
Food products is a large one, containing over 300 items. The quality of these foods and the moderate price at which they are offered have proven a distinct sensation in many markets.

To demonstrate the value of these goods, an 18 ounce can of JACK SPRAT pork and beans retails at 10c; the 14 ounce Catsup of the highest quality retails at 25c; a can of the finest sweet corn in the world retails at 15c.

We, as distributors of these famous goods, intend to select with care the merchants who will feature them. A great deal of special sales service will be furnished the legitimate grocer and every effort will be made to help him build a protected, profitable, repeating business.

Our taking on this line of special packed foods is adding a new jobbing business to Lincoln. We are a home concern, we are helping to build this fine community.

CHOCOLATE CREAM COFFEE.
We are also featuring the famous Chocolate Cream Coffee, without doubt the biggest selling coffee in its market. Chocolate Cream coffee will be advertised, demonstrated and will soon be a topic of conversation in the social circles of Lincoln and vicinity.

Yours Very Truly,
J. H. HEINZ, President.
HEINZ WHOLESALE GROCERY CO.

Built to Endure!

When you build a home, a business block, or a civic structure the first thing you think of is permanency. No one has as much to do with the enduring construction of a building as the contractor, therefore it is primarily important that you select a builder who has a reputation for building enduring structures.

University Notes

Walter Hansen, graduate student in geography, has returned to the university after completing his summer school work as geography teacher in the Michigan State Normal college, Ypsilanti, Mich. He taught courses in the principles of geography and commercial geography. Next fall Mr. Hansen will devote some time to study on his thesis, preparatory to taking his master's examination next year.

Prof L. A. Wolfanger of the economic geography department of Columbia university, arrived in Lincoln last week to spend the rest of the summer working for the United States bureau of soils in co-operation with the conservation and survery division of the university. He is now in Franklin county with a soil survey party. Prof. Wolfanger will return to Columbia late in October.

Dr. F. C. Kenyon of Elizabeth D. C., presented the museum with a rhinoceros beetle recently secured on his travels. The specimen has a peculiar horn over its nose. It is usually found in South America.

Floyd Harper, instructor in mathematics, returned last week from a vacation in the mountains of Colorado. He made Colorado Springs his headquarters.

James Lewis, '26, Lincoln, a Nebraska N man, will assist Coach Schulte in track next year and Acting Director of Athletics Gish with intramural work.

Wilbur Riddlesbarger and Hazen Smith took their master's examinations in political science Saturday morning. Mr. Riddlesbarger's topic was "The Federal Budget—Its Machinery and Methods of Operation." Mr. Smith wrote on the history of the pardoning power in Nebraska. Mr. Riddlesbarger has been appointed to a fellowship in political science for next year, and will continue his study for a Ph. D. degree. Mr. Smith will go to the Harvard law school.

Miss Carol Aylsworth, '23, assistant to Prof. Clara O. Wilson, chairman of the department of kindergarten-primary education, has gone to Tecumseh for a short vacation.

Prof. C. J. Frankforter of the department of chemistry, returned Monday from Fort Des Moines where he has been a military instructor this summer.

Superintendent C. E. Mason, of the public schools of Pilger, and H. H. Thomas of Hebron, in search of teachers for next fall, called at the office of the department of educational service last week.

"Tales of the Cornhuskers," a thirty-eight page booklet containing an account of Nebraska athletics during the past year, has just been distributed to members of the N club. Its purpose is summarized in the following editorial note: "Published by the Varsity N club of the University of Nebraska in the interests of Nebraska interscholastic athletics in the high schools and in the interests of intercollegiate and intramural athletics at Nebraska."

The special maple floor which is being laid in the new university coliseum should be completed by Monday or Tuesday, according to officials of the Waterman Floor-Laying and Surfacing company, which has the contract. The work of oiling and sanding the floor will then be started. It must be completed in two weeks, according to the contract.

KEARNEY NORMAL

Because of illness, Miss Marguerite Dodder, Kearney college student this summer, withdrew from her classes, and left for her home in Spalding, Neb., Friday morning, August 6.

Plans for activities during the coming year were discussed at the second annual summer term picnic of the Xi Phi, Kearney college honor society, Tuesday evening, August 3. The picnic was held at the Third Ward park, which is near Kearney college.

Dean Weyer and Mrs. Pearl Vennor of Hastings college made a trip of inspection to Kearney college last week, renewing acquaintances here and investigating points of similarity in the common problems of the two schools.

Miss Alice Sutherland, Kearney college student during the summer sessions of 1924 and 1925, was an extension department caller Tuesday, August 3. Miss Sutherland's home is in Hastings.

John McHale, Kearney college degree student, who has been engaged in administrative work in the educational field for several years, was a college visitor last week. Mr. McHale has retired from the teaching profession, and is selling books in Kansas.

Robert Pollard of Farnam, who recently underwent an operation for appendicitis at the Good Samaritan hospital, has been discharged and has gone to his home for complete convalescence. Mr. Pollard expects to teach in the McCook junior high school next year.

Miss Lulu Sunderland of Holdrege, was the guest of Miss Ruth Ptacek, former Kearney college student, recently. Miss Sunderland received her two-year diploma from Kearney college last May, and has accepted the position of intermediate grade teacher at Pleasant Dale, Neb., for next year. While in Kearney, she called on classmates and faculty friends at the college.

Miss Ethel Langdon, assistant in the Kearney college library for eight years, passed through Kearney Monday, August 9, on her way to her home in California. Miss Langdon has been in a Lincoln hospital for several weeks, and a party of her friends gathered at the train Monday afternoon to wish her a speedy and comfortable convalescence.

At the invitation of Superintendent Otto Wirsig of the Kearney schools, a group of Kearney college students visited the recently completed junior high school plant Wednesday afternoon. The inspection was made as a part of the work of a class in secondary education.

Miss Lucile Hrubesky, a post-graduate student at Kearney college during the summer term, left for her home in Geneva, August 10. Miss Hrubesky, under the direction of Miss Anna V. Jennings, Kearney college librarian, has been preparing for her new work as high school librarian in the Kearney schools next year. She will have the organization of this work under her charge, since the Kearney high school has not had a regular library before.

Milton Rockwell of Kearney, has accepted the position of principal of the Buda high school for next year. This school has recently become affiliated with Kearney college through the rural department. Mr. Rockwell supervised the music in the Bladen schools last year.

Miss Rita Mohatt, Kearney college student this summer, has accepted a position as teacher of a rural school seven miles north of Broken Bow, Neb. An interesting feature about her acceptance of this position is that she is beginning her professional career in the same school in which she received her early training.

Kearney college has been receiving its supply of irrigation water from Kearney lake. Since the amount of water is dwindling, a test well has been sunk on the campus in order to supplement the supply. Satisfactory water-bearing soil was reached at a depth of fifty feet, so that, if necessary, five hundred gallons a minute may be pumped.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray O. Bean, graduates of Kearney college, have just returned from Iowa City, where they have been students in the college of education at the state university. Mr. and Mrs. Bean have been in charge of the schools at Lorenzo the last two years, and are going to Brule, Neb., where Mr. Bean has accepted the position of superintendent of schools for the coming year.

The marriage of Miss Edith Yoder and Dr. G. B. Rich, both of Elmcreek, took place in North Platte, Neb., Monday, August 2, 1926. Miss Yoder was a student at Kearney college during the winter of 1924-24, and taught in a rural school eight miles north of Elmcreek the following year. Dr. Rich is a graduate of the University of Nebraska. They will be at home after September 1 in Elmcreek, where Dr. Rich will continue his dental practice.

Miss Dorothy Ekstrom of Omaha, two-year graduate of Kearney college, visited classmates and Kearney friends Monday, August 9. Miss Ekstrom has been doing substitute teaching in the Omaha schools during the past year, and has had a wide practice-tecahing experience, since she has taught in every grade from one to eight inclusive, and has been employed in twenty-five of the ward buildings. For the last three months of the school year, she had charge of grade 2A in the Windsor school. She has been employed as a regular member of the Omaha teaching staff for next year.

Reports of satisfactory progress on the new Training School building come from Prof. Verne C. Fryklund, who is supervising the building operations on the Kearney campus. Mr. Fryklund says that the plastering is complete, and the job is now ready for the woodwork. Arrangements are being made to lay the mastik floor preparation without further delay, thereby insuring early use of the new structure.

Miss Lillian Lancaster of Kearney, junior in Kearney college, who has been assisting Miss Janet Pickens, director of physical training for women, in the swimming classes, has been chosen by the Antelope board as editor of that publication for the coming year. Miss Lancaster is a well known college student, being an active worker in the Woman's Athletic association and the Spanish club. Lee Harbottle of Columbus, has been chosen business manager. Mr. Harbottle is an active member of the Y. M. C. A. and the Zip club, and holds a major office in the student government movement.

Announcement is made of the coming marriage of Henry Crozier and Miss Frances Hodgin of Omaha, for September 8. Miss Hodgin, a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. R. F. Hodgin, is a graduate of Central high school, Omaha, and a member of the Gamma Nu sorority. Mr. Crozier, whose home is in Kearney, was prominent in student affairs in Kearney college, where he took a pre-medic course. He is a junior in the Nebraska state medical college at Omaha, and expects to continue his medical training after his marriage.

Kearney college Y. W. C. A. will send its usual representation to the conference being held at Estes Park August 24 to September 3. Miss Florence Case of the faculty leaves August 23 to prepare for her position as group instruction leader. The student delegates are the Misses Ila Fay Andrews, Hazel Panek, and Ruth Cruit of Kearney, and Miss Blanche Myers of Sargent, who expect to leave for Estes Park August 24. Miss Emma Hanthorn of the department of mathematics, Kearney college, will spend her vacation at Estes Park, and hopes to attend some of the meetings of the faculty conference, which opens August 28 and continues until the close of the student conference, September 3.

Prof. R. C. Rogers, director of public school music in Kearney college, is making ambitious plans for work in vocal music next year. To this end he has secured Prof. L. H. Dierks, of Peoria, Ill., to have special charge of the work in vocal music. Prof. Dierks is a graduate of Central Wesleyan college, Warrenton, Mo., has an A. B. degree from Bradley college, Peoria; and the degree of bachelor of music from the MacPhail School of Music, Minneapolis. His vocal study has been in the hands of Anna Lucy Smiley and Evabell Tanner, of Peoria, and Frantz Proschowsky of the MacPhail School of Music, who was an instructor of Galli Curci. His experience comprises work as director of the Brimfield Choral club of Brimfield, Ill., a club of thirty members which contracts and gives lyceum programs for the community; high school glee clubs and quartettes. He is an experienced coach of operas and private voice teacher. He has had several years singing experience as a soloist, member of quartette, glee clubs in college and community where he has been employed. He also brings a rich dramatic experience, as well as considerabl experience in a business firm in Peoria.

Prof. and Mrs. R. W. Powell of the department of rural education, Kearney college, have been entertaining members of the Powell family this week—A. T. Powell, who is the editor-in-chief of the Midwest School Journal, published in St. Louis, Mo., and E. J. Powell, regular member of the lyceum staff of the Redpath-Horner Chautauqua organization. W. B. Powell, father of Prof. Powell, came from Linneus, Mo., to meet his three sons here and to assist Prof. Powell in celebrating his birthday on Monday. Prof. Powell leaves Wednesday on his annual vacation in Missouri, with the intention of returning ten days before the college work begins, so that he can supervise the opening of the seven affiliated rural schools.

Medical Officers At Camp

The roster is as follows:

Regimental Staff—Colonel David C. Hilton, Lincoln, Medical corps, commanding; Lt. Col. P. H. Bartholomew, Lincoln, M. C., executive officer; Capt. Earl N. Deppen, Lincoln, M. C., adjutant; Maj. George W. Covey, Lincoln, M. C., plans and training officer; Maj. Carl J. Norden, Lincoln, M. C., veterinary plan and training officer; Capt. Henry Farrell, Kearney, M. C., regimental surgeon; Capt. John J. Leonard, Lincoln, chaplain.

Collecting Company No. 130.—Capt. J. North Evans, Columbus, M. C., commanding; Capt. Carroll D. Evans, Columbus, M. C.

Ambulance Company No. 130.—Capt. Leonard Swanson, Hastings, M. C., commanding; First Lt. Howard R. Turner, Hastings, M. C.

Hospital Company No. 130.—Maj. Earl B. Brooks, Lincoln, M. C., commanding; Capt. John R. Bennett, Lincoln, M. C., Capt. Jay H. Matthai, Lincoln, M. C., First Lt. George E. Lewis, Lincoln, M. C.; Second Lt. William C. Hoffman, Lincoln, M. A. C.

Veterinary Company — Capt. Simon W. Alford, Lincoln, V. C., commanding.

Service Company—Capt. Harry R. Ball, Lincoln, M. A. C., commanding; Capt. Harry A. Stearns, Lincoln, M. A., C. regimental supply officer; Capt. Ernest W. Hancock, Lincoln, M. C.; First Lt. Henry S. Strickland, Lincoln, M. A. C.

Climaxing its two-weeks camp at Ashland, the Nebraska national guard Sunday will observe Governor's Day with a special program, winding up the activities of the two-weeks' period.

The feature events of the day will be the review of the 2,000 troops by Governor McMullen, and the presentation of trophies and cups for special proficiency in various lines.

In the morning the guardsmen wil give demonstrations of military tactics, including drills of several kinds by individual companies.

After noon comes the review by the governor and a mass concert by all of the camp bands assembled. Then Governor McMullen will present the trophies.

Six complete Lincoln units are at the camp, and many visitors from here are expected to view the last day's activities. After the final event on the program camp will be broken and the guardsmen will return to civilian life.

Visitors at the Ashland camp this year were unanimous in remarking on the improvements and general efficiency displayed. Outstanding among the betterment projects of the grounds is the erection of new, modern bath-houses, of fireproof construction, and containing hot and cold water and every convenience.

Competitions for cleanliness have resulted in a "spick and span" appearance of the camp grounds at every hour of the day, Lincoln visitars say. Each morning a long line o fmen starts at one end of the camp and marches slowly to the other end, picking up every stray piece of paper, every cigarette butt, an 'dall unsightly rubbish on the grounds.

In the kitchens visitors noticed a degree of cleanliness hard to be equalled. Every pot, every pan, utensil, knife, fork and spoon is kept faultlessly clean.

Sunday is the last day this year when visitors may view the national guard troops in assembled action.

WESLEYAN AFFAIRS

Miss Geneva George, who has been teaching in the schools at Lexington, is planning to go to Boston in the fall to work for a master's degree in religious education. She received her A. M. degree from the University of Southern California in 1925, having been graduated from Wesleyan the preivous year.

BY LULU MAE COE.

Lincoln would appear to be seeking self-expression through making huge piles of brick and stone and terra cotta and steel, and forming them into buildings with nails and mortar and rivets.

Some inner restlessness seeking growth, some ambition for increase long inhibited, some complex for expansion long unrecognized is being expressed in Lincoln's present construction. East, west, north, south—contractors' and plumbers' signs, lumbermen's and hardware dealers' announcements bloom like the flowers in the spring.

To steer a straight course on a sidewalk requires a carefully made chart. It's a dull day that pedestrians don't find themselves diverted at least once out among the automobiles for a half block or so. Walking is a game of "now you're on it, now you aren't," sidewalkedly speaking.

Those folks who were wont to complain that Lincoln was such a nice town, but so unprogressive, should step about now and hear the hammers and watch the hod carriers and see the steam shovelings in our midst. If Lincoln slept a little long before awakening to progress, it's making up for lost time. The busy little bee and the ambitious little ant have nothing on us when it comes to labor.

Many Changes.

Old buildings come down over night, streets are torn up, familiar landmarks disappear while we do a day's endeavor. Some fine morning we won't be able to find our way down town. The face of the city will be so changed that we'l find ourselves strangers in a strange land.

Lincoln beams with pride as it stumbles over broken bricks, takes a crooked path through raftered runways, and waits for a forgotten roof or tower to fall on its head. Right arms are going to be longer than left, with pointing to some airy regions, soon to be punctured by a fine new skyscraper or church.

It is hard for American cities to live without this constant change, of razing yesterday's prides for today's achievements. Lack of change, of new development, means stagnation in the American dictionary. To us who live on this side of the Atlantic, the small towns and the old towns that haven't had a new building since Washington would have stayed there had he gone that way are picturesque, perhaps, but are not in keeping with our ideals.

Demand for Progress.

Some ever workening leavening in our blood demands civic transformation at rather regular intervals. We can not be satisfied with the architecture, plumbing, lighting, decorative scheme, size of the building of a generation ago, and our impulse is to destroy it, and to embody in its successor the latest types of windows and stairs and drinking fountains.

Dr. Wu Ting-Fang, who at one time represented China at Washington, and who was an observant visitor from the Orient, was quoted as saying "Oh yes, I admire the United States enormously. I find only one fault with your country. Nothing seems ever finished in it.

"A building is no sooner up than some one begins to tear it down to substitute something else. Your religion—or should I say religions—has been improved out of all likeness to what it was originally. They tell me that the streets in New York will never be safe, because they will be, dug up as soon as they are finished to make new underground ways for the fresh increases in the population.

"I think in my mind sometimes that you occasionally mistake change for improvement."

A young man whose father held a high government office in Czecho-Slovakia, spent a brief time in Lincoln. He remarked that his chief impression of the United States was change. He was amazed that the state would raze a building "so fine" as the old capital, then standing, to erect a larger one. "It would stand for generations in Czecho-Slovakia," he remarked.

Modern America can not hold with such theories. Alteration is its breath of life. Rome was not built in a day—nor is a modern city. In fact, it is never built. The structure that marked its first days of living are gone by the time the latest real estate development is opened up. Little brass plates form its chief link with the past.

While we take pride in seeing a city grow, in seeing the boundaries grow farther and farther from the heart of the city, in watching new structures of clean brick and fresh white mortar go up, in less time than it once took to build a city, such progress takes its toll. Corners of historic interest or blocks wherein were the fine old homes of the city will soon be but traditions, their stories scarcely sagas, handed down from the pioneers to their children's children.

The new First Presbyterian church is being erected on the site of the old Sawyer home, which once was the center of the old social life of the city and where many interesting and famous personages have been entertained. The old home had to be sold, and its successor is worthy, but a landmark of real interest went with the octagonal home of the late A. J. Sawyer and Mrs. Sawyer.

Another home around which interest centered was the Aaron S. Raymond home at Sixteenth and R streets. One of the first of the larger homes of the city, it has now given way to University terrace, where little sorority girls will play and live for years to come.

One of the four oldest houses in Lincoln gave way when Fred Humphrey began work on his new building at the corner of Twelfth and M streets. The Victoria hotel, which had stood at Fifteenth and O streets for many years, was partially destroyed by fire, but the remains were razed for the new theater now being built on the site.

Another Landmark Gone.

A landmark, one of the oldest in the city, disappeared forever, with the new store of Speier and company. The Union block, erected in 1869, when Lincoln was very, very young, and once in the center of the business district, was on the site of the new store building.

All the building going on in Lincoln at the present time is not in the business district. Persons in the residential sections are leaping out of the way of workmen with quite the same agility that they do down town.

Since the first of January, a most casual inspection of the building permits reveals that permits for new homes to the amount of $1,466,600 have been issued. The amount has been increased by the permits for a half dozen sorority and fraternity houses. The new homes of Lincoln, about 275 in number, range in price from $3,500 often, but the beginning of a larger home, to $20,000 for the more pretentious residences, with the average price between $5,000 and $6,000.

With the "back to the campus" movement of the university fraternities and sororities, several permits for new domiciles have been taken out since the first of the year, and the houses are now under construction, making R street and Sixteenth street resemble a city being built over night. Pi Beta Phi is building a $55,000 house, Delta Delta Delta a $38,000, Kappa Delta, $20,000, Beta Theta Pi a $55,000 house, Alpha Chi Omega, one for $40,000, Alpha Omicron Pi a $40,000 house, and Delta Gamma a $35,000 house.

New Schools Erected.

The board of education has contributed quite a bit to the construction of the city and to the total of the school building permits, $1,316,000. Irving junior high school, Park elementary and an addition to the Lincoln high school, amounting to $1,229,000 in all, are now under construction. The Irving school at Twenty-second and Burr street will be ready for occupancy in September, 1927, the west wing of the Park this autumn, and the high school addition the second semester.

The church of the Blessed Sacrament is building a parochial school, for which the flooring is being placed at present, and it will be ready the middle of September. The school, for which the permit was $50,000, has four class rooms with a capacity of forty children each. The recently created St. Theresa's parish is having a new school, also. It is being built at a cost of $37,000.

Three churches are being built at the present time, the First Presbyterian, Seventeenth and F streets, the First Christian, Sixteenth and K streets, and Westminster Presbyterian church, Sheridan boulevard and South street. The foundation of the First Presbyterian church is laid to the ground level, work on that particular part having been begun about three weeks ago. The ultimate cost of the church will be $251,000, with organ and seats. The contract says the work is to be completed May 1, 1927, and the cornerstone laying will take place within a few weeks.

The First Unit.

The unit of the Westminster church now under construction will cost $125,00, and work was begun on it last summer. Twenty-five thousand dollars will be added to that cost for the organ, which is to

THYSSEN PLEDGES FULLFILLMENT OF THE DAWES PLAN

Declares U. S. Import Tax On German Iron Is Reasonable.

Holds Sound Business Arrangement With France Is Necessary.

BERLIN, Aug. 14.—(INS)—"The action of the United States treasury in suspending the special import levy upon German iron is to be welcomed as a very sound and reasonable step in thedirectionof better understanding of our economic situation, and I am convinced that when the full facts are thoroughly known and appreciated in Washington your government will drop the idea of the levy altogether," said Fritz Thyssen, Germany's "iron master," in an exclusive interview with International News Service.

"I believe," he continued, "if the conditions had been correctly understood in America, the special levy would never have been imposed. This levy means, in effect, that the German iron industry is penalized for something it has nothing whatever to do with, namely: the French inflation!

"The reason given in America for the special levy is that we have the dual price system, that is one price for domestic consumers and a lower price for our export. This dual price is also customary in the United States under such circumstances.

Reason For Difference.

"But the chief reason for this dual price scale is the fall of the franc. In view of the already serious condition of our domestic market and the grave economic plight in which large sections of our population find themselves, it stands to reason that a lowering of our domestic prices at this time is impossible, since it would only lower the living standard of our workers and add to the already alarming rate of unemployment."

Here the interviewer interpolated that the general comment of Americans visiting Germany nowadays is that "everybody seems to be working and is well dressed and seems well fed."

Mr. Thyssen replied that he knew this was the general impression of all foreigners visiting Germany, especially of tourists who only see the surface. It was true, he said, that everybody who has a job is working and is working real hard. However, there were nearly two million unemployed. The fact that people seem "well dressed," he explained, was due to the fact, that it is inherent in the German nature to try to look decent and orderly. Thousands go hungry for months and save up their pennies and finally buy a suit of clothes because they know that a tidy appearance is an asset in job-hunting.

Outward Appearances.

"When a nation begins to neglect its outward appearance, when people no longer care whether they look decent or run around in rags,' he said, "it is a sure sign of decay and utter desperation. I think you can regard it as a sympton for the moral stability and ingrained orderliness of the German people that after all they have gone through they still attach importance to a neat outward appearance."

Mr. Thyssen said that if visiting foreigners would take the trouble to dig beneath the surface they would find that there still is untold misery and actual starvation in Germany.

"What about the Dawes plan?" I asked.

"We have loyally and scrupulously fulfilled it, and we are determined to continue to fulfill it to the best of our ability," was the answer, "but those who wish to benefit by this fulfillment must not think that wath one hand they can reap those benefits and throttle us with the other. They must not kill the hen that lays the golden eggs! The whole Dawes plan is, according to its own text, based upon one essential precondition, namely, that Germany can only make the payments expected from her if the world markets are free and open to her goods. For our payments can not possibly be made in gold; they must be made in goods, just as the debts the European nations owe the United States were not made in gold but in goods. The Dawes plan stands and falls with our ability to export.

Affects Dawes Plan.

"The general import levy on German iron, if maintained, is one of the measures striking the very fundamentls of the Dawes Plan for its effect is to paralyze the export-capacity of our iron industry.

The son of the German Carnegie, though having suffered not only tremendous economic loss but personal hardships at the hands of the French during the Ruhr occ showed no bitterness or spirit of cupation—he was imprisoned—revenge toward France. Being a practical businessman and a political realist, he decries nothing so much as irresponsibile talk of a new war between the two nations. On the contrary, he believes they should not only live in peace together but should so readjust their economic relations as to make themselves mutually interdependent.

Thyssen has ben taking a leading part in the negotiations between Germany and France aiming at a steel and iron convention which would establish a mutually satisfactory price scale between the two nations. The main purpose of such an arrangement is not to raise the respective domestic prices but to bring export prices generally to a reasonable level.

Need Economic Agreement.

"What the world needs to get back to real peace and order is a sort o economic Locarno which would be so fair and satisactory to all concerned that the political Locarno, as yet a precarious artificiality, would quite automatically become a hard and fast reality."

Mr. Thyssen expressed satisfaction with the course Franco-German negotiations have taken. He found in France with the responsible people a spirit of perfect willingness to come to a satisfactory understanding with the Germans: indeed, the two negotiating parties have already come to an accord with regard to a percentage basis of production.

Mr. Thyssen said he fully agreed with the statement of Foreign Minister Dr. Stresemann in his speech before the Forign Press association that Germany does not by any means "gloat" over the fall of the franc but on the contrary regrets it.

"The post-war years," concluded Mr. Thyssen, "have proved that no nation can benefit by the ruin or misery of another. We must all pull together in the common work of putting Europe back upon a sound and sane basis."

Francis La Flesche Leaves Washington To Take Part In Festival of Omaha Indians

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14. — To take part in a rare ceremony on American soil, Mr. Francis La Flesche of the bureau of American ethnology, Smithsonian Institution, has left Washington for the reservation of the Omaha Indians of Nebraska. The ceremony is the annual tribal festival which begins with the observing of the gathering in of the hay crop, which began Saturday and will continue for a week.

This custom of the Omahas is reminiscent of the folk festivals of the old world and of a bygone day. It is not the direct continuation of a tribal custom dating back to prehistory, but rather a modernization and rebirth of an old festival. Until some time in 1870, the Omahas held an annual celebration to signalize the end of the Buffalo hunt. This ceremony, which had a distinctly religious nature, a thank offering to the Great Spirit—lapsed in the '70's. In 1900 the tribe inaugurated the present festival.

Ceremony Not Religious.

Though this modern holiday recalls the older one in many ways, it has been shorn entirely of any religious significance. The tribe of some 1,500 members gather at a grove on the reservation and pitch their tents for a week's dancing, feasting and relazation. Only folk-dances in which the whole tribe join in are danced. Some of these are of modern developme nt, but occasionally the old war dance of the tribe is revived, and with it the war paint and picturesque head dress and all the attendant ceremonial of a bygone day.

Old Pipe Dance Revived.

Another old dance occasionally revived is the pipe dance, the final measures of which are executed by two picked young men of the tribe. The pipe dance means that there is nothing better than fellowship and peace between men.

Feasting attends the dance, the tribesmen bringing their own utensils to share in the common bread and meat and coffee. During the day also various sorts of feats are held. Frequently a family that has been in mourning will end their mourning by a feast for the dead to which only those of the same sex as the dead are invited. Such feasts are accompanied by foot races and other sports, for which prizes of horses, blankets, shawls and similar objects are offered.

Visiting Tribes Welcomed.

On the last day of the festival, two hours are set aside for the making of presents to each other, after the fashion of modern Americans at Christmas time. This is the day, also, at which many visitors from other tribes—the Winnebago, Poncas, Yanktons—and from neighboring towns came to view the celebration. Some of the Osage Indians under Chief Lookout have come all the way from Oklahoma by automobile to attend the festival for the second time. For the benefit of these visitors the dances are held in the day time. Incidentally, this harvest festival has also been adopted by these other tribes.

WILL QUESTION HENRY DIECKMAN

Quiz Will Be Made At Request Of New Jersey Authorities.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 14.—(I. N. S.) — At the request of New Jersey authorities a detective will be sent from the San Francisco police force to question Henry Dieckman at Alcatraz army prison Monday, it was learned today. Dieckman, a former member of the New Jersey state constabulary, is held at the prison on desertion charges. He will be questioned concerning the Hall-Mills murder case, it being alleged that he can, if he chooses, throw some light on this baffling mystery.

Colonel William M. Morrow, commandant of the army disciplinary barracks, today declared that no pressure would be brought to bear upon Dieckman. Whether or not he wishes to talk is entirely up to him, Colonel Morrow stated.

Colonel Morrow today again scouted the purported interview with Peter Curtis, another army prisoner, who was quoted as saying that both he and Dieckman had been offered money to leave New Jersey.

"Curtis," he sail, "has talked to no newspapermen. We have any number of men in prison who would say they knew something of the Hall-Mills case if they thought a trip to New Jersey would be forthcoming. Whether or not Curtis has something to say, I am unable to state. Certainly he has made no statement to date."

LEE COMPANY IS MOVING FACTORY

Lincoln Remains Distributing Point For Broom Manufacturing Concern.

With the removal of factory equipment from the Lee Broom company, Twenty-first and Y streets, beginning next week, Lincoln will lose a manufacturing plant which for a third of a century has been part of the industrial activity of the city.

R. W. Tyler, manager, said Saturday night the work of transporting the equipment to the site of the parent organization in Davenport, Ia., will be completed in from four to six weeks. Lincoln, he said, will continue as the distributing point for this territory.

The Lincoln factory was established in 1894, twenty-three years after the parent factory was constructed in Davenport. Approximately thirty-five persons were on the payroll here and many of these will be retained with the local distributing organization or added to the Davenport force. Just what arrangements will be made in disposing of members of the existing local force has not been determined, either as to factory workers or executives, and depend upon conditions in Davenport, Mr. Tyler said. The local plant probably will be retained for a warehouse for the distributing organization.

Unification of the manufacturing units is considered more economical, according to C. E. Reynolds, prseident. The Davenport factory, he said, is operating profitably and it is felt by officials of the company that all the work could be done there.

Smoot Prepares For Senate Race

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 14.—(I. N. S.)—Senator Reed Smoot of Utah, who has been visiting with his daughter, Mrs. Carlyle Dibley during the past month, left for Salt Lake City by airplane this morning. The senator next week will plunge into his campaign for re-election.

Senator Smoot left at 7 a. m. in a regular airmail plane. It is his first long cross-country flight.

Mrs. Dibley and another daughter, Mrs. A. F. Cardon, with the senator's grandchildren, waved farewell as the plane taxied down the field.

DEBT AGITATION IS OF NO AVAIL

Burton Says American Opinion Hardening Against Lenient Terms.

LONDON, Aug. 14.—(International News Service.)—The agitation in European countries for revision of the debt agreements with the United States will accomplish nothing to their benefit and will only result in hardening American opinion against lenientt erms, which have been granted some debtors, according to Congressman Theodore Burton of Ohio, member of the American debt commission, who arrived here today, enroute to Geneva.

The chief reason for Burton's presence in Europe is to attend a meeting of the Inter-Parliamntary Union, but he is also making a survey of European political and economic conditions.

The arrival of Burton in London immediately gave rise to reports that he had been commissioned by President Coolidg to discuss financial questions with the representatives of the British and French government. These reports were immediately denied by Burton who pointed out that the work of the American debt commission is completed, as agreements for the settlement of all debts, except that of Greece, have been concluded, approved by the president and sent to congress for ratification.

Other American delegates to the Inter-Parliamentary Union, Senators Harrison, Caraway and Swansen, will join Burton at Geneva.

Among the important problems to be discussed at the Inter-Parliamentary Union is the proposal to call a conference at the Hague, independent of the League of Nati ns, to re-codify inter-national laws.

GREEN HEARING RESUMES MONDAY

Amendment to Demurrer to Be Offered by Defense Attorney.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Aug. 14.—(U. P.)—Arraignment of Col. Ned M. Green, suspended prohibition chief for northern California and Nevada, under indictment on charges of diverting seized liquor to his own use, gave way today to a hearing upon a demurrer to the indictments, and the hearing in turn gave way to adjournment.

The hearing will be resumed Monday morning, when amendments to the demurrer will be presented by the deposed liquor czar's attorney, Louis Crowley.

Attempts to learn whether assistant Secretary of the Treasury Andrews has conferred with Green "were unsuccessful."

Col. Grene's voluble "confession" about a month ago is believed to have speeded the indictment.

In his "confession," he was purported to have admitted the truth of some of the charges the United States attorney's office was preparing, namely, that he served seized liquor to friends and occasionally took a drink himself.

He charged, however, that the investigation resulted from his refusal to accept bribes and the dictates of powerful liquor interests.

ADMINISTRATION IS DISPLEASED

Vexed at Delay Mexico Accepting Terms On U. S. Oil Rights.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14.—The administration is displeased with the delay of the Mexican government in accepting its terms regarding protection of American land and oil rights south of the Rio Grande.

What concrete form this displeasur may take will probably be known shortly after a discussion between Secretary Kellogg and Ambassador Sheffield.

BELIEVE BIBLICAL CITY IS LOCATED

Ancient Fenced City Of Kirjath Sepher Believed City of Judah.

Expedition Uncovers Missing Link In History Of Palestine.

ST. LOUIS, Mo. Aug. 14.—(I.N.S.)—The most complete unbroken history of civilization in Palestine revealed by any city of the land yet uncovered—a history that reached before 200 B. C.—was unearthed by explorers last April and May, according to an interesting letter just received here from Dr. M. G. Kyle, president of the Xenia Theological Seminary, who assisted in the research work.

Dr. Kyle, who will return to the United States soon, was aided in his explorations by the American School of Oriental Research at Jerusalem. His letter tells of the finding of great quantities of ancient pottery and the discovery of quaint gates and an ingenious water supply system in the ancient city of the Canaanites and Israelites.

Fenced City of Judah.

"The site selected as that of the ancient 'fenced city,' Kirjath Sepher, proved beyond cavil to be that greatest 'fenced city of Judah,' and the last to fall before the 'whole army of Joshua,'' the letter recites.

"There are eleven points, requirements indeed, which the identification of this city at any place must meet, five archaelogical and six topographical. Tell Beit Mirsim, the site selected as Kirjath Sepher, satisfies completely each one of these eleven requirements and there is no other ruin that satisfactorily meets even one of these eleven. Daherjeh, the place marked on maps of Palestine as Kirjath Sepher, has nothing whatever to commend it, except that it is a convenient place for travelers to visit.

"The item in the identification of Tell Beit Mirsim as Kirpath Sepher that is most interesting to the public is that the two weels, the 'upper spring and the nether spring' mentioned in Joshua (15:13-19 are here and unmistakable. Their age can only be reckonede by milleniums. Six successive curbs have been put around these wells, each in turn worn into deep grooves by the running of the ropes in drawing water; these grooves in hard limestone are sometimes three or four inches deep.

Beautiful Pottery.

"But what makes this place so interesting even when identified? It was a typical "fenced city' of the old Canaanites and of the Israelites—and in such a complete state of preservation that is possible to see, by clearing away the rubbish exactly what the walls and the gateway were like.

"The city crowns a conical, isolated hill that seems as if it had been dropped down in the midst of a valley. The wall sloping in the lower part and with perpendicular parapet. still stands about thirty feet high, though the arapet has been almost wholly thrown down; so that with the parapet the whole wall must have been between forty and fifty feet in height."

Annual Picnic Former Iowans At Long Beach

LONG BEACH, Cal., Aug. 14.—(UP)—Nearly 100,000 former Iowans and tourists from the corn state assembled at Bixby park here today for their annual picnic and reunion.

Motor caravans from all sections of southern California streamed into the park throughout the day and by mid-afternoon the "world's biggest picnic," was on.

Officials of the Iowa association of southern California said it was the largest gathering in the history of the association organized twenty-five years ago.

J. F. Parkinson, president of the Long Beach Iowa association, delievered the address of wlecome, and there were responses from heads of other Iowa societies in the California southland.

U. S. Senator Samuel Shortridge, Gov. F. W. Richardson and other public celebrities addressed the big gathering.

RECALL OF KING IS CONTEMPLATED

Bulgaria Wants Exiled Ruler As Guide In Troublous Times.

BERLIN, Aug. 14.—(I. N. S.)—Recall of the exiled King Ferdinand of Bulgaria to guide the nation in the troublesome times that threaten as the result of the difficulties with Greece, Rumania and Jugo-Slavia over the act sof the comitadji, is contemplated, according to reports received here.

King Boris of Bulgaria is said to be willing to accept a position as governor of Macedonia in order to permit the restoration of his father, it is reported.

The proposed recall of King Ferdinand would have the approval of the powers, it is reported.

Millions Paid to States Under the U. S. Lease Laws

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14.—(I.N. S.)—Payments to state governments of their share of receipts from bonuses, royalties and rentals from oil, gas, coal and other mineral leases on public lands for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1926, amounted to $3,173,251, representing 37½ per cent of receipts from public lands within their borders under the terms of the general leasing law, the interior department announced today.

Wyoming led all the states with a payment of $2,585,608, while California was second with payments aggregating $88,475 and Montana third with payments amounting to $32,432.

Man Taboo Here Until Time for Signing Checks

CHICAGO, Aug. 14.—(U.P.)—With the granting of a charter to the Nancy Mansell Corporation, Chicago today has a real estate firm in which men are allowed "only to sign checks."

Further than that, men are not wanted in the company's office, according to President Nancy Mansell.

The firm, which was organized to sell apartments, is officered entirely by women. Even the janitor is a woman, Miss Mansell declared.

"There are to be no men in our office," she said. "It will be kept tidy by women. Of course men come in handy to sign checks after the apartment is selected."

Tea will be served every afternoon to feminine customers of the company.

NEW QUOTA MAY CHANGE COURSE OF IMMIGRATION

Federal Departments Busy Preparing Figures From Census Data.

England and Ireland May Furnish 60 Per Cent of Future Arrivals.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14.—(I. N. S.)—Great Britain and northern Ireland may furnish sixty per cent of the annual immigration to the United States if new quotas are proclaimed next April 1 by President Coolidge as directed by the immigration law.

This prospect has brought so many protests of discrimination that a committee of the state, labor and commerce departments now engaged in preparing the new quotas will endeavor to complete a report to the president in time to permit congressional action next winter.

Sharp changes from the present system of allotting the coveted visas are provided under the immigration act. At the outset the total number of immigrants permitted to enter the country is reduced from 164,667 to 150,000 a year.

Quotas Based on Census.

Quotas now are based on two per cent of the foreign-born people of any nationality as shown by the census of 1890. Under the "national origins' provision effective next year the 150,000 permits to enter the United States will be based on the proportionate strength of the various nationalities in the United States as shown by the 1920 census.

Since a large proportion of the people of the country are of British ancestry, a distinct gain in the number of immigrants from Great Britain and north Ireland—the Irish Free State having a separate quota—is expected.

Protests are being made. Some experts declaring that under the new law 90,000 of the 150,000 immigrants each year will be British.

Would Change Quotas.

Under one computation made the "national origins" provisions would change quotas of the principal countries as follows: Great Britain, present, 62,458, new, 91,111; Germany, present 50,129; new, 22,-018; France, present, 3,878; new 2,-863; Austria, present, 990; new, 1,-840; Denmark, present, 2,782; new, 5,878; Norway, present, 6,453; new, 2,433; Poland, present, 8,872; new, 4,509; Russia, present, 1,792; new, 4,002; Sweden, present 9,561; new, 3,707.

The governmental committee now engaged in framing the quotas under the new law is understood to be finding the task of applying it difficult, on the basis of census bureau information.

While President Coolidge is directed to proclaim the new quotas next year, he is left the alternative of declaring the information at hand is insufficient, and postponing the decree from year to year.

Film Beauties Have Broadway Chorines Beat

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Aug. 14.—(U. P.)—The movie business has produced more beauties and better love-makers than Broadway, according to Eddie Cartor, of musical comedy fame, who left Hollywood tonight after his first venture in films.

"Red Grange was all wet," said the famous comedian. "I've seen them come and go on Broadway, but I will mark my ballot for the movie girls every time.

"The leading ladies are woos and the extra girls have the Broadway chorines backed up and squawking, as beauty goes."

Cantor has just completed his first film, sharing honors with Clara Bow.

Asked if Miss Bow's screen kisses had influenced him in arriving at his conclusions, the comedian hurriedly glanced at Mrs. Cantor.

Japanese Steamer Reported On Rocks

CORDOVA, Alaska, Aug. 14.—(INS)—Efforts of United States naval radio stations today to ascertain the fate of the apanese merchant vessel Unkai Maru proved futile.

The Unkai Maru broadcasted two S. O. S. calls stating she had gone on the rocks at latitude 58:54 north, longitude 163:54 east.

The naval radio station at St. Paul made several efforts to communicate with the vessel but she preferred to work with another Japanese vessel within her range.

The coast guard cutters at Unalaska were notified.

CHEAT GOVERNMENT.

SOFIA, Aug. 14.—The good will of King Boris has been missused by his attendants to cheat his own government out of several thousand dollars in duties. The king recently ordered a new automobile in Vienna which was sent by road to Sofia in charge of a court attendant.

SAY BORAH'S DRY LEADERSHIP BID FOR PRESIDENCY

Idaho Senator Regarded As Candidate For 1928 G. O. P. Nomination.

Will Make Speeches This Year In Several Southern States.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14.— (I. N. S.)—Practical politicians in Washington now accept it is a fact that Senator Wm. E. Borah is an active candidate for the presidency in 1928.

The last vestige of their doubts on this score has been dispelled by the Idahoan's militant assumption of the dry leadership of congress in his Baltimore and Augusta speeches, and by the announcement that followed that he will speak elsewhere in the south this summer, visiting New Orleans, Memphis, Dallas and other cities.

It is the southern states that delegates to republican national conventions are most easily procurable, and it is there too, that prohibition sentiment is most strongly entrenched.

The hard-headed, far-seing politicians of the capital consider Borah's assumption of the dry leadership as "his bid for the presidency." One of his friends in the senate, who, incidentally will support him if the test comes, summarized it thus:

Is Good Politician.

"Senator Borah's worst enemy will concede that he is politically acute. Borah is no longer young. He will be 63 in 1928. If he is to realize the presidency it must be now. In 1932 it probably will be too late.

"He knows that if President Coolidge is a candidate in 1928—and on that there is no assurance—Mr. Coolidge's position will be almost impregnable. He knows that Gov. Lowden is now, to all practical purposes, the "farmers' candidate." There is but one issue left—Prohibition. He knows that on this issue, he can win the south, the west and the middle west.

"Senator Borah is engaging in political strategy of a very high order. He knows that if Al Smith wins the democratic nomination or if Smith goes into the democratic convention looking like a winner, the republicans cannot help but nominate a dry, and a pronounced dry at that. Borah knows that Smith, wet and Catholic, will have a hard time winning the dry and protestant south. So, should the democrats nominate Smith, and Coolidge, perhaps, decides not to be a candidate, who is there left but Borah? Who will be in so favorable a position? Lowden, maybe, he is strong with the farmers. Hoover? Weak in the west, the farmers are not fond of him. Longworth or Watson? A chance, but a small one.

On High Plane.

"Remember, too, that Borah is placing this prohibition issue, on a high plane. He is making his fight purely on the sonstitutional aspect of the question, an dnot upon the more controversial aspect whether drinking is right or wrong. Besides, he can point to his record of being willing to submit the whole question, to the people on a vote to amend the constitution.

"Anyhow, this is Borah's big opportunity. He realizes it."

Another element of the situation which the senator did not dwell upon, but which nevertheless is a not inconsiderable factor, is the fact that of all the potential candidates for the republican nomination, the Klan could support the Idaho senator with fewer qualms than it could any other.

The Klan is dry. So is Borah. The Klan is opposed to the World Court. So is Borah. The Klan opposed the foreign debt settlements. So did Borah. The Klan is anti-league and anti-Europe. So is Borah.

The Klan's Support.

It is not meant to suggest by this comparison that Senator Borah is in any sense a "Klan candidate." As a matter of fact many of his views are counter to those of the Klan, but on such issues as above noted the Klan could support Borah without quaver. It is a factor of not inconsiderable importance, especially if the democrats should nominate Governor Smith.

The Idahoan's friends also point out that his record in fiscal affairs is not such as would make him unacceptable to business interests. He supported President Coolidge in all his economy program, he voted against the soldier bonus, and he has opposed much of the advanced "subsidy legislation" put forward from time to time by congressional minorities. In short, he is "safe."

"Borah may never be president," said one Republican senator but he plans to be prepared in '28 if the lightning starts playing around."

NO SUBSIDIES FOR AIR LINES

Commercial Aviation Can Stand Alone, Secretary Hoover Says.

CHICAGO, Aug. 14. — (U. P.)—The United States will not grant any subsidies for the development of commercial aviation as European nations have done, Secretary of Commerce Hoover said today following a conference with President Coolidge yesterday.

Hoover stopped in Chicago today enroute from the summer white house at Paul Smith's to the Pacific northwest for a short vacation.

"In Europe commercial aviation has been developed on subsidies ranging from 50 to 80 per cent" Mr. Hoover said.

"I believe commercial flying here can be promoted on a purely private basis and be self supporting with the government furnishing the airways and the municipalities the airports."

College Head Says Young People Not Bad; Elders Worse

FRANKLIN, Pa., Aug. 14.—(INS)—"If there is anything wrong with boys and girls of today, the responsibility is not with them, but with their seniors," Dr. James Beebe, recently inaugurated president of Allegheny college, believes.

Confident that instincts and tendencies of modern youth are just as wholesome as those of any generation, Dr. Beebe, told interviewers that three months observation at Allegheny college has convinced him that:

"Students are are living in an impressable age. They have absorbed some of the abnormality of the World War.

"They are drinking less than in former years, despite all that is said about hip flasks.

"Students today are more individualistic and less inclined to think of the thought of others.

"Like students in all ages, they are imitative not original, but I am all for them, both hands up."

WILL QUIZ AIMEE ABOUT KIDNAPPING

Newsboys Attorney Will Try to Make Evangelist Produce Ormiston.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 14.—(I. N. S.)—On the strength of reports that Aimee Semple McPherson has some knowledge of the present whereabouts of Kenneth G. Ormiston, former Angelus temple radio operator, Milton M. Golden, attorney for four newsboys charged with selling a San Diego newspaper containing an allegedly obscene story about evangelist, announced today he will request Mrs. McPherson to produce Ormiston at the trial of the news vendors, August 23.

Undenied reports stated that Mrs. McPherson was informed of Ormiston's whereabouts shortly after she broadcast an appeal for him to come forward and "clear her name."

The calling of Mrs. McPherson at the trial it was reported, will be the opening gun of one of the most bitter legal battles that has ever been fought in the Los Angeles courts.

"Mrs. McPherson will take the stand," said Attorney Woolley, "in compliance with the wishes of Attorney Golden and in response to the subpoena and she will answer any and all questions which are competent. Questions relating to evidence said to be uncovered at Carmel by Deputy District Attorney Joe Ryan and other investigators, however, are not competent and she will not be allowed to answer them."

Golden was confident that he had the legal right to question the evangelist along any lines bearing upon her asserted kidnaping that he desired.

ANDREWS WILL RETAIN PLACE

Dry Chief Intimates Resignation Depends Upon Action of Congress.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14.—Elated over his success in creating a new anti-smuggling agreement with Great Britain, assistant Secretary of the Treasury Andrews made it plain today that he intends to remain in office as Federal dry leader at least a few more months.

He refused to discuss the subject further, but stated that he would hold his post until after election, probably until the congress acts at the next session on pending legislation.

Congress was expected to decide about his resignation date after Secretary Mellon returns from Europe Semptember 15.

The dry czar is in an entirely different frame of mind than before his trip to England. At that time he was frankly discouraged and talked freely of his attitude on the different questions regarding prohibition.

After putting the English agreement into effect, the dry czar will meet with his regional administrators on September 10. The field lieutenants will discuss at a round table conference plans for a fall campaign against illicit liquor traffic.

Following this Andrews expects to make a border tour of the United States.

END OF WORLD NOT IN CRASH

German Astronomer Says Collision Of Planets Not to Mark Destruction.

BERLIN, Aug. 14.—"I do not believe in the 'end of the world' that is, in its destruction by clashes with ther planets," said Dr. F. S. Archenhold, director of the Treptow observatory, one of the largest in Germany, in an interview with a Berlin paper.

"I am surprised to find papers and periodicals occupied with prophecies on the 'end of the world.' Any serious scientist has long ceased occupying his mind with such barren theories. I admit that superstition will cause the masses of the people to think and argue about such questions, but for us scientists this question is no longer a problem because it has been established for certain that the planetary system of the world is so stable that a destruction is absolutely out of the question.

The vicinity of or even a clash with one of the fragments of former planets or comets forms no danger to earth. The apalling speed of 19 kilometers per second with which the earth moves is safety enough against destruction if she should meet a planet on her way. Earth would simply push aside if not destroy any planet clashing with her.

ARMY AND NAVY GO TO COLLEGES FOR AIR PILOTS

Tremendous Development of Coming Years to See Need For Fliers.

Services to Ask Schools to Provide Material For Manning Planes.

WASHINGTON.—The army and navy are going to the American colleges to supply the pilots for the vast fleet of airplanes that will be available under the five-year building program authorized by Congress.

The services will get approximately 3,500 first class fighting planes. The Navy also is planning to build two dirigibles, each about three times the size of the wrecked Shenandoah.

With the rapid development of commercial aviation, the need for pilots during the next few years will be tremendous. Present facilities are far inadequate for training pilots. In addition, there will be a growing demand for aviation engineers, designers and constructors.

Developing Field.

Anticipating this need, the army and navy are going to the colleges for future officers. The present work is handicapped by lack of funds. Each succeeding year, starting at the session in December, will find army and navy heads asking congress for more money to train college men and reservists. These men will form the backbone of the air force, West Point and Annapolis cannot fill the demand.

Military officials declare that there is a fertile field ahead for youths who will turn to aviation as a profession. The opportunities are as great as civil and mechanical engineering offered to the college man of the last century, when railroad building and construction were in full swing.

Aviation is still a pioneer science. Some aeronautical engineers are not at all convinced that the present type of airplane will fill the need of the future. They say a way must be found to take a plane vertically as well as horizontally. Until this is done, the airplane cannot become as universally used in transportation as the automobile, the truck or the railroad. Then there's the question of size, load, safety, etc. The rewards will be rich for the aeronautical leaders, military men say.

Anticipate Needs.

In a rather minor way, the army and navy already are developing the college field. There are six army air corps R. O. T. C. units in the colleges throughout the country. These have developed a number of men who have qualified as pilots and engineers.

One of the army's prize units is located at the University of Illinois. Last fall, 493 students registered in the course but failure to pass physical examinations and other losses dropped the number to 233 at the end of the year. Major Maxwell Kirby, air service, is the only officer on duty with the unit. He reports that thus far ten students have applied to take the examination for a commission in the regular army.

Major Kirby recommended to the war department that special attention be paid this year to developing a large air corps ROTC. The air service has approved the idea and will seek money to carry out the plans.

The navy likewise is planning to establish air units in various colleges.

COLLEGE VIEW NOTES

S. R. Davenport and wife are spending their vacation in Colorado. They went by automobile.

Fire in one of the rooms of North Hall one day last week threatened to be serious for a while, but was finally extinguished by the boys from the power house without much damage. The fire was caused by a short circuit in the wiring.

Bird Jenkins and his three sisters, Anna, Margaret, and Bernice, are on a motor trip, with Ohio as their objective.

Mr. and Mrs. N. S. Nelson are visiting in Omaha.

D. K. Oxley is enjoying a visit from his son, Roy.

Elder F. L. Perry and wife are in College View on their way to South America as missionaries. They are detained here by business affairs. Elder Jerry is a former pastor of the local Adventist church.

R. H. Hartwell and wife have been visiting relatives here, prior to going to China as missionaries.

Prof. B. H. Wilcox is coming to the college this year to act as preceptor, Prof. G. C. George having resigned. For the past two years, Prof. Wilcox has had charge of the educational and young people's work of the Nebraska conference. His place in the conference will be filled by Prof. John Deepen, who has been teaching in the western part of the state for several years.

C. M. Case, who has been visiting his sister, Mrs. B. E. Nicola, returned to his home in Augusta, Mich.

Prof. John White and wife, of Loveland, Colo., are visiting at the home of L. D. Minner.

Miss Hazel White has accepted a church school position ot Goldsberry, Mo.

Cush Sparks, the new manager of the college print shop, has moved his family to College View and is now installed in his new position. Mr. Sparks held a similar position in the Southern junior college at Ooltewah, Tenn., for a number of years. Last year he taught printing in a Denver high school.

Roy Kinzer and wife are home from their vacation trip. Mrs. Kinzer visited her parents in Arizona and Mr. Kinser visited his parents in Grand Junction, Colo. They motored otgether to and from Denver.

It is reported that Prof. Morey, head of the college music department, is in poor health in Chicago and may be unable to take up his work at the college this year.

MAY NEED EAR-MUFFS.

There is every indication that long before climatic conditions necessitate, the people of Nebraska will be needing ear muffs.

An approaching political campaign between Governor Adam McMullen and ex-Governor Charley Bryan promises to be more prolific of political bunkum than any in recent years. Each has given early evidence of offense in this direction.

Take Governor McMullen's recent statements with reference to tax matters.

The governor has insisted one reason for the heavy appropriations of his first year in office was because he had to take care of deficits incurred in the previous administration of his opponent. He specifically mentions the failure to provide for the legislative session of 1923, calling for something in the neighborhood of $272,000.

It is true Mr. Bryan as governor did not specifically set aside a sum in the tax levy of 1923 to defray the legislative expenses of that year. It was not his province as governor to make this specific provision, for the very good reason that legislative expenses are paid as they come due from the proceeds of the levy of the preceding year. At the outset of the session a salaries' bill, and a maintenance measure, including pay for employes, and incidental expenses are introduced and passed as the first legislation. Mr. Bryan's legislative session drew its pay from the proceeds of the levy which Sam McKelvie and his associates made during the last year of Mr. McKelvie's term. Mr McMullen's legislature was paid from the money accruing from the levy fixed during the last year of Mr. Bryan's term. The session next January will be paid out of the funds raised by the 1926 levy. Long before the 1927 levy is fixed, the legislature will have finished its session, which starts in January, its members will have drawn every cent of salary coming to them, its employes will have been paid in full and the remainder of its expenses settled.

Governor McMullen knows this. He has served in the legislature and he received his salary warrant weeks and months before the levy for that current year was fixed. He is quibbling over a matter of book entry which is of no concern to the taxpayers or the people of this state.

The governor's criticism of the failure of Charley Bryan to pay deficiency road and bridge claims is on a par with his utterances with reference to the legislative expenses.

These claims were not paid.

The reason no provision was made for them is that a republican legislature refused to make provision for them. It is political history which Governor McMullen should know.

Mr. Bryan sent a special message to the legislature of 1923 directing attention to the fact that some $600,000 of bridge and highways claims remained unpaid from the previous administration. These deficits were incurred mainly by contracting in advance for more work than the preceding legislature in 1921 had appropriated the money to pay for. Before these claims could lawfully be paid, it was necessary that an appropriation covering them be made. The governor, Mr. Bryan had no authority to pay them otherwise.

But what did the legislature do?

It returned Mr. Bryan's message on this subject. It denied a deficit existed and said there would be plenty of funds when the taxes were all remitted to meet them. It called Mr. Bryan and went so far as to threaten to impeach him. Now the facts are that there were approximately $600,000 of unpaid claims at the time Mr. Bryan took office, which had to be anticipated by legislative action if they were paid.

So much for Governor McMullen's contribution to the pre-season political bunkum.

Ex-Governor Bryan seems to be doing very well in his own way with elaborate claims of savings. The fact is that Mr. Bryan did save some money, particularly in the first year of his term. He did it by the very well-grounded principle of not spending anything. Highway work came to a practical stop. He crimped activities of importance to the state, the most conspicuous of which was the highway program. But when Mr. Bryan talks of huge savings to the Nebraska taxpayers of from $3,000,000, $5,000,000 and even $10,000,000 and $15,000,000 he is engaging in that favorite game of political bunkum. Mr. Bryan makes himself ridiculous when he goes up and down the state talking some of the silly nonsense which has characterized some of his utterances.

What good comes from it?

Certainly it detracts from the real, important problems which trouble Nebraska. Nebraska is committed to good roads. It wants this work carried forward efficiently and effectively and as economically as possible. It wants its state institutions and its agencies adequately and properly provided for. This state has but one more desire. It asks to be relieved of the bunk campaign which is threatening it.

MISSOURI'S 105 YEARS OF STATEHOOD.

Celebration of 105 years of statehood by Missouri during the past week is not without national interest and significance. The contest over Missouri's admission to the union, culminating as it did on August 10, 1821, when President James Monroe issued the proclamation which made it a state, was one of the most bitter in the early slavery struggle. Illinois was seeking admission at the same time. But Missouri's northern neighbor secured recognition of its claims three years earlier because congress was trying to maintain a balance of power between free and slave states. To have admitted Missouri would have disturbed that balance.

As early as 1804 the agitation for statehood started in Missouri. But it was not until 1817 that a petition was formally circulated and signed. John Scott, Missouri's last territorial delegate, presented these petitions in 1818, and later in the same year Missouri's territorial legislature sent a memorial to congress. It became the foremost issue in the United States. Thomas Jefferson, writing to John Adams, declared that "from the battle of Bunker Hill to the Treaty of Paris" we have never had so ominous a question."

His fears were justified by the extremely bitter debates which occurred in congress from 1819 to 1820. Its solution finally brought the Missouri compromise which specifically provided that Missouri should form a state constitution and organize a state government, the boundaries of which were described in the act, and that no slavery prohibition or restriction be imposed upon it but the rest of all of the Louisana purchase territory should be free territory.

Those are dim and distant days in the public mind and yet removed by the span of less than 75 years, or a not unusual lifetime.

Since then a great civil war was fought, the issue finally settled, and for more than half a century a great nation has moved steadily forward. Today's dark problem is tomorrow's memory. It is well for all of us to remember that humanity goes forward—that questions which disturb and alarm are settled with the fine conscience of splendid race. We chaff and rebel at delay and indecision. But it is worth recalling there are few judgments which this nation has reached after long and careful deliberation which have been the occasion for later regrets.

THE DISHONEST LAWYER.

What shall be done with the lawyer who violates a sacred trust which his profession reposes in him?

The courts of Virginia answered the question when it sentenced former United States District Attorney L. P. Summers to fifteen months in the federal penitentiary at Atlanta for certifying to false accounts. Still another indictment hangs over his head on the charge of misappropriation of $6,895 as the guardian of an 11-year old girl, orphaned when her father was killed in the World war. The funds were allotted under the war risk insurance act.

In the evidence given out to investigating authorities, it was indicated the girl was making her home with a grandmother, who could neither read or write. For the last seven years the child has been given compensation of $77.50 a month but the grandmother claimed that as custodian of the girl, she had received but occasional payments of small sums. The newly-appointed guardian testified Summer had paid to him $4,900 of the amount he is charged with embezzling.

Here is a case which contains many elements.

Summers may have been actuated with the very laudable motive of conserving the girl's compensation until later years when she will have need of more money. The fact that a portion of it was returned to the newly-appointed guardian would indicate he had not made personal use of the funds.

But the indictment under which conviction was secured—that of certifying to false accounts—would on the other hand tend to establish an intention to defraud. The prominence of the defendant and the publicity which the case has received have been unwholesome influences when one considers dwindling respect for law. No punishment can be too severe for the dishonest lawyer. His relationship to the public enables him to inflict more incalculable harm to a community than the representatives of any other profession, business or industrial activity. It reflects a situation, which, fortunately, has been given much consideration by the legal fraternity and has been responsible for much more rigid qualifications. The bar still has this problem on its hands and should be given every encouragement in the work which it is attempting to do along this line.

THE SALMON IN DANGER.

Two of the greatest assets of the northwest coast have been the timber and salmon industries. For a time it was feared that the former was doomed, owing to the ruthless manner in which the country was being denuded of its forests, with no provision for reforestation, but this danger is now believed to be past, as the great lumbering companies have adopted sane and scientific methods, looking to future "crops" of timber to be grown and harvested time without end.

The salmon industry is now threatened, however, and it is one of the biggest money producers in the northwest. The danger arises from the increase in population and the encroachment of other industries. The Columbia river is the great spawning ground for the salmon and were it not for this stream, Oregon and Washington would be out several millions of dollars annually. Other streams in these states are valuable in a lesser degree, but all are suffering the same fate. They are being dammed and polluted. It is said that from one-third to one-half of the salmon sources of the Columbia have already been lost through the development of irrigation and hydro-electric projects and that the streams best for salmon culture have been those first chosen by the industrial invasion.

The Salmon Protective association of the Northwest has appealed to the people of Oregon for the conservation of the salmon and it is said that unless those in the Columbia river are zealously guarded the runs will be reduced to such an extent that packing will no longer be profitable.

That the industry has been a profitable one is shown by the fact that it brings into Oregon more than ten millions of dollars annually, the money coming from the markets of the world and the most of it remaining in the state. Forty thousand people, it is stated, are to a greater or lesser extent dependent upon it.

Nearly forty million pounds of salmon were taken in Oregon and Washington last year, thirty-five million pounds being packed and the other five million shipped either as fresh, frozen or pickled product. The Columbia river pack was 540,452 cases.

Scientists say that the world must at some time in the future look to the sea for its food to a far greater extent than it has in the past, and this being the case it would seem that the warning of the Salmon Protective association is a timely one.

AN UNUSUAL MISSION.

A group of Americans have set out on an unusual mission. It has appointed itself a special investigator to determine the truth about Russia. Included in its ranks are business men, clergymen, writers and other groups.

If there is anything mystifying or confusing concerning the conditions in Russia which should be made known to the American people, there is no reason why objection should be raised to the commission. The American people have thought they understand the Russian situation. They have felt that that unfortunate country was passing through a transitory period, first of violent revolution and radicalism and finally moderate democracy. Until the Russian government has given positive proof that it has established itself upon a sound basis, it has been withheld recognition.

The evidence in recent months tends to substantiate the belief rapid progress is being made toward sane and orderly methods of government. A modified form of capitalism has replaced the fantastical, theoretical schemes which caused so much suffering and misery among the Russian people. Russia is slowly resuming relations with other nations. The records of the United States department of Commerce for the first six months of this year show Russian imports valued at $8,636,903 came to America while goods manufactured here at home worth $22,754,121 were sent to Russia. Last year the value of Russian imports was $12,737,731 while the American exports to Russia aggregated $68,195,688.

Whenever the time arrives that Russia gives evidence of sufficiently stable political institutions to justify American recognition, it will be forthcoming. Nothng this commission does or reports will in anyway influence the decision of the government in this respect.

The Spanish princess who thought she was coming to the mountains of Nebraska evidently has been reading some popular novelist again.

Ng Ka Py, the new Chinese drink, is quite useless here. Who could go into a drug store and ask for a bottle of that?

"A double chin is unnecessary" reads a beauty culture advertisement. The average woman can talk her husband to sleep with a single one.

A highway expert says speed limits will soon be absent outside of cities, but a lot of drivers seem to have settled that already.

PARDON US FOR LOANING YOUR MONEY

BY WILL ROGERS.

There is one thing about Englishmen, they won't fix a coal strike or anything until it is just about totally ruined.

LONDON, Aug. 11.—Well, all I know is just what I read in the papers. It's Sunday and I am sitting here at my hotel window overlooking the old Thames river and watching and observing our so-called British cousins. I have been reading the papers all day and each thing you read is worse than the other. In other words, the farmer is not the only man in the world that things are not breaking to suit. I don't want to be a calamity howler for it's none of my business, and the way some nations act it is none of their business. But I just want to enumerate offhand a few of the things that are pestering Europe at this time.

In England, the coal strike is still dragging on and by the time you read this it may be over. But I doubt it very much. If you ask me, I think the miners will eventually win it, because the owners or the government are doing nothing to break it, only arguing it in the House of Parliament. Now you know what happens over home when they try to settle anything in congress. Well, the batting average of the House of Commons is about the same. You see when they had what they called the general strike over here about three months ago and I happened to be here at the time why everybody pitched in and it looked like the greatest country in the world. You never saw such combined strength; everybody wanted to help run street cars and trucks and do every kind of work, skilled and all. But when it was settled and this coal thing kept on why nobody seems to want to take their places.

Oxford and Cambridge turned out and helped before, but Oxford and Cambridge are not turning out to dig coal. So just from a kind of an outsider's point of view it looks to me like the mining industry is about the only one that they can't replace except with miners. So if the miners hold out I don't see how they can help but win.

There is only one way to break a strike and that is to put somebody to work where the man that is striking left. But they are doing nothing to replace the strikers at all. Well, it is hurting a lot of different businesses over here and they are losing a lot of coal trade other countries are grabbing off that they will never get back even when the strike is settled.

But there is one thing about Englishmen, they won't fix anything till it's just about totally ruined. You couldn't get the English to fix anything at the start. No, they wouldn't have anything to debate and argue about. Then when it just looks like the whole thing has gone up salt creek why the English jump in and rescue it. They seem to figure that the whole expense of it makes it worth digging out of the fire in the finish.

But, Lord, England is in alfalfa up to their knees in comparison to France! Yesterday another bunch of prime ministers an dtheir gangs got the gate. You talk about looking for comedy in government. Why France is just like getting a laugh on prohibition; there is no credit to it it's so easy. Ever since I have been over here, I have read all that I could find on France and her finances, and I have been in their House of Deputies twice. I was in there when they threw this Briand out, I think it was the eleventh time. Then this Herriot, or whatever his name is, this socialist was the one supposed to go in and form him a cabinet. Well, I waited around Paris for a week and he couldn't get anybody to go in with him so he had to give it up, and then they asked Briand to come back. So it looked like they would get started again.

They got this new finance minister and he thought he would do something to help put the country on its feet so he jumped in an aeroplane and come over to England and made a debt settlement with England over their war loans. Then he went back to Paris thinking he had acomplished something great. Well there is where he didn't know his business. He might know finance but he didn't know his French. The minute he had promised anybody to pay anything he was in wrong in France. The fellow that went over and made what we thought was a very fair settlement with us on our debt, why they like to killed him when he got back. Talk about getting that debt pact ratified over in France! Say, you couldn't even get it voted on. The only thing they will do with that will be to hiss it.

It certainly was smart of somebody in Washington to think of the idea of not holding congress there to ratify this French loan because we would have had five hundred congressmen and senators die on our hands of old age.

Now you will say, "What is the matter with them?" I will tell you what is the matter with them. Everybody over here knows what's the matter with them. They won't pay their taxes.

Some very big statistical writer has been running a series of articles on France and her taxes. They have what they call an income tax, but it's practically voluntary. You turn in what you want to, and they never investigate it to see if it is right or not. He showed where big doctors and lawyers that were earning millions of francs a year would turn in thier earnings as fifty or a hundred thousand francs. Their whole system of taxes is out of kilter someway, and it looks to me like the only way you will ever get any money for taxes out of them is to deduct it at the source some way. What I mean is, to take it away from them in some way before they get it. If you ever let them lay their hands on it themselves they will never pay it.

And, oh boy, how htey are hating us! If somebody gets a bad cold it is laid to the grasping nature of money-loving America. Mellon just arrived over here and was met by editorials such as: "Uncle Andy Shylock," "What! is he coming after more," and dozens of others like that. So we seem to be in pretty Dutch with all the natives that we were so rude as to lend money to.

It's the old gag, (and nations are not different from individuals) you loan a man money and you lose his friendship.

And the funny part about the whole thing is you go anywhere like the races, or the opera, or anyplace where the prices are high, and you will see it packed and people spending more money than they do over home. I have dodged more big Rolls Royces and Fiats over here than I ever saw big cars at home. There is lot of them over here got plenty of dough, but they are not giving any of it to their governments to pay out the taxes.

So don't lose too much sympathy about them not being able to pay. They are able to pay if they only get the taxes out of the right ones. The whole debt problem in all these countries reverts back to one thing and that is our coming into the war. They say we come in for one thing and we say and know that we come in for another. In other words what we did, has never been appreciated. They we should have declared war on Germany two days before they started to march into Belgium. So I hope these people that are always trying to fix the world will learn something out of this, stay at home and tend to our own business! Don't attend a conference! Not even a luncheon!

THE PEOPLE'S FORUM

Lincoln, Neb., Aug. 13.

To the editor of The Lincoln Star: I was very much pleased by The Star coming out for the repeal of the primary law. The Star says, "With all its faults the convention system generally gave the country better, more able candidates than the primary." Most of the corruption and misrepresentation under the convention system was caused by the saloon influence. The presence of women in the convention will help, too, to improve conditions. When we go back to the convention system delegates should be elected for fixed terms say for two or four years, and if they do not receive pay, they should at least receive their expenses. The delegate who allows his expenses to be paid cannot act independently if he desires to do so, and the poor are the ones who most need a voice in the government.

In my opinion the United States senate has always ben, and still is, the ablest representative body in the history of the human race. It is abler than the British parliament or the German Reichstag. The senate has always had, and still has, time and independence for deliberation, and it is better to deliberate too long than to make a mistake. Delegates elected Friday evening for a Saturday convention did not have time to deliberate, and yet, compare the cost of the government under the convention system with the primary cost. If paid delegates deliberate the year round, they save us millions over the primary system. The primary has made party organization less potent. It has given us good men in Nebraska, but bad parties in Pennsylvania, New York, Indiana, Illinois, and other states. I prefer good parties to good men because good men die and good parties stay. It will not be possible to have good parties without free speech and a free press. Give our national, state and county conventions as much as possible, the time and independence of the United States senate for deliberation in the open, and votes or record and the result will be able, efficient parties and government.

In his "New Freedom," Woodrow Wilson said:

"There must be some place where everyone can express his will and have it counted." The caucus is that place and everyone is competent to express an intelligent opinion at a primary. The caucus elects the best of the neighborhood, the best of the caucus elects the best of the county. The best of the county elects the best of the state. The best of the state elects the best of the nation. Under that system it would not be possible to elect United States senators who would advocate or vote for the unsound things the farm bloc is urging. The farm bloc has an indirect way for nullifying the protective tariff law—why not elect a party pledged to repeal the tariff.

E. L. DREWING.

The Next Step.

LINCOLN, Neb., Aug. 12.

To the editor of The Lincoln Star: Hats off to the Knights of Pythias for proposing to eradicate leprosy from the Philippines.

Now who will propose to eradicate venereal disease from America. The local, state and national governments should do this, but they never will until newspapers and civic clubs arouse them to it.

We are eradicating typhoid, yellow fever and tuberculosis. Why are we so slow in waging war upon venereal diseases? "Mock" modesty may be one reason. A delusion that only prostitutes and libertines get venereal diseases may be another. I have experience that God does not protect the innocent any more than he protects the guilty.

We pride ourselves in having "modern" improvements, but are they sanitary? We have the sanitary drinking fountain, paper towels, etc., but bath tubs, wash basins and toilets are still headquarters for venereal germs.

We must replace the tub with the sanitary shower bath and install wash basins with no plugs to hold the water in, and the water must not trickle down the sides of the basin but a free continuous stream of water must pour into the center of the bowl until the user has finished washing.

The government must place in the hands of everyone reliable information on the cure of venereal diseases, because too many otherwise good doctors have taken advantage of embarrassed venereal victims to prolong their misery and destroy their power of self support.

Uncle Sam, if your sons and daughters are to be spared from venereal contamination, you must step in and cure the present victims, innocent and guilty, just as you are curing unfortunates from tuberculosis.

INNOCENT VICTIM.

Renting Out Soldiers.

(Falls City Journal.)

And now that the movie extra men feel that the War Department is injuring their business by renting troops to the movies, to the exclusion of the extra men who might be expected to obtain a few dollars when their servies were needed.

The appearance of real soldiers in the movies may give the movie fans a thrill when they see them on the screen, but somehow, it doesn't seem just dignified for the soldiers of the United States to be rented out for such use. It probably doesn't hurt the soldiers any, and it may be in keeping with the economical policy of our federal government, yet it would be hard for the average young man to compete with the soldiers who, when he wasn't being used for the movies, is supported by taxation. The government doesn't care for the extra men during periods of idleness and according to what little we know of movies, there is plenty of idle time for extra actors. We can hardly blame these extra actors for objecting somewhat to the use of troops to replace them in the movies.

Discoveries In Humans

Massachusetts Governor Gave Professor Post On Bench; Became U. S. Supreme Court Justice

"The governor will place your name before his council for confirmation within an hour.'"

BY PRESTON WRIGHT.

It would be interesting if there were statistics to show what percentage of successful men choose their own careers and what percentage have their careers chosen for them.

Nowadays the opinion seems generally to prevail that the individual should mark out his life work himself, but there are instances which prove that this is not necessarily the best plan. For instance, Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes of the United States Supreme court, who has been rated by many as one of the greatest jurists of all times, the possesser of a mind on a par with that of the great John Marshall, did not of his own volition take up the law as his life work.

He studied law upon the insistence of his father, Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes, author and lecturer, whose "The Autocrat of the Breakfast Table" made him a national figure.

It was after the Civil war was over. The younger Holmes had come out of the struggle with the rank of colonel, after a valorous record, but without being fitted for any particular work.

He would have liked to have studied philosophy. Son of Dr. Holmes, this was entirely natural, and undoubtedly his wartime experiences had strengthened his philosophical bent. But there was the future necessity of earning his own living to be considered.

Advised to Follow Law.

"I think your best opportunity would be in the law," advised Dr. Holmes, and his son accepted this advice, going back to Harvard, from which he had graduated in 1861, to obtain his LL. B. degree in 1866, when he was twenty-five years of age. There had never been a thought that he would be, like his father, a physician.

Today, Justice Holmes is eighty-five, an impressive figure of a man, active, alert, keenly interested in life. One suspects that it is that keen interest in life which, in the last analysis, won him his seat on the United States Supreme court bench and hale activity at years when most men are resting beneath the sod or are condemned by physical infirmities to retirement.

Commissioned a first lieutenant in the Twentieth Massachusetts volunteer infantry in 1861, he saw hard service in the early stages of the Civil war. Once he was shot through the breast. Later, he was shot through the neck. And again he was shot in the foot. It takes more than a sound body to recover from adventures with death like these.

As to the law: Early in his contact, he drew upon the resources of philosophy. Clear perception, coupled with sympathy and understanding, enabled him to interpret abstract legal theories in their true relation to human action.

Started Writing About Law.

He began the practice of law, but it was natural that, with his philosophical bent, he sholud be interested in writing about law. And his attainment in this field was so marked that from 1870 to 1873 he was editor of the American Law Review. In the latter year, too, he published the twelfth edition of Kent's Commentaries. His writings began to attract considerable attention.

About this time, Augustus Lowell, father of Abbott L. Lowell, the present president of Harvard university, and head of the Lowell Institute in Boston, sent him an invitation.

"I'd like you to deliver a course of lectures at the institute," he said.

Holmes was in doubt, but it occurred to him that when one is in doubt, the best thing is to do, so he accepted.

This course of lectures, with his writings in The American Law Review, formed the basis of a book, "The Common Law," which he published in 1881. Externally, the lectures and the articles were responsible for the turning point in his life, for his book attracted great attention from the legal fraternity abroad. The British critics were so enthusiastic in their praise that the American critics perforce followed behind. In 1882 Holmes was invited to a professorship in the Harvard Law school.

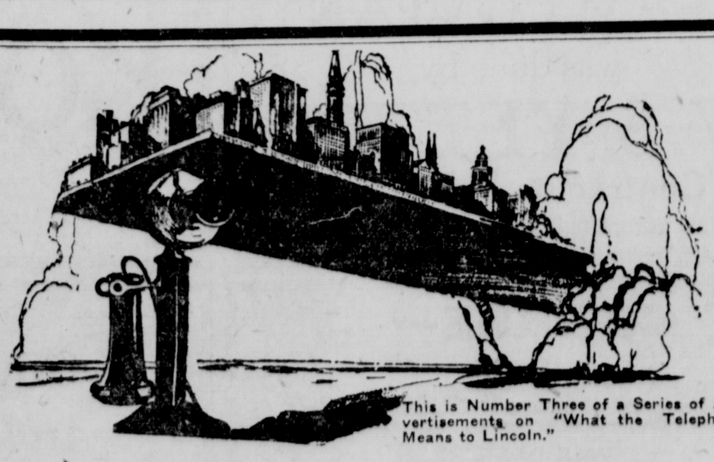

Was Appointed to Vacancy.

But greater things were in store. His book had so enhanced his reputation that Governor Long was considering him for a possible vacancy in the supreme judicial court of Massachusetts.

This possibility was in his mind when he accepted the Harvard professorship, which had been endowed on the special arrangement that he should be obtained to fill it.

Holding Up Its End---

Much of the burden of our complex life must be placed upon the simplest and most satisfactory means of communication.

That's the telephone.

Daily the task of meeting the people's need for telephone service is becoming more difficult. Daily the problems are being solved and preparations for solving new problems are made even before they become acute. Service meets demand half way and betterments overtake imperfections as rapidly as human energy and ingenuity can provide them.

Nowadays we must have transportation, power, manufacture, distribution and communication as the basis of a colorful and tremendously speeded, up existence.

The telephone is holding up its end. You can rely on it in routine or emergency. Its service touches every human being yet its cost is very low when compared to its usefulness.

The Musical World

Despatches from Paris published in the daily papers last week stated that George Blumenthal had completed negotiations for an organization to be known as the French-American Opera Comique and that this organization will come here next season to play such works as La Mascotte, Grande Duchesse, Le Petit Duc, Madame Angot's Daughter and Giroflé Girofla. The ambitious plan also calls for performances of light opera in English with American singers. Mr. Blumenthal will be recalled as the person who a few years ago organized a company that was to give a season of Wagner in English at Carnegie hall, and which, after a hard struggle, achieved one single performance.

The following are among the greatest musicians, poets and painters who have died in the fourth decade of their lives: Shelley, 30; Schubret, 31; Bellini, 33; Mozart, 35; Byron, 36; Raphael, 37; Bizet, 37; Burns, 37; Purcell, 37; Mendelssohn, 38; Weber, 39; Chopin, 40.

Wesleyan Affairs

Karl Zavadil plans to attend the Garrett biblical school at Evanston next year. He has been the minister at Brainerd, Nebr. He graduated from Wesleyan in 1923.

The Wesleyan male quartet has complete a two-months tour of Nebraska in the interest of Nebraska Wesleyan. The quartet is composed of Homer Hubbard, bass; Harry Vedder, baritone; Roy Fager, second tenor; and Clinton Swengel, first tenor. A most enjoyable trip is reported.

Miss Virginia Hardin will teach in the high school at Syracuse next year. She was graduated from Wesleyan in 1926. The superintendent will be Paul Reid, '22.

Donald P. Harrington, '25, has been spending his vacation touring Yellowstone park this summer with his parents. He is in the real estate business in Lincoln.

Rev. F. F. Travis, pastor of the Grace M. E. church in Lincoln, was the president of the Epworth Assembly this year. He received a D. D. degree from Nebraska Wesleyan in 1925.

Miss Marie Sloss, who was graduated in piano and did post-graduate work at Nebraska Wesleyan with A. Vernon Spencer, is head of the piano department at Carleton college at Northfield, Minn. She is spending the summer months abroad studying under Matthey in London. When she returns she will be in concert work, playing in New York and Chicago. Miss Sloss spent three years abroad studying music after attending Wesleyan. Her parents reside in Lincoln.

Herbert Gray is going to teach in the high school at Bogue, Kas., next year. He was graduated from Wesleyan in 1925.

James Thompson, '26, will teach mathematics and athletics in the junior high school at Pawnee City next year.

Miss Esther Innis will teach in West Point next year. She was graduated from Nebraska Wesleyan in 1926.

DAIRY OPENED AT UNI PLACE

Koser Company Plant Is Most Modern Throughout.

The Koser Dairy and Ice Cream company, Nineteenth street and Warren avenue, University Place, has just opened the doors of its new plant which, more than ever before, places sanitation and quality in production on a high pedestal. The new building is equipped with strictly modern equipment for the pasteurizing and bottling of milk and the manufacture of ice cream.

The building is of modern style constructed of yellow pressed brick, one story with a seventy-five foot frontage. Practically a solid array of plate glass windows admit light to the building from three sides with a skylight in the roof. Sunlight is one of the key notes to sanitation and of sunlight, the Koser company has an abundance. The building faces the east with three doors opening into the street. One goes to the central office, one to a private office and the other to the dairy room.

The inside of the structure is as fresh and clean looking as the exterior. White rough plaster covers the ceiling and side walls except for a continuous panel going around the side of imitation white tide. The floor in the dairy room is of composition concrete. In the offices it is of imitation marble with a curved base so that dust nad dirt may easily be swept out.

The company is run by G. W. Koser and his two sons Merle G. and G. R. Koser. Six years ago, the company started operations in an adjacent building. Gradually building up a consistent trade through quality, sanitation and service, it outgrew the original plant and the new building was constructed. The milk is obtained through contracts with reliable farmers near the city.

Each morning a truck goes out to these farms and brings the milk in fresh. It is then pasteurized, tested and cooled. Then it is bottled and placed in a large refrigerator. The refrigeration plant in the new building as another feature. Besides keeping the milk ice cold in the ice box, its pipes run through the vats and circulate about the cooling pipes to keep the milk at as low a temperature as possible.

Up to the present time, the company has only dealt in milk. In the new building, however, a complete ice cream manufacturing device has been installed, with the very latest equipment. A direct expansion freezer molds the ice cream by a comparatively new method. Great care is used in selecting the raw products for making the ice confection.

The milk will continue to be sold retail but the ice cream, which will be known as Koser's Perfection, will be sold wholesale to dealers. Increased business has caused the expansion of this firm. Those connected with it feel that future prospects are still brighter.

Girl Drowned In A Mill Race When Automobile Skids

BARABOO, Wis., Aug. 14.—(INS)—Shirley Ann Dawson, 21, of Mason City, Iowa, was drowned in Woolen Mill race here early today when a car driven by a Mrs. Tregazi of Mirror Lake, Wis., skidded into the mill race. Mrs. C. O. Dawson, mother of Shirley, and a Mrs. Nagle of Chicago, who were occupants of the car were rescued from the water.

The car, said to have been traveling at high speed, dropped 25 feet into the water.

LOS ANGELES—(I. N. S.)—Senator Shortridge of California was the principal speaker at the Iowa picnic in Long Beach toda.

SCHLENTZ-HASIK IN RADIO FIRM

Atwater-Kent Sales and Service Store Opens at 136 South Twelfth.

The Radio Electrical company, furnishing sales and service for Atwater-Kent radios, electrical and radio appliances, and a complete radio repair service, opens Monday in its location at 136 South Twelfth street. Rudge and Guenzel's west entrance.

The concern will be in the hands of Francis Schlentz, and Milo Hasik 328 South Sixteenth street. It is a partnership firm between the two young men.

Besides featuring Atwater-Kent merchandise, the partners plan to give satisfactory radio service. A motorcycle with van-sidecar attached will be in service Monday to make calls to residences for repair or service work.

The firm will carry a complete radio line. Among the new arrivals in their stock are two Atwater-Kent models. One is a 6-tube set in a steel case operated under one-arial control. Another is a 7-tube set in a mahogany case.

Mr. Schlentz has had a variel experience with radio and electrical outfits. He worked one year at Atwater-Kent service man for the Neil Electric company of Omaha. Mr. Hasik, the other member of the firm, has also had an extensive experience in this line. Both young men come from David City, Neb.

BRIDGE DATA IS BEING COMPILED

Estimates Of Cost Of Free Structures Will Be Given Legislature.

Data showing the length of each proposed bridge over the Missouri river between Nebraska and Iowa, depth of the foundations necessary to support them and probable cost will be assembled for the next legislatures of both states by State Engineer Roy Cochran of Nebraska and Ward R. Evans of Sioux City, chairman of the Iowa bridge commission.

This was agreed upon following their conference held in Cochran's office Friday afternoon. No method of financing construction of the bridges will be recommended, so far as Nebraska is concerned, the state engineer said.

In making up cost estimates, the outlay on Missouri river bridges constructed during the past year or so at Wheeler, Pierre, and Chamberlain., S. D., and at Lexington, Glasgo, Waverly and Boonville, Mo., will be used as a basis.

John Hopkins of Omaha, who is president of the recently organized free bridge association, met with Messrs. Cochran and Evans to urge that all of the seven bridges recommended by that organization be included in the report of the joint commission for the two states.

The last Nebraska legislature authorized a survey covering bridges at Nebraska City and South Sioux City. The Iowa legislature, however, specified bridges at Sioux City and Council Bluffs, the latter of which would connect with Omaha on the Nebraska side.

Two of these projects have been endorsed by the Nebraska free bridge association, together with five other bridges to be located at Rulo, Plattsmouth, Blair, Decatur and Niobrara. A similar association is working in Iowa for bridges connecting with all the Nebraska points named, except Niobrara, which is on the South Dakota boundary.

In connection with their report on the feasibility of bridges at Sioux City, Omaha and Nebraska City—the ones designated by the two legislatures—Messrs. Cochran and Evans will probably submit information on all the others. Their report will be outin a month or so.

Breakdown Causes Woman to End Life

NEW YORK, Aug. 14.—(I. N. S.)—While her husband slept in an adjoining room today Mrs. Maude Woods, 50, leaped from the window of their eighth floor apartment, and was killed instantly.

The husband, Arthur M. Woods, president of a storage warehouse company, found a hastily penned note, which read:

"My blessed husband:

"Forgive me for doing this terrible thing, but I am too sick and discouraged to carry on.

"MAUDE."

The dead woman had been suffering from a nervous breakdown for two years.

Ellsworth Joins Secretary Davis

INTERNATIONAL FALLS Minn., Aug. 14.—(I. N. S.)—James J. Davis, secretary of labor, who set out on Friday the 13th to catch a fish larger than the one that President Coolidge caught at Paul Smith's has conceded the fishing honors to the president. The secretary had many alibis. It was Friday the 13th; the water was too rough and he didn't have the right kind of bait.

Lincoln Elsworth who recently flew over the north pole, joined the secretary and his party at Rainy lake today.

VENDETTA VICTIM.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Aug. 14.—(INS)—Frank Polizzi, 28, was shot five times and killed here today by two men who escaped in a highpowered automobile. Polizzi is believed to be another victim of a vendetta that has talen five lives in the last month.

Open Radio Electrical Company

FRANCIS SCHLENTZ.

MILO HASIK.

These two men start business Monday in the Radio Electrical company, 136 South Twelfth street. A complete Atwater-Kent sales and service shop will be maintained, as well as a stock of radio an delectrical appliances. Both Mr. Schlentz and Mr. Hasik have had considerable experience in radio and electricity. Their homes were formerly in David City, Neb.

Radio Digest

Charging Battery at Home

When using a battery charger at home never allow the specific gravity of the electroyite to drop below 1200, as shown on a standard battery hydrometer. The practice of allowing it to drop below 1150 will soon ruin a battery.

Safety in Soldared Joints.

Because connections have a bad habit of working loose ,every effort should be made to keep them tight, and, in many cases, they should be soldered to insure staying tight. A bad connection either means a nosy set or weak signals.

Radiator as "Ground" Connection.

When it is found that a cold water pipe is not available to connect the ground wire of the receiver, use the screw holding the valve handle of the hot water radiator near the set. The wire may be fastened by loosening the screw, winding the wire around several times, and then tightening it to normal position.

Use Back of Knife.

In cleaning copper wire from which the insulation has been stripped, scrape with the back of a knife blade, not with the sharp cutting edge. If this is done there will be a saving of a good edge and at the same time making a better job of the cleaning, for the dull back edge has less tendency to parc the soft copper wire than the keen one has.

To Trace Sources of Noises.

Noises in the set come from a number of sources, some of which can be traced and removed quite easily. Poor tube-socket contacts have often been mentioned and a bit of sandpaper remedies this. Sandpaper the ends of the tube prongs. Loose wires on batteries, especially on the positive storage battery terminal, cause scraping and frying sounds. Loose wires in the set can be located by leaving the set running, but without a station tuned in, and pressing lightly on various wires inside the set with a wooden rod (not metal). "Static" is often blamed for the sizzling, spitting and crackling noises. Disconnect the aerial and static will not come in with the aerial off. Then, again, there are the scraping sounds caused by chemical action within wornout "B" batteries. Be sure they are up to standard by testing them with a good voltmeter. Old dry cells that are the "A" batteries for dry-cell tube sets may cause similar noises—test them, too. An old "C" battery is a very bad cause of this sort of racket, since it is in the sensitive "grid circuit" of the tube. The "C" battery must be replaced when the voltage shows the slightest drop from normal. This battery, however, delivers virtually no current, so that it simply "wears out" from standing around, rather than being exhausted by current drain. Sometimes tubes are bad and start noises when placed in the detector or first audio amplifier sockets. They may be loose from the base, have loose elements, or the wires to the elements may not be well soldered inside the contact prong. Replacement is the remedy in such a case. When grid leak is "noisy," the racket is louder than produced by almost any other part of the set or equipment since it receives the most amplification. A loose loud-speaker cord is often found, and this may be located by wiggling it. It is almost impossible for one successfuly to solder the tinsel wire, once it is broken, so that a new cord is the best solution.

For the Notebook.

If possible, avoid running the lead-in through the basement.

A "C" battery replaced every six months not only keeps the "B" battery bills down, but gives clear reproduction.

Good tube sockets are made from good insulating material and contain high-grade springs, which are so constructed that a tube fits snugly.

Never try to charge a battery in a few hours. A slow charge will give better results and it is not advisable to exceed a 5-ampere charging rate.

A variable condenser is placed in the set to vary the wave length of the various circuits so as to adjust or tune them to resonance with the incoming radio wave.

See that none of the turns of either of the coils have become smashed together or short-circuited in any way. By substantial packing this condition is guarded against as far as possible.

Radiograms.

Every school in Atlanta, Ga., is equipped with a receiving set. The entire equipment is worth $13,000.

Radio is to be used for the transmission of orders for movements of trains in the yards of the St. Paul Union Depot, in St. Paul, Minn.

Radio listeners throughout the United States number around 20,000,000, who spend in the course of a year something like $350,000,000 for receiving sets and equipment.

Radio is under martial control in Brazil. Neither transmitting nor receiving sets may be operated without a government license. The obtaining of such a license is a matter of red tape, long-winded manipulation and politics. Hence the Brazilian fan, rather than go through all this formula, installs a set in secret and takes a chance.

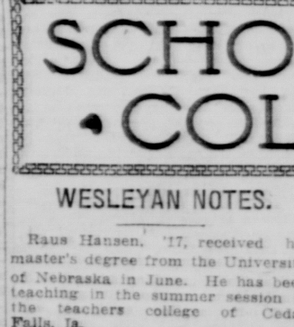

The United States navy radio system is one of the most comprehensive in the world. The navy radio net consists of 135 land stations, and installation and equipment is estimated to be $25,000,000. These stations transmit 100,000,000 words annually. Along the coast of the United States and on island possessions there are 40 high-power transmitting stations which are capable of flashing messages from 800 to 6,000 miles.

Answers to Movie Fans

Dear Movie Editor—We greatly enjoy your column in The Lincoln Star. We are all movie fans, and of course, like all good fans, we are very anxious to know about our favorite stars.

Will you please give us the cast for the following pictures: "Drusilla With a Million," "The Shock Punch" "The Goose Woman." "Beverly of Graustark," "The Code of the West" "The Road to Yesterday," "Made for Love?"

We would also like the addresses of the following: Vera Reynolds, Clara Bow, Constance ennett, Norma Shearer, Marion Nixon, Louise rooks, Sally O'Neil, Colleen Moore, William Haines, Richard Dix, Greta Nissen, Betty Bronson and Renee Adoree.

What charge is made for the pieures of the above stars? Do any stars give their pictures free of charge? If so, whom?

How old is Norma Shearer, also Sally O'Neil, Clara Bow, Constance Bennett,, Mary Pickford and Greta Nissen?

Is Norma Shearer married? If she is, who is her husband?

We hope to see this letter very soon, as we are very impatient to know the answers to these questions. Thanking you, we are FRITZ, WINNIE, PHIL, CHARLEY and DOE, all from Hebron, Nebraska.

A regular landslide! We are glad to have so many fans in Hebron. I didn't want to take a nap today, anyhow.

The cast for "Drusilla with a Million" is: Drusilla Doane, Mary Carr; Sally May Ferris, Priscilla Bonner, Collin Arnold Keneth Harlan; Elias Arnold, Henry Barrows; John Thornton, William Humphrey; Daphne Thornton, Claire Du Brey.

"The Shock Punch" cast include: Randall Lee Savage, Richard Dix; Dorohty Clark, Frances Howard; Dan Savage, Theodore Babcock; Jim Clark, Percy Moore; Stanley Pierce, Charles eyer; Torrence O'Rouke, Gunboat Smith; Mike Jake Scannel; Bull Mularkey, Walter Long; Giuseppi, Paul Panzer.

In "Beverly of Graustark" we find: Beverly Calhoun, Marion Davies; Danton, Antonio Moreno; Prince Oscar, Creighton Hale; General Marlanx, Roy D'Arcy; Duke Travina, Albert Gran; Caslotta, Paulette Duval; Saranof, Max Barwyn; Mr. Calhoun, Charles Clary.

The cast for "The Road to Yesterday is: Kenneth Paulton, Joseph Schildkraut; Malena Paulton, Jetta Goudal; Beth Tyrell, Vera Reynolds; Jack Moreland, William Boyd; Dolly Foules, Julia Faye; Adrian Tompkyns, Casson Ferguson; Harriett Tyrell, Trixie Friganza; Hugh Armstrong, Clarence Burton; Anne Vener, Josephine Norman; Watt Earnshaw, Charles West.

"Made for Love," follows: Joan Ainsworth, Leatrice Joy; Nicholas Ainsworth, Edmund Burns; Lady Diana Trent, Ethel Wales; Mahmoud Bey, Bertram Grassby; Pharoah, Brandon Hurst; Freddie Waddams, Frank utler; The Cherub? Lincoln Stedman; Pierre, Neely Edwards.

"The Code of the West" is: Cal Thurman, Owen Moore; Georgie May Stockwell, Constance Bennett; Mary Stockwell, Mabel Ballin; Henry Thurman, Charles Ogle; Bid Hatfield, David Butler; Enoch Thurman, George ancroft; Mollie Thurman, Gertrude Short; Ma Thurman. Lillian Lighton; Tuck Merry, Edward Gribbon; Cal Bloom, Pat Hartigan; Bud, Frankie Lee.

You may write to Vera Reynolds at the Cecil B. DeMille studio, Culver City, Calif. Clara Bow and Betty Bronson are at Lasky studio. 5350 Melrose Ave., Hollywood, Cal., and Louise Brook, Richard Dix and Greta Nissen works at the East Coast studio, Paramount, Pierce Avenue and 6th street, Long Island New York.

Constance Bennett, Norma Shearer, Sally O'Neil, Renee Adoree and William Haines all work on the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer lot, Culver City, Calif.

Marion Nixon is a star in Universal pictures, Universal City, Calif. and Colleen Moore, is now located at the new First National studios at Burkank, Calif.

The customary fee to enclose with your request for pictures is a quarter, but nearly all of the players will send their photographs free of charge, the fans inform me. The studios will mail you pictures of their artists if you write direct to them.

Norma Shearer is twenty-two, and still single. Little Sally is only eighteen, and Greta Nissen, Clara Bow and Constance Bennett were all born in 1905. Mary Pickford doesn't look much older than the rest, but she is thirty-three.

"SNITCH," "JACKIE MAE," "E. M. T." and "JERRY"—Your letters are all at hand and will appear next week.

Screen Siftings

Mary Astor Engaged—Mary Astor has announced her engagement to Irving Asher, business manager of the B. P. Fineman company, a First National producing unit. Miss Astor just completed her role in "Forever After" on the First National lot. The wedding date has not yet been announced.

Long Contract—Kathleen Collins is heralded as the latest film "find," following her work opposite Ken Maynard in "The Unknown Cavalier," Miss Collins has been signed to a long term contract by Charles R. Rogers who has discovered and developed a number of stars. Miss Collins has bobbed, auburn hair and blue eyes. Her first important role before the camera was with the horse, "Rex" in "Black Cyclone" which Hal Roach made.

To Dress Up—No more "Galloping Fish" and pigtails for Louise Fazenda. She got a taste f "dress up" roles in "Footloose Widows" and it seems to have lingered. In her new picture. "The Passionate Quest," Miss Fazenda plays the part of a fashionable Parisian modiste.

War Picture—Not to be outdone by Famous Players-Lasky, who are filming "The Rough Riders," Warner Brothers have decided that they, too, will do a Spanish-American war picture. The film is titled, "Across the Pacific" and will feature Monte Blue. Other players in the cast are Myrna Loy, Jane Winton, Walter McGrail, Charles Stevens and Tom Wilson. A replica of the United States army in the Philippines during the war has been built by Warner Brothers and occupies an entire mile f beach front.

Does Death Scene—Georgia Hale is crushed to death under an auto driven by Lois Wilson—in her new picture "The Great Gatsby," which is being made at the Paramount Long Island studio. It's the first time Miss Hale does a death scene for the sake of her art. Herbert Brenon is the director who is responsible for the portrayal. Georgia Hale will be remembered for her work in "The Salvation Hunters," "The Gold Rush," and "The Rainmaker."

Given Lead—Majel Coleman, who has been doing small parts in Cecil B. De Mille productions for over a year, has been raised from obscurity by Mr. De Mille and announced as the first actress to be cast in "The King of Kings." Miss Coleman will portray the role of Justitia, wife of Pontius Pilate. Victor Varconi has the part of Pontius Pilate Miss Coleman is Titian-haired, tall and graceful. Her first featured role was in support of Vera Reynolds in "Coproral Kate."

Strong Cast—An unusually strong cast has been chosen to support Renee Adoree and Antonio Moreno in "The Flaming Forest," which has gone into production at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios under the direction of Reginald Barker. Gardner James has been loaned by Inspirational Pictures for a role in the feature. Others prominent in the cast are Bert Roach, star of "Excuse Me;" Tom O'Brien, the famous "Bull" in "The Big Parade," and Claire McDowell, who has the role of mother in "Ben Hur." The story is adapted from James Oliver Curwood's novel, and is a tale of the organization of Canada's Northwest Mounted Police in 1874. Most of the exteriors will be filmed in Canada.

Returns to Movies—Mildred Harris, who has been touring on the vaudeville stage for several months, is returning to the movies opposite Rod La Rocque in his new film, "The Cruise of the Jasper B."

Smalley Has Role — Phillips Smalley, who at one time acted as husband to Lois Weber, has a role in her new Universal picture, "The Sensation Seekers," Billie Dove and Huntley Gordon are the featured members of the cast. The first scene shot for the picture was in a black-and-tan cafe set where two hundred extras danced to the tunes of a colored jazz orchestra.

Sixth Picture — "The Cheerful Fraud," Reginald Denny's latest starring vehicle, is the sixth consecutive picture in which William A. Seiter has directed Mr. Denny. Harvey Thew was responsible for the story.

Has Role of Christ—H. B. Warner has been entrusted with the role of Christ in Cecil B. De Mille's feature, "The King of Kings.' Mr. Warner is one of the best actors of the stage and screen. He recently appeared on the screen in "Silence," an adaptation of his stage play of the same name.

Gone to New York—William Beaudine has completed his work on Douglas MacLean's new Paramount comedy, "Ladies First," and has gone to New York where he will direct Thomas Meighan in his next picture.

To Title Comedy—Robert Banchley, dramatic editor of "Life" and one of the best known dramatic critics in the country, has been engaged to title Raymond Griffith's latest comedy, "You'd Be Surprised.' Mr. Beechley will also write the silk-hat comedian's next story, "Be Yourself."

Much Experience—A total of 95 years stage experience will be devoted to the filming of "Pals in Paradise,' the Peter B. Kyne story which Metropolitan Pictures are producing. May Robson, after 43 years of stage acting, makes her debut as a screen player in this picture. Rudolph Schildkraut, who claims 52 years before the footlights, has been chosen to support Miss Robson in the film. John Bowers and Marguerite De La Motte provide the romance for "Pals in Paradise,' under the direction of George B. Seitz.

A Real Background—The natural beauty of Yosemite National park forms the background for some of the thrilling outdoor sequences of "The Understanding Heart," Peter B. Kyne's novel of a girl forest ranger. Jack Conway, the director, and his company of players including Joan Crawford, Carmel Myers, Francis X. Bushman, jr., and Rockcliffe Fellowes, are "roughing it" there while the exteriors are being taken for the feature.

"True Confession" Magazine Have Competition In Series Of Movies Now Being Planned

Jack Pickford, who did rather well in "Brown of Harvard" is being rewarded with the role opposite Beatrice Lillie when that comedienne of "Charlot's Revue' makes her movie debut in "Exit Smiling." Sam Taylor, who directed Harold Lloyd for a time, is to be behind the megaphone.

Here's good news! Robert Benchley, dramatic editor of "Life" is teaming up with Raymond Griffith, the high hat comedian. Benchley will title Griffith's present production, "You'd Be Surprised," and he is to write the star's next story, "Be Yourself." Laughs are en route to the screen.

Norma Talmadge's next First National production, "The Sun of Montmartre,' is under way in Hollywood this month. It is an original story by Hans Kraly.

The half way mark of production has been reached with "The Masked Woman." They're making the party sequence at present, and it is not without its drama. A round dozen of the flames in the last life of the mysterious Baron Tolento, Holbrook Blinn, meet to celebrate his contemplated suicide, each to have her dearest wish granted as reward for attending the party.

Gentlemen must prefer blondes. Another foreign flaxon haired beauty has drifted to our shores, and the producers are willing to have her sign on the dotted line. Inga Nybo is she—late of "The Flying Dutchman," "The Phantom Ship," and "Othello," all of which had a limited showing in this country. Originally she was a dancer in gay Paree, and did her screen work for an Italian film company. She came, she says, for a rest, and unannounced, but she's not averse, it seems, to capturing a few American dollars.

Here's A New One.

Can you believe it? "Tillie the Toiler" is coming to the screen with Marion Davies as the gay Tillie. The comic strip heroine will be filmed as a Cosmopolitan production for M. G. M.

The war is about over. "What Price Glory' and "Old Ironsides" have been completed. When "Tell it to the Marines" takes the final closeup, the battle days will be brought to a close.

Dorothy Dwan has been selected by Fox to appear opposite Tom Mix in "The Light in the Canyon" She played with him in his thriller, "The Great K and A Train Robbery."

Olga Printzlau is making an adaptation of "Porgy," a story on negro life, soon to be started by DeMille. At the present time, the plans call for a negro cast.

Later this month, work will start on the production of "The Popular Sin," which is to be made into a Paramount picture by Mal St. Clair. Florence Vidor, Greta Nissen, and Clive Brooks will have the leading roles. The picture will be taken at the Long Island studio.

Not content with the "Devil's Highway" and "The Devil's Circus" and a few other pictures of the same namely ilk, preparations are now under way to film "Flesh and the Devil" for Metro. It is being made from the Suderman novel, "The Undying Past."

Irvin Willat has gone over to the Universal lot for a time to help Richard Talmadge on his way to make super productions for first run release instead of the program pictures he has been offering since he became a star. Famous Players loaned the well known director to Universal to direct the first of the new releases, "The Black Rider."

The Costello girls have joined the bathing beauties! Dolores and Helene are playing about now on the California beaches, prettier and more charming than all the paid variety. However, they are merely vacationing, and not doing it for the camera. Dolores has not had a rest since her big hit in "The Sea Beast" and Helene has just completed one of the principal roles in "The Honeymoon Express." Together they are enjoying the big waves and the white sands of the sea shore for a little while.

Vera Reynolds is now starring in "Corporal Kate." Majel Coleman, Vera, and Julia Faye are the trio of buddies in the picture.

H. B. Warner has been chosen to portray the role of Jesus of Nazareth in the big spectacle, "The King of Kings." This will mark the first time that the screen will visualize the most dramatic figure in the history of the world. In announcing his choice for the role, DeMille said of the man: "He is a dramatic artist of established ability, he is a gentleman in all that that term implies, and he approaches his task with the greatest reverence."

Try Confessions.

Confession magazines and true story publications are having a tremendous growth, and now the movies, inspired by the money the stories are bringing to the publishers, are going into the confession business. A five reel feature series of pictures to be produced by the Richard Thomas productions for Associated Exhibitors release is being prepared. The pictures are to be "Confessions of a Bachelor," "Confessions of a Flapper," "Confessions of a Divorcee," and "Confessions of a Widow."

Prince David Divani, Prince of Georgia, who recently married Mae Murray a couple of days or—was it weeks—after they met is Madeline Hurlock's leading man in her first feature comedy. Miss Hurlock plays the role of a pseudo Russian countess for Pathe—and David should know whether or not she is, for Georgia is not a state, but a southern Russian principality.

Ernst Lubitsch no longer parks his car at the Warner studios. He's now a Paramount director, after having gracely evolved himself out of a Warner contract. He will make two more pictures at a later date for that company. "Lady Windermere's Fan," "Rosita," with Mary Pickford, and "Forbidden Paradise," with Pola are a few of his successes. "Passion" and "One Arabian Night" with the Negri as the star brought him attention and a chance to come to 'Mericy.

FOREIGN MOVIES ARE OUTCLASSING AMERICAN FILMS

Says German Producers Show Greater Imagination and Genius.

"No More Women" Opens With Good Leads But Little Else.

BY BUSHNELL DIAMOND.

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—Well, it seems there were a couple of woman-haters, no, no, not that!—who managed to get themselves dramatized and onto a Broadway stage. They picked one of the hottest nights of the year, but at least they had the honor of semi-officially opening the 1926-27 season.

Standing behind the two fictional misogynists and administering to them vigorous pushes were their creators. One was the highly familiar Samuel Shipman, who annually tosses to the throngs pearls of great melo-dramatic price; the other, the less celebrated, indeed totally unknown, Neil Twomey. Their joint effort was christened "No More Woman." But please don't infer from that that there was no love-making lying around loose on the stage. Practically nothing but.

The motto of producers in August would seem to be; whatever the quality, see that there's plenty of quentity. Just as in "The Blond Sinner" there was everything from a jag to a jig, and from quartets to quarts, so in "No More Women," the constituents are varied and mystifying. Elegant young ladies attired in the flossiest clothes wander around a rough ranch; uncouth re-men, foaming and roaring, are so popular you can't believe it; a wild dandelion from the west curses like an annoyed chauffeur; there is a big disrobing scene, several fights and much necking. In the end, love—you have guessed it—Conquers all, except perhaps the audience.

I detected, amid the general hurlyburly the overnight, symptoms of favorable appreciation, however. Maybe, since it was the ladies who nobly rose to the art-effects of "No More Women," Charles Bickford was the cause. Amid the ruck and rabble of insipid leading men and phoney Herculeses in which Broadway abounds, Mr. Bickford stands out like a block of flame-topped granite. If he ever sang Samson at the Metropolitan the Temple Dragon would totter and toppie at his first shoulder-twitch.

He is, also, a capital actor. His superb performances as Big Red in the tramp comedy, "Outside Looking In," "made" him for the metropolis, and his work in the luckless "Glory Hallelujah" was almost equally imposing. What he and Mildred MacLeod, who has weathered enough bad plays to stifle a Duse, are doing on the loose Sam Shipman's latest, I cannot venture to imagine. I should prefer to see them playing the Colonel and Mimsy in a revival of "Peter Ibbetson," with Edward Crandall as Peter.

Foreign Competition Keen.

It devolves upon men, as a doleful duty, to repor tthat my wanderings among the sinema temples have yielded afresh a familiar fact; to wit, that when it comes to movie inventiveness, imagination, ingenuity, character sense, beauty and technique, the foreigners have it all over us live several tons of bricks. Such infantile exhibitions as "Padlocked," which has been coverted from the swift and stirring story to the usual drivel about incandescent youth, not to mention "The Plastic Age" and "You Never Know Women," simply can't stand up beneath the crushing weight of Germanic competition.

The International Film Arts Guild, with deliberate malice, is driving the points home with a week of repertory feature Emil Jannings. (Loud cries of "He was born in Brooklyn." I know he was, but he isn't working at it.) In "Passion," in "Deception," in "One Arabian Night" Mr. Jannings gets his innings. But so do his directors. The Dubarry film (truth must out) seems a little battered and flimsy today. But Pola Negri's gorgeous performance in it, and Jannings' characterization, make it, even with its blemishes, a treasureable thing.

I do not wish to rub it in our native film-makers that they are tardy or unintelligent, but the production of "You Never Know Women" forces my hand. Here you have everything; speed, splendor, good plotting, competent acting and magnificent camera angles—everything, that is, except the imprint of veracity. Go and see "Variety," which "You Never Know Women" superficially resembles, and note how, with precisely the same plastic materials, the Germans have created the illusion of life with all its terrors and allurements and abandonments.

Millions Spent For Buildings

be one of the very finest, and furnishings. Sunday school will be held there the first Sunday in September, in the basement, and the church auditorium will be ready for occupancy about November. The church has a seating capacity of 1,000, with a complete kitchen and a stage in the basement Sunday schol rooms, which can be opened into one large room. The church, upon its completion, will have cost $300,000.

For the past two weeks, the steam shovels have been eating away at the basement of the First Christian church, of which the educational unit is now being built. This unit will be ready for use about March 1. The church with its two units will cost between $250,000 and $300,000, and will have a seating capacity of 1400 persons.

Morrill Hall Ready.

Morrill hall, to be fully occupied next June, is now underway on the city campus of the university Built at Fourteenth and U streets, it is to cost about $350,000, and it will house the museum, the school of fine arts, the geography department, and other departments that may be assibgned to it temporarily.

The new theater, on which work was begun in June, will be ready for use about September 15, work aving been somewhat delayed owing to shipments of materials that failed to arrive on schedule. The theater is to have store rooms on the first floor and offices at th efront of the seconud floor. The building, with partial equipment, will represent an investment of $80,000.

One of the ambitious projects now under way is the new Fraternity building, being erected on the site of the old Fraternity building at Thirteenth and N streets. The building is to be fifteen stories in height, with the first two floors devoted to store rooms and the upper floors in offices. It is expected that the building, for which the basement is now being excavated, will be completed about March 1, 1927, and it will represnt an investment of more than a million dollars.

Work on the destruction of the old Union block began on March 1, and the contractors turned the building over to Speier's exactly five months later. Elevators, fixtures, and other equipment is now being installed, and the company will move in August 23. The building, four stories in height, with a couple of store rooms on O street, has a total cost of $175,000.

Fred Humphrey is building a one story building of fourteen stores at Twelfth and M streets. The store rooms vary in size from 10 to 30 feet in width, and from 30 to 65 feet in depth, and each one has a rear entrance, The building will be occupied September 1, and will represent an outlay of $40,000.

DISCOVERIES IN HUMANS.

I must be free to accept it," he said.

This was agreed upon. A few months later, a member of the law firm with which he formerly had been connected, invited him to lunch. On the way his friend said:

"Well, Oliver you can have a seat on the supreme bench if you want it."

He had been commissioned to find out if the appointment were agreeable to Professor Holmes.

"The governor will place your name before his council for confirmation within an hour," he said, "providing you v " accept."

Nominated for Supreme Court.

Holmes thought awhile. He thoroughly enjoyed his post at Harvard. Nevertheless, he foresaw that a judicial career would fit in perfectly with his own tendencies.

"I'll accept," he said.

Seven years later, in 1899, he became chief justice of the court. Two years afterward, Theodore Roosevelt president of the United States, summoned him to meet him in his home at Oyster Bay, on Long Island.

There was a vacancy in the United States Supreme court and Mr. Roosevelt was considering the Massachusetts jurist for the post.

Mr. Roosevelt's meeting with Justice Holmes convinced him that the Massachusetts man would be an important acquisition for the supreme bench. His nomination followed in proper time and in 1902 was confirmed.

For twenty-four years, now, he has been actively at it, bringing the resources of a great mind to bear upon problems affecting the interest of the people. At eighty-five that mind is just as keen and alert as it ever was. It is to be hoped that it will be spared to the nation for many more years.

Answers to Movie Fans

Dear Movie Editor: I am back again. Here are my questions.

Please give me the cast for "The Border Legion." Tell me about the life of Antonio Moreno. Name four or five of his latest pictures and give me his address.

I would like to know about the life of Helene Chadwick. Is she still in pictures? If so, give me her address and name some of her pictures.

Give me the cast of "Peacock Feathers" please. Is Cullen Landis married. If so, to whom?

I suggest we start a favorite actor or actress contest to see who is the most popular star among your readers. My favorite is Cullen Landis. Now it's started. Let's hear from the other fans.

I don't see anything to argue over in Buck Jones-Tom Mix contest. Tom is by far the best.

Who is the best of the following: Fred Thomson, Art Acord, Hoot Gibson and Jack Hoxie. They are more alike than the others. Let's hear from the fans.

I would like Cullen Landis' address, a story of his life and names of a few of his latest pictures.

Do Cullen Landis, Helene Chadwick and Antonio Moreno play under their real names?

Give me the addresses of the following: Colleen Moore, Claire Windsor, Lois Wilson, Harold Lloyd, Jobyna Ralston and Esther Ralston.

Have they picked anyone for "The Taxi Dancer"? If so, give me the cast.

Who played as the painter in "Peacock Feathers"? Is that his real name? Tell me about his life. I suggest he adopt a name we can remember. What is his address?

Pardon me for taking so much space.

HERMAN,
Crab Orchard, Neb.

Cullen Landis should feel very much flattered to have you admit he is your favorite. He is striving hard to reach the height where he is a general favorite. While he is popular, not very many fans choose him as their favorite player. He is paying alimony to Mignon Le Brun Landis. Address him at the Chadwick studios, 6070 Sunset Blvd., Hollywood. He just completed "Winning the Futurity" with Clara Horton. Other recent pictures of his are "My Old Dutch," "Midnight Flyer" and "Pampered Youth."

Mr. Landis was born in Nashville, Tenn., where he had considerable newspaper experience. He got the "Go West, Young Man" fever, and landed in Long Beach, California, where he secured employment running a telephone switchboard, driving a truck an dother odd jobs at a motion picture studio. He worked his way up to assistant property man, and finally assumed charge of the property department. After his first bit as an actor, he knew he had found his sphere in the movies. That's his correct name.

Now that we have taken care of your favorite, I'd better start back to the beginning of your questions.

The cast for "The Border Legion" is: "Jim Cleve," Antonio Moreno; "Joan Randle, "Helene Chadwick; "Kells," Rockcliffe Fellowes; "Guiden," Gibson Gowland; "Harvey Roberts," Charles Ogle; "Pearce," James Corey; "Blicky," Edward Gribbon; "Bill Randle," Luke Cosgrave.

If you will listen carefully I'll tell you Tony's real honest to goodness name. It's Antonio Garrido Monteagudo Moreno. It's a wonder he ever grew to five feet eight inches with all that tacked onto him isn't it? He was born in Madrid in 1888 and came to America when he was only fourteen. He completed his schooling here and went on the stage with such celebrities as Mrs. Leslie Carter, Tyrone Power, Constance Collier and Wilton Lackaye. His first screen appearance was under the Vitagraph banner, for whom he worked several years. Mr. Moreno has black hair and eyes and an olive complexion. He's an expert swimmer and tennis player as well as a splendid athlete. He is married to Mrs. Daisy Danziger, a wealthy Los Angeles society woman. He made "Mare Nostrum" in his native land, with Alice Terry as the feminine lead, and since returning to the company he has played with Marion Davies in "Beverly of Graustark," and is now playing in "The Temptress" with Garbo. Address him at the Merto-Goldwyn-Mayer studio, Culver City, Calif. You will find Claire Windsor at the same place.

Helene Chadwick seems to be hiding her light at home this summer, at least I find no mention of her as a member of the cast of any of the late pictures. She was born and educated at Chadwick, N. Y. She started her career as an artist's model and posed for many of Harrison Fisher's magazine covers. Her picture debut was in 1916 in "The Challenge" for Pathe. She was under contract with that company for two years, and since then has been free-lancing, except for a time as a Goldwyn player. Miss Chadwick's ambition is to be a famous pianist, and she spends all of her time away from the studio in practicing at the piano. Miss Chadwick is proficient in all outdoor sports such as swimming, tennis, golf and motoring. That is her real name.

The cast for "Peacock Feathers" is: "Mimi Le Brun," Jacqueline Logan; "Jerry Chandler," Cullen Landis; "Andrew Fuller, "Ward Crane; "Uncle George," George Fawcett; "Mr. Hayes, "Edwin J. Brady; "Mrs. Chandler," Carolyn Irwin; "Rev. Dr. Chandler, "Emmett King; "Lionel Clark," Prince Youcca Troubetzkoy; "Mrs Hayes, Aggie Herring; "Mrs. Le Brun," Dunbar Raymond.

It's been so long since I saw the picture that I've forgotten which character was the painter. Judging from your question, however, it must have been Prince Youcco Troubetskoy. That's his real name. I have no information concerning him, except he is a member of an improverished Russian family who is earning his three meals a day playing small parts in pictures. There are a great many characters around the motion picture lots who claim to be of royal blood.

I have no cast for "The Taxi Dancer," yet.

You may write to Colleen Moore at the new First National studio, Burbank, Calif. Harold Lloyd and Jobyna Ralston are working at the Metropolitan studios, 1040 Las Palmas Ave., Hollywood, Calif. Esther Ralston and Lois Wilson may be located at the Paramount studio, Pierce avenue and 6th St., Long Island, N. Y.

Address Prince Youcca in care of Universal, Universal City, Calif.

Dear Movie Editor:—I admire your department very much. It is s ointeresting.

Will you please give me the cast of characters that played with the talented Lon Chaney in "The Unholy Three?" Thank you.

FLORENCE.

Thank you for the kind words, Florence.

The cast for "The Unholy Three" is "Echo, the ventriloquist," Lon Chaney; "Rosiee O'Grady," Ma. Busch; "Hector McDonald," Matt Moore; "Hercules," Victor McLaglen; "Tweedledee," Harry Earles; "Regan," Mathew Betz; "Announcer," Walter Perry; "Jeweler," John Merkyl; "John Arlington," Charles Wellsley; "Butler," Percy Williams; "Mrs. Arlington," Marjorie Morton; "Arlington Baby," Violet Crane; "Commissioner of Police," Lou Morrison; "Judge," Edward Connelly; "Attorney for Defence," William Humphreys; "Prosecuting Attorney," A. E. Warren.

Dear Movie Editor:—This is my first visit to your department. I am very much interested in your answers. Please answer a few questions for me, which I have in store.

Is Jack Hoxie married? If so, to whom. How old is he. Where was he born? Give me all the information that you have about him. He is my favorite cowboy star.

Please give me the addresses of the following stars: Marion Davies, Lloyd Hughes, Mary Pickford and Harold Lloyd.

What is Mary Pickford's next picture? Marion Davies and Lloyd Hughes' next?

I have received some pictures free.

I also would lik to know what Warner Baxter's next picture is?

Here goes a vote for Jack Gilbert. I think if he would have a chance, he would be much better than Mr. Colman.

I guess I have taken enough room for this time.

BROWN EYES SUSAN.

Attention Herman! You have one answer to your query concerning the westerners already. Brown Eyed Susan has picked Jack Hoxie as her favorite.

And Brown Eyes, you will be "blue" when you see this answer. Your favorite has a wife. She was formerly Marin Sais, a screen player, also. They were married five years ago.

Jack was born on the plains of Oklahoma in 188. He was reared on a cattle ranch as a real cowboy. He won several championships as a trick and fancy rider of horses, and started his screen career with Lasky as star in "Lightning Bryce," a serial. His latest picture is "The Last Frontier." You may write Hollywood, Calif.

him at 1325 N. Hobart Blvd., Hollywood, Calif. He is six feet two in height and weighs 198.

Address Marion Davies in care of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, Culver City, Calif. She just completed "The Red Mill."

Lloyd Huges is working on "The Desperate Woman," at the First National studios, Burbank, Calif.

Mary Pickford's studio is located at 7100 Santa Monica Blvd., Hollywood. She is in Europe at present. "Sparrows" is her last release.

Harold Lloyd gets his letters at the Metropolitan studio, 1040 Las Palmas Ave., Hollywood, Calif.

"The Great Gatsby" is Warner Baxter's latest production.

The rivals surely can't complain to-day. They have a vote apiece.

Dear Movie Editor:—I haven't written you before but I am a steady reader of "Answers to Movie Fans."

Well, here comes another vote for Ronald Colman. The last picture I saw him play in was "The Dark Angel." I don't think there is another man that could have played his part in "The Dark Angel" as well as he did, do you? Who do you vote for?

I don't know how true this is, but I heard that Colleen Moore was Mrs. McCormick in private life. Would you tell me everything you know about Colleen's life?

My favorite stars among the men are Ronald Colman, Neil Hamilton, Richard Dix and Richard Arlen.

My favorite stars among the women are Colleen Moore, Vilma Banky, Lois Wilson, Constance Talmadge and Blanche Sweet. What is the color of hair and eyes of my favorite stars and what are their ages.

Who are your favorite stars among the women and men?

Would you tell me the addresses of the following: Neil Hamilton, Richard Arlen, Ben Lyon, Patsy Ruth Miller, Mary Pickford, Mary Astor and Lois Wilson.

I fear you will be angry with me for taking your time with so many questions, so I'll sign off. Yours truly, DOLLY, Crete, Neb.

I knew there was a vote for Ronald somewhere today, and here it is!

I'm taking no chances with my scalp. I'm strictly neutral on the Colman-Gilbert question.

Yes, it's true that Colleen Moore is Mrs. McCormick when she is at home. Miss Moore was born as Kathleen Morrison at Port Huron, Mich., twenty-five years ago. She moved with her parents to Tampa, Fla., where she attended the convent of the Holy Name. While in school, she was interested in dramatics, and staged many a show in her back yard. Her parents wanted her to become a musician and educated her accordingly, but Colleen's heart was set on a picture career, and she had her way. She has played with such companies as Triangle, Fine Arts, Selig, Paramount, Universal — in fact, nearly all of them. She is one of the most versatile players on the screen and is high up on the ladder of fame. She has brown hair and eyes.

Lois Wilson was born in 1896 with dark hair and eyes. Constance Talmadge is twenty-six. Her hair is golden but her eyes are brown. Blanche Sweet was born in 1895. Vilma Banky is twenty-three. They are both blondes.

You seem to have a preference for men with brown hair and eyes as your favorites among the male actors all answer that description. Mr. Colman is thirty-five. Neil was born in 1899. Richard Dix is thirty-two and Richard Arlen is around twenty-five. Address Mr. Arlen at the Lasky studio, 5250 Melrose Ave., Hollywood, Calif., and Mr. Hamilton at the Paramount studio, Pierce Avenue and Sixth St. Long Island, N. Y. Lois Wilson may also be found at the Paramount studio.

Patsy Ruth Miller and Mary Astor maintain letter boxes at Warner Brother's studio, 5842 Sunset Boulevard, Hollywood, Calif.

The Mary Pickford studio is at 7100 Santa Monica Blvd, Hollywood.

First Time Together — Claire Windsor and William Haines are cast together for the first time as the feature players in "The Little Journey" which has gone into production at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio. The story is by Rachael Crothers and is a tale of ordinary people in middle class life. Hobart Henley will have charge of the megaphone. Mr. Hanley was responsible for "His Secretary," "The Auction Block," and "A Certain Young Man."

Many Horses Used—It took fifteen of the best riders in the west three weeks to break the 450 mules for use as saddle animals that were used in the Foreign Legion scenes of "Beau Geste." More than 1,500 horses and mules took part in the desert battle scenes of the picture. Herbert Brenon produced the feature for Paramount. Most of the scenes were snapped along the Mexican border in Arizona.

Now in Process—"The Charleston Kid," adapted from Gerald Beaumont's story, "Even Stephen," is now being "ground out" at the First National New York studios. Dorothy Mackaill and Jack Mulhall are featured players and Louise Brooks and William Collier, Jr., have the other two important parts. The pleasure resort scenes will be taken at Coney Island. Alfred Santell occupies the director's chair.

Howdy Folks!

You've asked for new faces in the movies.

Here is the answer to your prayer—16 of the prettiest, snappiest youngsters you've ever seen—in a lively comedy supported by such stars as Richard Dix, Adolphe Menjou, Lois Wilson, Chester Conklin.

WANT to get into the movies? Want to see how those girls and boys who did get in through the Paramount School can look and act? Want to see some new faces? Then don't miss this one!

Minerva's Mail

TAKE YOUR TROUBLES TO MINERVA

The Marriage Institution must Fit Changing Needs Rather Than Deny the Needs to Keep the Institution Unmodified—Just As There There May Be Courage Without Swords, So May There Be Romance Without The Conventional Outer Trappings — Vengeance Returned As Love.

Mating Or Marriage.

Dear Minerva: The discussion concerning future marriages is very interesting, but until we know what life will be like a hundred years hence we cannot know what marriage will be like.

Meanwhile, we can each roll our own prophecies.

H. G. Wells asks "Are you for or against abolishing marriage," he being rather an abolitionist himself.

It all depends of course upon what you mean by marriage. If you mean mating, the question answers itself; you can't abolish nature. If you mean the specific laws of property, of guardianship, of personal and financial control, such a statement as that marriage is fixed in human nature and that human nature never changes is unsound. Customs and laws obviously do change and there is no reason to suppose they will give up the habit.

All kinds of experiences are being tried here and there and now, in the hope that they will form the type for the future—experiments that do not get into the papers, but represent individual efforts to make marriage fit the case of two persons with their special problems. Sometimes they are conservative, but in any case they are the experiments which will make the institution fit changing needs, not deny our need in order to keep the nistitution unmodified. Until we know what life will be like a hundred years hence we cannot know what marriage will be like.

The External Trappings.

Dear Minerva: What worries me chiefly about the present generation is that the young people are cheating themselves out of romance. They are so material minded with their motor cars, short hair, short skirts and one-piece bathing suits that they are killing all romantic love in the world. Romanticist.

A. But are they?

Might you not as well say there is no courage without swords, no adventure without Spanish galleons. If love and romance could be killed by a change in the external trappings of life, it would have become extinct in the course of other changes before this.

And as for mystery—the mystery concerning the shape of feminine legs was a fairly insignificant mystery whose passing is supremely unimportant. There remains inviolate the real mystery which separates every human being from every other, which makes us yearn to understand and to be understood and be forever baffled in the undertaking.

Our Pet Vengeance.

How many of us are willing to let God take care of our pet vengeance? Not many. We feel to thoroughly capable of handling the situation ourselves. Such a righteous glow we feel as we strike at the one who has sinned.

And this is how it sometimes turns out. A reguar bumerang that changes its intention of vengeance and comes back love.

"Another Virtuous Wife" is giving us her story as a means of answering "Virtuous Wife" who was so narrow in her outlook on life, so pinched and warped in her knowledge of love that many of us wanted to hunt out a real sin and clasp it to our bosoms.

For twenty years "Virtuous Wife" hung on to the name of her husband whose life and love were with others. She would not give up the legal right to the name because it would immediately have been conferred on the woman of his heart and the so-called illegitimate child. She didn't love her husband, but virtue must reign supreme.

Now read this answer from a woman who appointed herself the right hand of God. The only trouble with her is that she has a heart.

Dear Minerva: I don't know what "Virtuous Wife" and "Hater of Filth" expect to inherit but I think the wife who refuses to divorce the man who had ceased to love her, so that he might marry the woman he did love and give a name to the child of their union, was much more culpable than either.

What has it to do whether a child is born in wedlock or out of it, it was no fault of his. True, the world makes him suffer keenly but after all, ladies, there is nothing to this idea of retribution and I know, for once I set out to be God's right hand man and repay His vengeance with interest. And I want to tell a story of misconduct here and I wish Virtuous Wife would comment on it.

Since this sounds more like romancing than most letters, although every word is true, I will begin.

Once upon a time, more than twenty years ago, I went to visit an aunt in a thriving middle west community, a Main Street town. Te hero of the story was a doctor whom I met and married within six months of our meeting. After a joyous honeymoon we settled down to establish ourselves. True, we had little money but a nice little home and the future looked bright to us. Never was a couple more in love than we two.

Three months had passed and one night in early fall my husband had gone out on a baby case. When our door bell rang (it wasn't 9 o'clock) I thought it must be an urgent call. I went to the door and found a girl holding a baby in her arms wrapped in a shawl. She asked for the doctor and I invited her in. I asked her if she was ill.

"No," she said.

"The baby then?"

"No." She wanted to see the doctor.

She seemed ill at ease so I made her a cup of tea. Then to my surprise she began to cry and told that my husband was the father of her baby, nearly six months old now.

I won't go into details and I won't tell you why, that not once did it occur to me that the girl was lying. For some reason I knew she was telling the truth and so she had, as my husband admitted it, telling me a story of their connection that could be duplicated in every hamlet in the country. But he had not known about the baby.

Well, we left that self-same week for the town where the girl lived and got the baby. The girl was glad to have it go and signed a paper giving it into the care of the doctor for adoption.

I will never forget that journey. We had very little money, most of it realized from the sale of our household and office furniture. I knew nothing about babies and my clumsy handling of this one drew forth a mirthful comment from a Swedish woman in the day coach with a round half dozen (we had no money for a Pullman) that I would do better when I had five or six. We finally arrived, found three small rooms and life began again. My husband found a place in an older doctor's office.

Still I held to my vengeance idea. I was a very dignified, aloof young woman. But Minerva it was funny. It was no time until I was crazy about that tike and how in heck could I keep up the vengeance when I needed someone to appreciate the utter lovableness of that little piece of humanity. But I couldn't quite get out of it until one day our doctor came in when I was giving the baby a bath in a dishpan on the floor and kissing his wee fat tummy until he shreiked with laughter. Anyhow, the doctor caught us both in his arms and the water splashed all over the rug and there in a great hug with a naked dripping baby in our arms we found we loved each other with plenty left over for the baby too.

Now tell me, "Virtuous Wife," would it have been better to stone the three? Then too, the vengeance game having died on me, the wife in name only stuff blew out too, so I have two more sons born in wedlock. And the three of them all hulking big six-footers now.

My eldest son shows in our family records as a year younger than he is (a lie to be accounted for somewhere). And though Virtuous Wife would never believe it, he is the best son of the three.

And never could there be found a stronger bond betwen mother and son, or betwen mother, father and brothers.

His mother married her foreman and died within a year. Perhaps a plan more just to her could have been worked out. But we were young and her desire for vengeance plus mine dictated our moves.

Another Virtuous Wife.

Bible School Honor Girls Guests At Y. W. Camp

The above honor girls from the Vacation Bible schools were given a day at Oakwood lodge, the Y. W. C. A. camp at Crete, Friday, August 13. The girls are Jane Wolcott, First Baptist; Ellen Lineberg, Tabernacle Christian; June Porter, Westminster Presbyterian; Dorothy Sisson, First Plymouth Congregational and Trinity Methodist; Mildred Ludwig, Calvary Evangelical; Ellen Cowley, Grace Methodist; Katherine Luke, Normal Methodist; Virginia Haile, Belmont; Beatrice Fee, Elm Park Methodist; Lois Teft, Warren Presbyterian; Esther Hohnstein, St. Mark's Reformed; Margaret Lowe, Bethany Christian; Lou Emma Johnson, United Brethren; Helen Johnson, East Randolph; Dorothy Neutzman, First Methodist. Serving as hostesses and driving to Crete in their cars were the following ladies: Mrs. L. W. Chase, Mrs. F. R. Hussong, Miss Elinor Lowry, Mrs. Adrian Newans, and Mrs. W. W. Whitfield.

Her father, she said, worked in one of the plants up the river. My husband had been there when he first left college.

She had never told him about the baby nor had she told anyone who was the father. Her own father had wanted her to put the baby into an institution, but she would not. Now a foreman wanted to marry her. He would overlook the misstep, but he would not have the child. She wanted to marry him, but she didn't want to put the baby in a home. She thought maybe the doctor could get someone to adopt him. He was so pretty and good.

She showed me the baby and I, inexperienced though I was, could see that he was lovely. Right then a plan was born. I would take the baby, not from any unselfish motive, but one that would suit Virtuous Wife down to the ground. It was then I began to get in line to help the Lord out and do some repaying on this vengeance business.

I told the girl we would find a home for the baby and would come for him ourselves. She was simply to tell her father that a doctor and his wife were going to get him adopted.

When she was gone I was frightened to death at what I had done but I lashed myself into a fine frenzy of self pity. I would get even with my doctor man. If he thought he could go marrying me and leaving babies around he would find out I'd keep his baby as a regular thorn in his side. I would be wife to him in name only.

So I shock out the skirts of my prejudice and at the same time was scared to death. The baby should not go into any orphan asylum. I needed him to punish his father with, and so on. I can see now that I really suffered a lot in my vanity, but I was young enough to get a kind of smug satisfaction out of the "garment of righteousness" I had fashioned for myself.

University Will Enter New Era of Athletic Expansion Upon Coliseum Completion

The completion of the new university coliseum early in September will mark a new era in athletics at the University of Nebraska. Architects have so planned the huge structure that nearly every form of college athletics can be efficiently handled by the university in either the coliseum or the stadium. A definite program for the future is being worked out by athletic authorities, so that activities in the two structures will be in harmony.

The coliseum will be the center of athletic activity in the future, however, according to Acting Director of Athletics Gish. Even the football lsquad will have its dressing quarters and training room in that building. Aspecial room in the coliseum basement will be equipped with electric and steam baths, and in the future athletic authorities hope to have a full-time trainer.

To carry out this new arrangement, even the football practice fields will be moved nearer to the coliseum. The land directly west of the structure is being bought and football practice, formerly held on the field south of the stadium, will be moved there.

A scheme of decoration is being worked out uniformly in the coliseum hall and on the stadium walls. Bronze colored plaques of the ten valley schools will be placed across the top of the huge stage at the north end of the coliseum hall. Similar plaques of concrete will be set across the top of the stadium walls. Because of the larger space there, each plaque of a valley school will be alternated with one of Nebraska. The university is the only valley school to carry out this scheme of decoration and hospitality in its athletic structures.

Six basketball courts will be housed in the coliseum. Four in the main hall, one on the stage, and one below the stage, where a swimming pool will eventually be built. For varsity games, a court will be laid out in the center of the hall, leaving room for temporary stands in the rest of the floor space, as well as the permanent balcony to accommodate the crowds. Approximately 8,500 people can be seated. More than 7,000 were housed in the structure last spring for the finals of the state basketball tournament when the coliseum was not completed.

Intramural and inter-class athletic headquarters will also be in the coliseum. A general locker room in the basement can accommodate 1,800 men. With the lockers already in the stadium, every man student and faculty man in the university can have a locker. Separate locker rooms for the varsity basketball squad and visiting teams are also located in the west side of the basement. The east half is being cemented and will be used for intramural athletics. Handball, tennis, and horseshoe courts, and eventually a bowling alley will be housed in the space, which is half as large as the main floor. Small class rooms for men taking the four-year coaching course and physical education work will also be built along the east wall.

Five coaches' offices are located on the second floor at the south end of the coliseum. Coaches Bearg, Black, Oakes, Schulte, and Clapp will have the rooms. In the center of the second floor is the N club trophy room. It will be used as a lounginf room for the club and will later have a billiard table, a small library, radio equipment, and pictures of each Nebraska team. It is being furnished by the N club.

Wholesale Firm Begins Business

Another firm looms in Lincoln in the wholesale grocery business under the name of Heinz Wholesale Grocery company, 417 North Tenth street. With a remodeled and redecorated building this new firm starts business tomorrow. H. W. Heinz will be office manager and general buyer. J. H. Heinz is the president of the concern.

The Heinz' have been connected with the retail coffee and tea business for the past eight years and J. H. Heinz has been engaged in the coffee line for twenty-five years. Formerly the company was known as Heinz and Son, Tea and Coffee. The establishment of the wholesale grocery is distinctly a new development and the retail coffee and tea business will be dropped, but will be carried in the wholesale stock.

The new company will occupy the main floor and basement of the building at Tenth and R streets. While the building is not a new one, improvements and remodeling work is being done and soon it will be in very good shape.

A complete line of wholesale grocery goods is being installed specializing in the Jack Spratt brand and Chocolate Cream Coffee. The Jack Spratt canned good are all put up where they are grown. Nine factories spread over the agricultural middle west permit the company to can ripe goods where they are grown. Nine factories spread over the agricultural middle west permit the company to can ripe goods where they are raised. There are over 300 items in this line of food stuffs.

The Heinz company will serve all the territory in Nebraska east of North Platte with possibilities of enlarging the territory to include all of the state. A large group of experienced salesmen will cover this territory.

Piggly Wiggly Store Opened

Saturday morning in Lincoln a new store was added to the Piggly Wiggly grocery chain which brought the total stores in Lincoln to nine and the total in Nebraska to forty-three. There are now 2,050 Piggly Wiggly self-serve groceries in the entire country making this company the second largest food distributors in America.

The new store opened at Eleventh and G streets with many new features in the grocery and market line. The store is of red shaded press brick with the customary checkerboard trim as is common at most Piggly Wiggly stores. Green tile eaves and a broad concrete canopy add to the attractiveness of the new structure. All along the Eleventh street side is a special parking space on the sidewalk for customers. The curbing slants upwards and there is an indentation of about twenty feet providing adequate parking facilities.

Along the G street side is the Pacific type of fruit and fresh vegetable market, a new innovation in connection with grocery markets in Lincoln. There the fresh fruit and vegetables are lined up beside the store with bunches of golden bananas hanging from the bright awning.

This Piggly Wiggly store will be known as the Cornhusker market. The interior of the store contains the customary groceryteria, a large and modern meat shop, a coffee stand and a pastry and bread counter. In the winter time, the fruit department will also be installed inside.

The color scheme for the interior of the store is cream and yellow giving a very pleasing appearance. The lighting fixtures are of the indirct type hanging low from the ceiling. Especially low cases and shelves are used in the grocery department so that all of the food stuffs can readily be reached. The Piggly Wiggly stores in Nebraska are all operated from Lincoln as headquarters.

Quite large crowds visited the new grocery store and market Saturday. The management chose the location at Eleventh and G streets believing it to be an excellent shopping center with plenty of parking space and light.

Old in Years

But I still look a girl in her teens

By Edna Wallace Hopper

This is to offer you two beauty helps whose results will amaze and delight you. The best I have found in my 40-year quest. The helps that made me a famous beauty and have kept my youthful bloom.

Any girl who tries them will, in 30 minutes, realize a new idea of beauty. Most older women will seem to drop ten years. I urge you, for your own sake, to watch the quick results.

One is my White Youth Clay. Not like the old-time clay, but a 20-year development. It is white, refined and dainty. Three clays are combined in one. And many other needed factors are included. It will do more for you than anything else I know.

White Youth Clay purges the skin of all that clogs and mars it, draws out the causes of blackheads and blemishes, combats lines and wrinkles, brings the blood to the skin to nourish and revive it, leaving a rosy glow. New beauty and new youth come at once.

Then apply my Youth Cream. It combines a dozen of the best helps science knows. Then you will realize, and at once, what beauty you lose by neglect.

All toilet counters now supply my White Youth Clay and Youth Cream, exactly as I use them.

If you desire more beauty or new youth, I urge you to try them today. The world knows nothing better.

WOMAN CONQUERS FEARS

Husband Delighted and Home Happier

St. Paul, Minn.—"Here is a little advice I would like to have you put in the papers," Mrs. Jack Lorberter of 704 Dellwood Place wrote to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Company. "If young women want to keep their health and strength for the next thirty years of their lives, it is best to start in right now and take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I have tried the Compound myself and received fine results." In describing her condition before taking the Compound, she writes, "I was afraid in my own house in broad daylight, I used to lock the doors and pull down the shades so that nobody could see me." One day a booklet advertising the Vegetable Compound was left on her porch and she read it through. In so doing, she found a letter from a woman whose condition was similar to her own. "I bought the Vegetable Compound," Mrs. Lorberter continued, "and have had fine results. The condition I was in made me a burden to my husband. Now I ask "How is housekeeping?" and he says, "It is just like being in Heaven!"

LISTEN, BOYS, I WANT COLONEL JONES TO PUT SIXTY THOUSAND DOLLARS INTO MY NEW STOCK. BUT HE IS VERY SLIPPERY. YOU TWO HIDE IN THAT CLOTHES CLOSET AND IF HE TELLS ME HE WILL INVEST YOU WILL BE WITNESSES AND HE CAN'T BACK OUT! HE WILL BE HERE IN HALF AN HOUR!

I DEPEND ON YOU TO HEAR AND REMEMBER EVERY WORD COLONEL JONES SAYS! YOU'D BETTER GO IN THERE NOW AND WAIT!

CORRECT

NOISE LIKE AN AVIATION FIELD

DOUGH'S ASLEEP! WE DON'T NEED TO STAY IN HERE HALF AN HOUR BEFORE THE COLONEL GETS HERE.

WE CAN STEP OUT AND GET A BITE OF LUNCH!

NOISE LIKE A SAW MILL

WE'VE GOT LOTS OF TIME!

WE CAN GET BACK LONG BEFORE THE COLONEL COMES!

DOUGH IS TAKING A NAP! I'M A LITTLE AHEAD OF TIME. I'LL WAKE HIM UP AND TALK ABOUT THAT INVESTMENT. HE'S PRETTY TRICKY BUT HE CAN'T FOOL ME!

HE'LL FIND THEM IN THERE AND THE DEAL WILL BE OFF!

I'LL JUST SEE FOR MYSELF!

DOUGH, I GUESS I'LL HAVE TO APOLOGIZE!

I HOPE YOU REALIZE THAT YOUR UNJUST SUSPICIONS WERE ALL WRONG!

LET'S FORGET IT! I'LL PUT SIXTY THOUSAND DOLLARS INTO YOUR INVESTMENT!

WELL, I MUST BE GOING. THAT WAS A GOOD JOKE ON HE!

I'M GLAD YOU ARE GOING TO INVEST, COLONEL.

HE GOT HERE OILIER THAN WE EXPECTED!

DOUGH WILL FIRE US FOR THIS!

10

WHERE HAVE YOU BEEN! DIDN'T I TELL YOU TO STAY IN THAT CLOSET!

IT WAS POIFECTLY UNINTENTIONAL!

WE DIDN'T THINK HE'D COME BACK SO SOON!

I'LL LET YOU OFF THIS TIME BUT DON'T LET IT OCCUR AGAIN! HERE'S FIVE DOLLARS APIECE FOR YOU!
